DETECTIVE TELLS OF BATTLE WITH CITIZENS OVER MINERS' EVICTION

First Witness at Hearing of Case Against Men on Murder Charge Relates How Trouble Followed Eviction From Coal Company Houses.

FLED AFTER FIRING 3 SHOTS, HE SAYS

Daughter and Niece of One of Defendants Testify to Hearing Threats to Kill Detectives "Before They Get Out of Matewan."

By the Associated Press.

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., Feb. 12.—Excited and confused, with pistols and rifles popping on every side, John McDowell, one of the Baldwin-Felts detectives who battled with the citizens of Matewan last May 19, testified today he fired three shots at Reece Chambers, a defendant, and then fled from the scene where seven of his comrades and three of townspeople lay dead.

McDowell was the first witness called at the trial of 19 Matewan men who have been indicted in connection with the death of Albert C. Felts, leader of the detectives. He was followed by two telephone operators, May Chafin, a niece of Reece Chambers, and Elsie Chambers, his daughter.

McDowell said he had come with the other detectives to evict from houses owned by the Stone Mountain Coal Co. at Matewan a number of miners and their families. While the evictions were in progress, McDowell recalled, Albert Felts had seen Mayor C. C. Testerman and Sid Hatfield, Chief of Police, accompanied by a party of men, coming their way. Felts, the witness testified, ordered some of the men to get their guns and they did. The Mayor protested to Felts, who answered that he had ample authority for his action. To which Testerman replied: "Well, you don't pull anything like that and get away with it down here."

Evictors Told of Warrants.

Later, when the evictions were over and the men were preparing to leave Matewan, Hatfield told Felts that warrants for their arrest had been sworn out in Williamson.

McDowell was not clear as to how the shooting started or who fired the first shot. He said firing was going on all around him, but the only man he saw shooting was Reece Chambers. McDowell, according to his testimony, fired three shots at Chambers and then went to Tug River and crossed over into Kentucky. Fully 100 shots were fired, he said.

Miss Chafin, the 17-year-old niece of Chambers, was on duty in the telephone exchange that day, she testified. She heard Sid Hatfield call Tony Webb, who was then Chief Deputy Sheriff, and ask him when warrants could be obtained for the arrest of the detectives. She further testified that she heard Hatfield tell Webb, "we'll kill the —— before they get out of Matewan."

Miss Chambers' testimony was substantially the same.

McDowell told his story in a few words and the crowded courtroom listened intently. When he was turned over to the defense for cross-examination, Attorney J. J. Coniff went into what has been stated as the cause of the fight, the eviction of miners from houses owned by the Stone Mountain Coal Co.

Cross-Examined About Evictions.

McDowell was uncertain as to the number of families evicted by the Baldwin-Felts detectives that day, but said he believed there were five or six.

"How many sick persons were evicted?" McDowell was asked. "None that I know of."

"Isn't it true that a sick woman was turned out of the house?" "Not that I know of."

"You may tell us about the appearance of Sid Hatfield while the evictions were in progress."

"While a few of us were taking the furniture from a house," replied the witness, "Mr. Felts, who was in charge, said: 'Two or three of you had better get your rifles, for yonder comes the Mayor, Sid Hatfield and a gang of men.' We did as we were told. Hatfield, Mayor Testerman and two or three others came up to where we were and protested against the eviction."

Felts answered the protests of the Mayor by saying he had authority to evict the miners.

"Then Testerman said," continued the witness, "'Well, you don't pull

40 PATROL FLYERS FAIL IN SEARCH FOR LIEUT. PEARSON

500 Miles of Texas Terrain Vainly Fanned Out in Quest for Missing Aviator.

By the Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 12.—After fanning out 500 miles of what aviators describe as the worst terrain in Texas, between El Paso and San Antonio, 40 patrol machines landed tonight in their respective border aviation fields without having found any trace of Lieut. Alexander Pearson, jr., army flyer, who has been lost since last Thursday morning, when he took the air for San Antonio. The aviator was going over the route he was scheduled to take in an attempted 24-hour flight from Pablo Beach, Fla., to San Diego, Cal., on Washington's birthday anniversary.

The search for Pearson will be resumed tomorrow, every available machine at San Antonio, El Paso and border patrol points joining in it.

During the day two reports on the missing aviator were received at the air service office. One was that a machine was seen flying over Saragosa, Tex., and the other that an aviator was seen over a ranch near Sanderson at 2:30 Thursday afternoon, four and a half hours after Lieut. Pearson left El Paso for San Antonio.

A. W. MELLON SELLS INTEREST IN DISTILLERY TO BANK

Transfer Made Since Inquiry From Anti-Saloon League as to Whether He Held Stock.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 12.—On Wednesday, following the publication of the story that A. W. Mellon, prospective secretary of the treasury, was one of the principal stockholders in the Overholt and Company Distillery at Broadford, W. H. Anderson of the Anti-Saloon League wired Mellon asking him if it were true.

Friday Mellon sold his interest in the Overholt Distillery to his brother, R. B. Mellon, and the estate of the late Henry Clay Frick for $480,000, each of the two purchasers paying $240,000.

The distillery was then liquidated by the Union Trust Co. of Pittsburg for $2,300,000. In other words, R. B. Mellon, A. W. Mellon and the Frick estate disposed of the Overholt Distillery to the Union Trust Co. for $2,300,000.

H. C. McEldowney is president of the Union Trust Co. and also a director in the Mellon National Bank.

A. W. Mellon is vice president and a director of the Union Trust Co. of Pittsburg.

Senate Favors $2500 Increase for Speaker and Vice-President.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The salary of Speaker Gillett of the House would be increased from $12,000 to $15,000 under an amendment to the annual Federal salary bill adopted today by the Senate. The amendment was offered by Senator Pomerene, Democrat, Ohio, who also sponsored the amendment adopted yesterday to increase the Vice President's salary to the same sum. Both increases still have to be approved by the House.

NEGRO PRISONER HANGED BY MOB

By the Associated Press.

OCALA, Fla., Feb. 12.—A mob broke into the County Jail here tonight and seized a negro who had been arrested on a charge of assaulting an aged white woman, took him to the scene of the alleged crime and hanged him.

Before being strung up he was identified by the woman as her assailant.

COCKER SPANIEL IS DOG KING

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Midkiff Seductive, an 18-pound cocker spaniel, tonight ascended the throne of dogdom and for one year will reign as the best dog in America. Midkiff was chosen as the winner of the forty-fifth annual show of the Westminster Kennel Club. He is owned by W. T. Payne of Kingston, Penn.

This was the first time a cocker spaniel captured the major honors.

G. O. P. COMMITTEE MEMBERS MUTE ON RACE FOR MAYOR

25 Members in 1917 Boasted Kiel Couldn't Be Beaten; Now Only Six Openly Back Him.

TWO BELIEVED TO FAVOR BURKHAM

Silence Believed to Be Due to Fear Announcement of Support by "Ring" Would Hurt Mayor.

A silent campaign is being conducted by the Republican City Committee, in preparation for the primary March 11, in which Mayor Kiel and Lieutenant-Colonel Robert Burkham are the opposing candidates, thus far announced, for the party nomination for Mayor.

The committee's slogan appears to be "Hush!" Instead of three rousing cheers for one candidate or the other, the committee members are showing the degree of their enthusiasm with several deep silences.

The members who are for Mayor Kiel are muffling their expressions of support to a subwhisper. Those who are for Burkham seem equally afraid of the sound of their own voices.

There is method in this muteness and a reason for the reluctance of committeemen to inform the voters of their views. The word has gone forth that "machine" and "ring" support will not be an asset to any candidate in the coming primary. Whether or not such a view is flattering to the committee, it is felt that the public will be likely to receive favorably the candidate who makes the least show of committee support. In the campaign of 1917, it was openly declared that Mayor Kiel could not be beaten, because 25 of the 28 committeemen were for him. This year, such an announcement might be enough to beat a candidate.

How Committeemen Stand.

A canvass, made in the last few days by a Post-Dispatch reporter, shows that six members of the committee are known to be for Kiel, three more are supposed to favor Kiel, two are believed to favor Burkham, one more is considered as anti-Kiel, one is favorable to Judge Robert W. Hall, who has not yet filed as a candidate, and 15 are undecided or noncommittal.

The showing by wards is:

First Ward—Chairman Strodtman, friendly to Collector Koeln and considered favorable to Burkham.

Second—Gus Oetting, noncommittal.

Third—Walter Bischoff, supposed to be for Kiel.

Fourth—Nick Polito, supposed to favor Kiel.

Fifth—Gabe Roth, says he has not made up his mind.

Sixth—City Marshal Schuler, for Kiel.

Seventh—William Hubele, says he has not decided.

Eighth—Louis (Tub) Becker, noncommittal.

Ninth—William Troll, noncommittal.

Tenth—George Meisinger, says he has not decided.

Eleventh — Park Commissioner Pape, for Kiel.

Thirteenth—Dr. A. H. Meyer, noncommittal.

Fourteenth—A. M. Brinkman, noncommittal.

Fifteenth—Joseph Schroeder says he has not decided.

Sixteenth—"Bobby" Moore says he is neutral.

Seventeenth—Frank Slater, supposed to be for Kiel.

Eighteenth—E. E. Butler, for Kiel.

Goldstein Noncommittal.

Nineteenth—Nat Goldstein, noncommittal.

Twentieth—Elmer Moone, says he has not decided.

Twenty-first—Herman Bader, for Kiel.

Twenty-second—George Hohmann, noncommittal.

Twenty-third—Director of Public Safety McKelvey, for Kiel.

Twenty-fourth—Herman Meuser, says he has not decided.

Twenty-fifth—John E. Johnson, classed as anti-Kiel.

Twenty-sixth—I. Joel Wilson, for Judge Hall if he runs.

Twenty-seventh—Louis J. Becker, for Kiel.

Twenty-eighth—Joseph B. Thomas has announced neutrality and has told precinct workers to do as they think best.

Politicians say the Mayor may get more support, in some of the wards, than the attitude of the committeemen would indicate. The ward committeeman is not all there is to the organization. Every one of the city's 600 precincts has its precinct com-

BREWERY WORKERS VOTE 2 TO 1 FOR STRIKE TUESDAY

Union Secretary Says Step May Be Averted by Agreement That Is Being Sought With Employers.

VOTING LIMITED TO PRESENT WORKERS

Employers Conceded Control of Employment and Discharge of Workers—Final Decision Tomorrow.

The strike vote, taken Friday night by the five local unions of the Brewers and Malsters Union, composed of employes engaged in the manufacture and bottling of beverages, resulted in a majority vote of two to one in favor of a strike Tuesday, according to Joseph Hauser, secretary of the Brewers and Maltsters' Benevolent Society, unless an agreement satisfactory to the workmen is reached by their representatives and the committee of employers in the meantime. About 1800 men, all that are employed at this season, voted on the question, and about 2000 other members of the union, who work only during the summer months, were not allowed to vote.

Statement to Members.

The following printed statement of the situation, with instructions how to vote, was read at the meetings and copies were placed in the men's hands for study before the ballots were distributed:

"The employers still take the position that we have to accept the agreement which they submitted and that no changes will be permitted in regard to the hiring and discharging and lay-off of men. The question before you now is either to accept or reject this agreement. If you reject the agreement and insist that the employers must give consideration to the modifications offered by the Joint Local Executive Board and the International Union you may have to go on strike, and before you vote for strike the Joint Local Executive Board wants to call your attention to certain facts and possibilities, so that you may not claim you were kept ignorant or were not in possession of all facts.

"First: Only members directly employed in the breweries are entitled to vote on the question of strike. The out-of-work members and members working in other industries are not entitled to vote on the question.

"Second: Only members directly employed in the breweries and who will be affected by a strike are entitled to strike benefit.

Instructions on Voting.

"Third: You must not forget, in voting for a strike, that this means a fight to the bitter end, of long duration, and many hardships.

"Fourth: You must also remember that the international organization is confronted with other fights throughout the country.

"Fifth: If you vote for strike, you must fight, and fight to win—even if you have to leave brewery employment forever and get jobs outside. Don't vote for a strike and then return to work. Be honest with yourself, your family, and fellow-men.

"Sixth: You have a right to express your true sentiment now, as it is better than to criticise later, when it is too late. Vote if your joint board shall accept the employers' proposition or not. If in favor, vote 'Yes'; if against employers' proposition, vote 'No.' If you are in favor of calling a strike, vote 'Yes'; if against it, vote 'No.'"

The proposal on which the vote was taken was whether the existing contract with the employers shall be modified to restrict the jurisdiction of the union, particularly as it pertains to the employment and discharge of workmen, or strike to enforce a renewal of the contract as it stands.

Concession to Employers.

The vote was by secret ballot and was counted yesterday morning by the joint executive council of the union. When the result was known a committee of the council conferred with representatives of the employers and, in view of the situation, according to Hauser, conceded the demand of the employers to have unrestricted control in the employment and laying off or discharging of workmen.

"This was the point the employers made so much of in their contentions," Hauser said, "but when it was conceded, they then wanted the men to sign a contract that had been prepared by the employers. Our committee refused to do this, as it had no such authority. We asked that, in order to avert a strike Tuesday, the present contract as to hours, wages and recognition of the union, less the provision for union super-

TOURING CAR, GIVEN AWAY AS A PRIZE, REFUSES TO TOUR

Edwardsville Man, After Receiving $30 in Lieu of Machine, Believes He's Ahead.

A semi-political organization of East St. Louis gave away an automobile last week. The machine went to C. Lohman of Edwardsville. Yesterday he went to East St. Louis to get the machine, which had been represented as a touring car. He found that it was a car, but its touring days were over.

Lohman was led to a shed, where the car was pointed out to him and he was told to take it away. It couldn't be done. For one thing, all the tires were flat. For another thing, the engine could not be started. And, anyway, the man who owned the shed would not permit it to tour until the storage bill was paid.

Lohman went to the headquarters of the organization. If the men there had insisted he would have paid them something to take the prize off of his hands, but after talking it over they compromised by giving him $30 and keeping the touring car.

YAWN DISLOCATES MAN'S JAW; DELAYS TRAIN 40 MINUTES

Occupant of Berth, Unable to Talk, Is Treated at Worden, Ill., on Way to St. Louis.

Wabash fast passenger train No. 17, the "no-stop train" which left Chicago at 12:02 yesterday morning for St. Louis, stopped at Worden, Ill., seven miles north of Edwardsville.

A man in a berth, responding to the awakening poke of the porter, stretched his arms and legs and yawned so heartily that his jaws declined to reassociate. Thereupon there burst upon the astonished gaze of the porter and early risers the spectacle of a man in pajamas, his jaws several inches apart, uttering unintelligible sounds and waving his arms.

The train was stopped at Worden, as the passenger was in great pain, and a doctor was awakened and hurried to the station. The dislocated jaw was reset and bandaged.

All this took 40 minutes and in the meantime the second section arrived and had to stop. Being unable to talk either before or after the operation, the man did not give his name.

ARREST FOR DRIVING AUTO AFTER FEB. 22 WITHOUT 1921 LICENSE

Chief Fixes Date on Which Police Will No Longer Accept Excuses for Failure to Show Tag.

Chief of Police O'Brien yesterday announced that Feb. 22 would be the last day of grace allowed motor vehicle owners to procure their 1921 State and city license tags. On the morning of Feb. 23 the police will be instructed to arrest all drivers of motor vehicles not exhibiting the proper plates.

The Chief anticipated the police would be too busy on the date named to take cognizance of the horse-drawn vehicles, but advised that these licenses be procured by that date, as arrests in this class of vehicles would follow.

CARUSO'S CONDITION SERIOUS

Doctors, After Consultation, Say He Is Not Worse.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Although his physicians and private secretary denied his condition was changed for the worse, the rumor was circulated today among close friends of Enrico Caruso that he had suffered a relapse. A high temperature and the development of a complication of slight afflictions are said to have caused a hurried summoning of four of his six physicians, all specialists, who remained in his apartment at the Vanderbilt Hotel most of the afternoon.

One of the physicians said: "Mr. Caruso is alright. He is not worse."

BELASCO CHASES SPECULATOR

Man Tries to Sell Seats for $1 Production for $3.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Broadway crowds tonight saw David Belasco pursue a ticket speculator through the theatrical district, after he had endeavored to sell $1 seats to one of Belasco's productions at $3 each. The speculator escaped.

Addressing the large crowds that had gathered, Belasco declared he had begun a personal campaign to eliminate sidewalk speculators. "They not only steal your money but are abusive to women and children," he declared.

PRESIDENT ARRANGES NEW HOME

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—President Wilson spent several hours yesterday at the house where he will make his home after his retirement from office on March 4.

It was the President's second visit to the house since he purchased it and with Mrs. Wilson he spent considerable time in going over his belongings which have recently been brought here from Princeton, N. J., and indicating places in which he desired them placed. The President paid particular attention to the books of his library and to their arrangement in the racks.

BAKER CALLED ON TO TELL WHY HE KEPT WAR ARCHIVES SECRET

INVESTIGATION OF CONDUCT OF WAR IS EXPECTED TO TAKE NEW TURN

Congressman Flood Introduces Resolution Asking Secretary About Refusal to Let Two Employes of Investigator for Subcommittee See Certain Records

SECRET PURPOSE IN WORK ALLEGED

Pair Whose Names Are on Voucher Which Has Been Held Up Said to Have Planned Blackmail or Sale of Data to Newspaper.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—A resolution which is expected to shift congressional investigation of the conduct of the war into a new field was introduced today by Representative Flood, Democrat, of Virginia, a member of the general investigating body.

The resolution called upon Secretary Baker for all facts connected with the application of J. M. Hill and C. C. Lindsey "for permission to inspect the secret archives of the War Department and the refusal of the department to grant such permission."

Hill and Lindsey were employed by an investigator who was employed by the Johnson subcommittee, the chairman explained tonight. A voucher for $2400 for their work, made out in the name of their employer, is held by Chairman Ireland of the House Committee on Accounts and has not been paid.

Mentioned Last June.

The names of Hill and Lindsey were brought before the general investigating committee, of which Representative Graham of Illinois is chairman, last June. At that time Flood, in denying charges by Republican members that the War Department's attitude was unfavorable to the investigation, declared the only refusal was in the case of Hill and Lindsey, who were seeking certain secret records containing the settlement of contracts.

This action, Flood charged, was taken after the department authorities had found that the real purpose of Hill and Lindsey was to obtain money from a newspaper for information supposed to be on file among Government records "in the event they were unable to obtain a large sum through blackmail."

Flood announced that his resolution, being privileged, would be called up from the floor in the absence of a prompt report from the Military Affairs Committee, to which it was referred.

Expenditure for Inquiry Assailed.

Chairman Ireland of the Committee on Accounts, this week criticised the expenditure of large sums by investigating committees, declaring he had seen "no concrete results" from the war investigations and that his committee undoubtedly would have disapproved many of the contracts had it known about them.

In his statement to the committee today to explain the reason for his resolution, Flood said that Hill and Lindsey went to the War Department with a letter from Samuel T. Ansell, former Acting Judge Advocate-General of the Army, counsel for the Johnson subcommittee.

Floyd's statement to the Graham committee last June follows: "The subcommittee sas assumed to investigate the conduct of the war, both by the military authorities abroad and at home, and such testimony as it has taken with respect to expenditures is only incidental to this main purpose. The gentlemen who constitute the majority of this subcommittee charge that the War Department's attitude was unfavorable to the investigatian, and that certain fiscal records were not available. There is nothing in the conduct of the War Department to justify this charge and the statement that the records are not available is wholly without foundation and fact.

"The only instance in which the

Wilson Note to Harding Unanswered in Two Weeks

President Wrote to President-Elect, in Own Hand, as to Whether They Would Ride Together From Capitol to White House March 4.

By the Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—An extremely embarrassing situation has arisen in connection with the forthcoming inauguration. President Wilson does not yet know whether or not he will ride with the President-elect to the Capitol for the inaugural ceremony, and except for what he has read in the newspapers he does not know how the gap between the Wilson and the Harding occupancy of the White House is to be socially bridged.

The President let it be known some time ago that he was prepared to observe the customary amenities of the occasion by riding with President-elect Harding to the Capitol and returning with him to the White House for luncheon. Two weeks ago, it was learned today, Mr. Wilson wrote a personal letter—not dictated, but in his own hand—to the President-elect at St. Augustine, saying that he hoped Mr. Harding and his Cabinet would take luncheon with him and the outgoing Cabinet immediately after the inauguration. This invitation was in conformity with the custom established at previous changes of administration.

Reply Not Received.

Up to tonight, the President had not received a reply to his letter. The surprise of White House officials may be imagined when they read in the newspapers yesterday that Harding purposed to ride to the Capitol in an automobile, without escort, as fast as the laws of the District of Columbia would permit, and begin his career as President with a small luncheon for his father and some other members of his family.

Knowing, as everybody does, that disregard of President Wilson's invitation would be entirely out of keeping with the character of Mr. Harding, the few who are aware of the present awkward turn of affairs are inclined to believe either that Mr. Wilson's letter has been delayed in Mr. Burleson's mails, or that Mr. Harding's secretarial force, which is new to its business, has been dilatory in calling it to his attention. In no other way can they account for Mr. Harding's failure to reply, and the news stories from St. Augustine telling of plans that fail to take any account of the present occupant of the White House.

Request for Senate Call.

Mr. Wilson, it is said, feels that he has observed all the prescribed formalities of the occasion, and is not worrying. The situation again emphasizes the failure of the outgoing and the incoming President to get together. Despite expectations that they would establish a rapprochement when President-elect Harding came to Washington after his Texas trip, they failed, for some cause or other, to see each other.

More recently, when the President-elect desired the President to call a special session of the Senate for March 4, to confirm Cabinet appointments, he had his wish conveyed circuitously, from Senator Lodge to Senator Underwood to the President. A note direct to the President would have accomplished the same result.

GEN. CROWDER SAID TO HAVE BEEN OFFERED M. U. PRESIDENCY

Three Others Mentioned to Succeed Dr. A. Ross Hill at State University.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 12.—It is rumored here that the Board of Curators of the State university has extended an invitation to Gen. Enoch H. Crowder to accept the presidency of that institution to succeed Dr. A. Ross Hill, who resigned Feb. 4. Gen. Crowder is an alumnus of the law school of the University, having been graduated from that school while a First Lieutenant and commandant of the military school here, receiving his degree in 1888.

Among others who are mentioned to succeed Dr. Hill are Dr. H. J. Waters, editor of the Kansas City Weekly Star; Dr. C. M. Jackson, head of the anatomical department of the University of Minnesota, and Chief Justice Walker of the Missouri Supreme Court.

FIRST DEGREE MURDER CHARGE AGAINST DRIVER IN AUTO DEATH

Columbus (O.), Citizen, Who Ran Man Down, Held for Trial Without Bond.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 12.—What is believed to establish precedent in criminal annals was the holding here today of Jesse B. Haley, on a first degree murder charge without bond as a result of an automobile accident in which Henry Seibert was killed last Sunday night as he waited to board a street car.

The first degree murder charge was filed by City Prosecutor Herbert.

"In the trial of Haley," Herbert said, "it will be undisputed that he was operating the car without regard for human life, and with utter disregard of any consequences. I believe the jury in the case should have the right to infer that after Seibert was hit, and while he was carried on the fender of the car, in plain view of the driver and in a perilous position, and from the fact that death resulted from his being struck, that Haley's continuing involved an intent to kill."

New York Bureau to Sponsor Celebration April 4 to 11.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Invitations to join in celebrating "National Prosperity Week," April 4 to 11, were sent out today to 9892 commercial organizations throughout the country by the National Prosperity Bureau here. The Bureau was organized recently by financial, mercantile and business interests and seeks to re-establish business prosperity and normal buying.

COLBY DENIES CHARGES AGAINST FRENCH TROOPS

Tells Senator Spencer That German Language Press Has Inspired Cruelty Allegations.

By the Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—What he described as anti-French propaganda inspired largely by the German-language press, was attacked today by Secretary of State Colby, after Senator Spencer of Missouri had laid before him a large number of complaints from Missouri alleging atrocities by French negro troops in the occupied portions of Germany.

Writing to Spencer, Colby said that numerous similar complaints had been received by the State Department and investigated. From diplomatic and American military sources, he said, it had been learned that the French removed their black troops from the occupied territory some time ago, though some Algerian and Moroccan troops still remained. These he described as being Arabs, or a mixture of Arab, French and other nationalities, including a large proportion of purely French soldiers. Colby said the Germans, so far as known, had made no charges against the conduct of these troops.

The Secretary declared that the number of Senegalese troops in the occupied regions was never large, and that the specific charges made against them in the German press had in most cases been refuted.

American authorities, he said, had reported that the stories of atrocities originated in Berlin and appeared to be very largely anti-French propaganda. The same view was advanced by the Secretary, who said that inasmuch as no recent examples of misbehavior had been brought forward, the recent outcropping of the stories "must be a part of the widespread propaganda directed against France."

Spencer said that the information from the State Department was "absolutely reliable," and should allay the anxieties of Missouri citizens who had been aroused by reports of mistreatment of Germans by French negro troops.

It was clearly established, Spencer said, that the original charges came from irresponsible German sources in an effort to mislead Americans.

"This has been a very poor policy," said Spencer, "for no class of citizens will resent more vigorously the attempt to deceive them by false propaganda than the very class whom particularly it was intended to misinform."

WOMEN HONORED IN CHOICE OF OFFICERS AT G. O. P. MEETING

16 Are Named Vice Presidents by Young Republicans' Association at Meeting in Kansas City.

GOV. HYDE AND SHAW DELIVER ADDRESSES

Former Secretary of Treasury Declares Party Must Stand by Its Old Traditions to Retain Power.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 12.—The floor of Convention Hall was turned into a big banquet room tonight when 1250 men and women sat down to the annual Lincoln day feast of the Association of Young Republicans of Missouri. At least one-fifth of the diners were women.

Seated at the middle of the speakers' table was Gov. Hyde. Most of those about him wore evening dress. The Governor was attired in a dark brown business suit.

The Rev. T. W. Jeffrey, pastor of the Independence Boulevard Methodist Episcopal Church, in the invocation, expressed thanksgiving for "the change that has come over Kansas City under the new administration."

By the time the banquet had finished a crowd had poured into the gallery and boxes until the hall was comfortably filled. Marvin E. Boisseau, president of the association, was toastmaster. In his introductory remarks he congratulated Missouri Republicans on the "splendid victory."

"To the women of the State, who played no small part in the victory, I would pay a well deserved tribute," Boisseau said.

When Merle Smith, delivering the address of welcome, referred to Kansas City's new police commissioners and Chief Edwards, a roar of applause went up. "We are writing the 'book of exodus' for the crooks of Kansas City," he said.

A tribute to the memory of Abraham Lincoln was paid by Loren E. Seneker of Mount Vernon, State Senator.

Two Attributes of Government.

"Kansas City is to be congratulated," Gov. Hyde told his audience. "Life in this town must have come to be a dull, drab thing. Think of it. There hasn't been a bank robbery in two weeks.

"There will be found two great attributes of government found always in any good State. They are schools, homes, honest elections and the church. Anything that tends to tear down or weaken these attributes is detrimental to the State or to the nation.

"We as Republicans now have established the principles to build up these attributes of the State. Let us resolve to guard the fundamental principles of the State with the integrity of our party."

A warning against paternalism in Government was sounded by Leslie M. Shaw, Secretary of the Treasury in Roosevelt's cabinet, speaking to the Young Republicans. The symptoms of the drift toward it are Government insurance for everything and a general attitude of "picking up the child when it falls, instead of letting it regain its feet itself," he said.

"England has well nigh put herself out of the running by her paternalism," he said. "She grants old age pensions, guarantees wages, often more than the beneficiary can earn when employed, writes insurance paying the premium herself until her state socialistic ventures have multiplied her annual budget by three; adding thereto about the same amount as the world war, including its entailed pensions. Then by socialistic methods of taxation she has taken the life blood out of her industries. This multiplies the number of unemployed, the support of whom in turn multiplies taxation. When an individual, or a nation starts to eat up its accumulated capital the road to the poor house is found to be relatively short.

"The trend is in the same direction in America, and unless the Republican party remains true to its traditions our boasted 'land of the free and home of the brave' has reached the zenith of power and influence. A cowardly surrender to even semi-socialism is sure to cost us our freedom.

"In one hundred years before the war we multiplied our average annual wage by three, but to do this it was necessary to multiply invested capital per capita of wage earners by six, while the wage of capital—interest rates—declined. To overtax capital drives it out of industry and precipitates a period of non-employment more dangerous and fraught with suffering than any war. The best welfare work to which any nation ever directed its efforts is the fostering of industry."

Among those at the speaker's table were: Arthur Erwin, member of the Executive Committee of the Association of Young Republicans; William Turbett, Executive Committee; Mrs. Myrtle Sidenor, Executive Committee; S. F. O'Fallon, Speaker of the Missouri House; Jesse W. Barrett, Attorney General of Missouri; Mrs. Sylvester Wells, member of the State Committee; George E. Hackmann, State Auditor; J. G. Hughes, chairman of the State Republican Committee; E. Mont Reily; Loren E. Seneker, Vernon, State Senator from Lawrence County; Leslie M. Shaw, former Governor of Iowa, former secretary of the United States Treasury; Marvin E. Boisseau, toastmaster, president of the Young Republicans; Mrs. Margaret Hill McCarter, Arthur M. Hyde, Governor; Merle Smith, Mrs. A. H. Brueggeman, St. Louis, national committeewoman; the Rev. T. W. Jeffrey, pastor of the Independence Boulevard Methodist Church; Hiram Lloyd, Lieutenant-Governor; Mrs. C. A. Braley, member State Executive Committee, Fifth District; Charles U. Becker, Secretary of State; W. H. Hallett, Nevada, president-elect of the Young Republicans; Sam F. Baker, Missouri Superintendent of Schools; Edwin Morris, St. Joseph, re-elected secretary-treasurer of the Young Republicans; L. D. Thompson, State Treasurer; Mrs. George C. Mosher, chairman of the Woman's County Committee of Jackson County; Elton L. Marshall, Chillicothe, member Executive Committee, Young Republicans; Golson McFall, Kansas City, member Executive Committee; T. W. Hukriede, Representative, Ninth Missouri District; Roscoe Patterson, Representative, Seventh District; Charles Faust, Representative, Third District.

Women May Hold Office.

By amendment to the constitution of the Association of Young Republicans, women may now hold office as vice presidents. R. W. Benecke of Brunswick, vice president from the second district, introduced the motion.

"It is the best way of expressing appreciation of the splendid aid given our party by women of Missouri," Benecke said.

A resolution was offered by Mrs. A. H. Brueggeman, national committee woman of St. Louis, to caucus the various districts as represented to choose sixteen women to serve as vice presidents this year.

As local republican leaders gained a point in the choice of H. C. Doyle as vice president from this district, they also gained further in the choice of Miss Lenore Simpson as woman vice president from the fifth.

Mrs. C. A. Braley, member of the woman's State Committee from the Fifth, placed the name of Miss Simpson in nomination. A motion then was made to close nominations, and Miss Simpson became the first vice president of the association from this district.

Following are the vice presidents: First district, Mrs. C. N. Hunt, Macon; Second district, Miss Byrd M. Hall, Trenton; Third district, Mrs. R. K. Daugherty, Lathrop; Fourth district, Miss Helen Summy, St. Joseph; Fifth district, Miss Lenore Simpson, Kansas City; Sixth district, Miss Lillie Hank, Holden; Seventh district, Mrs. Dennis, Springfield; Eighth district, Mrs. Roy T. Davis, Columbia; Ninth district, Mrs. Harry Hawlez, Mexico; Tenth district, Mrs. Bertha Freund, St. Louis; Eleventh district, Mrs. Walter M. Miller, St. Louis; Twelfth district, Mrs. L. M. McCall, St. Louis; Thirteenth district, Mrs. Robert H. Davis, Fredericktown; Fourteenth district, Miss Mattie Pierce, Billings; Fifteenth district, Mrs. C. C. Playter, Joplin; Sixteenth district, Mrs. D. D. McDonald.

The men vice presidents: First district, Waldo Edwards, Bevier; Second district, R. W. Benecke, Brunswick; Third district, Dr. J. W. Kavanaugh, New Hampton; Fourth district, Dr. J. G. Morgan, St. Joseph; Fifth district, H. C. Doyle; Sixth district, Pierce Bolinger, Clifton; Seventh district, W. M. Jones, Sedalia; Eighth district, Bert Harvey, Eldon; Ninth district, Anton Kramalowsky; Tenth district, Joseph B. Thomas, St. Louis; Eleventh district, Nat Goldstein, St. Louis; Twelfth district, Gabriel Roth, St. Louis; Thirteenth district, H. D. Evans, Bonne Terre; Fourteenth district, Frank L. Woods, Tancy County; Fifteenth district, Harry E. Ozee, Nevada; Sixteenth district, C. H. Jackson, Hartville.

W. H. Hallett of Nevada was elected president of the association and Edwin L. Morris of St. Joseph, secretary-treasurer. Sixteen men vice presidents, each representing one congressional district, were chosen, and for the first time in its history, the association elected women vice presidents, 16 also being named.

DOCTOR DIES ON WITNESS STAND

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Feb. 12.—While testifying in the trial of a damage suit in the Greene County Circuit Court this morning Dr. William McFarland Brown, 59 years old, of Springfield, was stricken with heart trouble and died before a physician could reach him. The stroke occurred after a verbal clash between Brown and an attorney for the defense.

Brown was a witness for a woman who was seeking damages from the local traction company for injuries received in a street car accident.

Lenine Says Dictatorship of Proletariat in Russia Will Last 40 More Years

LONDON, Jan. 27.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

NIKOLAI LENINE, Bolshevist Premier of Russia, expects the Russian peasants to continue their resistance against the dictatorship of the proletariat for 40 years, but says the communists will continue that government until they submit, according to the delegates of the Spanish Socialist party who have just returned from Moscow.

The Spaniards went to Russia to present a statement of the conditions under which their party would affiliate with the Third Internationale. On their return they told a representative of the Times about their interview with the Bolshevist Premier.

Expresses His Opinions.

Asked by Senor de los Rios and Senor Anguiano, who made the trip to the soviet capital, when the Russian dictatorship would be replaced by a regime of freedom, Premier Lenine said:

"We have never spoken of liberty. We are exercising the dictatorship of the proletariat in the name of the minority because the peasant class in Russia is not yet with us. We shall continue to exercise the dictatorship until they submit. I estimate the dictatorship will last about 40 years."

Senor de los Rios and Senor Anguiano, who disagree as to the expediency of adopting the dictatorship of the proletariat idea, spent two months in Russia. While both were disappointed by conditions there, they were full of admiration for the possibilities of the Russian revolution.

NEW TURN TO INVESTIGATION OF CONDUCT OF WAR

War Department declined to honor investigations made under authority from the committee, or its attorney, was that of a Mr. Hill and a Mr. Lindsey, who went to the War Department with a letter from Gen. S. T. Ansell, the $20,000 attorney, requesting that these gentlemen be given access to certain secret records containing the settlement of certain contracts.

"Upon investigation the War Department authorities found that the real purpose of Mr. Hill and Mr. Lindsey was to obtain money from a newspaper for this information, in the event they were unable to obtain a large sum through blackmail. The proper authorities in the War Department very properly refused to honor Gen. Ansell's request and the Secretary of War wrote a letter to the chairman of the select committee in which he set forth reasons for such refusal. Mr. Graham, the chairman, naturally agreed with the Secretary of War's presentation of the matter and his refusal."

vision of employment and discharge, be accepted, and I understand the employers now have our proposal under consideration. We are to meet their committee again Monday afternoon for a final answer."

Agreement Tried for Two Weeks.

The companies wanted to date the new agreement as of Feb. 1, but were able only to prevail upon the workmen to try it two weeks, in the meantime considering its advantages. Hauser said the men have done this, and the vote Friday night was the result.

In printed letters to the workmen the companies have repeatedly assured them recognition of the union, the 44-hour week and no reduction in wages for at least 20 months. In a similar letter, August A. Busch, president of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association, stated that those of that concern's employes who see fit to walk out must remain out.

FARMERS PACK THEIR STILL AND LIQUOR IN MARCH TO COURT

School Teachers Attending County Convention Witness Unusual Spectacle at Edwardsville.

Four farmers of near Edwardsville were forced to march through the streets of that city yesterday, carrying the liquor-making apparatus found on their farm and containers of the manufactured liquor. Six hundred school teachers attending the annual county convention were among the spectators of the parade.

The prisoners, William and Clarence Smiley, Charles Knopski and Victor Saucaeviski, were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Harry Hildreth in a raid on their farm three miles from Edwardsville. Hildreth and his assistants destroyed 350 gallons of mash. The men were held for the grand jury, for prosecution under the Illinois search and seizure act, by Justice of the Peace James B. Dale.

County officials had been aware for some weeks of the presence of liquor in Maryville, a coal mining town between Edwardsville and Collinsville, and several days ago traced the liquor to the farm. The local authorities reported to the Federal agents, but no action was taken until the Sheriff's raid.

In the march to Edwardsville one of the farmers carried a copper coil, another carried a boiler, and the other two jugs and demijohns of whisky.

NEW POLICE BOARD HEAD VISITS THE DEPARTMENT

Victor J. Miller, whose appointment as president of the Board of Police Commissioners has been announced by Gov. Hyde, paid a call at Police Headquarters yesterday afternoon, visiting Chief of Police O'Brien and Chief of Detectives Hannegan. Miller has announced that he intends to devote three hours daily to the affairs of the department.

He was directed to Chief O'Brien's office and introduced himself and then was introduced by the Chief to Chief Hannegan. The department heads then took Miller through the building. Miller told the chiefs that the purpose of his visit was to pay his respects to the department.

HARDING HAS NO PLAN FOR MEETING ON DISARMAMENT

President-Elect, However, Says Idea Fits in With General Scheme for Association of Nations.

THOUGHT ON IT TO COME AFTER MARCH 4

He Pushes Button Opening Lincoln Banquet in Seattle and Attends Service at St. Augustine.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Feb. 12.—While the Cabinet problem was taking on new elements of uncertainty today, President-elect Harding let it be known that his plans on international peace and armament also are far from definite formulation. Taking note of published reports that a disarmament conference would be called early in the new administration, Mr. Harding said he has made no such plans, although the idea fitted in with his general scheme for an association of nations. It was a feature of the problem, he added, to which he would give no specific attention until he came into the presidency and was fully advised as to the status of diplomatic relations with the other powers.

Repeatedly the President-elect has included reduction of armaments among the requirements for a peace association and his close advisers believe the subject will receive his earnest attention as soon as he takes up negotiations for his peace plan.

Attends Lincoln Service.

Today's Cabinet discussions concerned chiefly Charles G. Dawes and Frank O. Lowden, both of Illinois, and mentioned for the posts of Secretary of the Treasury and Secretary of the Navy, respectively, the net result was to leave more in doubt than ever whether either would be a member of Mr. Harding's official family.

Tonight Mr. Harding took part in two Lincoln's birthday celebrations, pressing a button to open a banquet in Seattle, Wash., and during the evening attending a Lincoln memorial service held in the lobby of his hotel.

Mr. Harding made a short talk at the memorial meeting, paying tribute to Lincoln as "the greatest American and the supreme human being since the days of Calvary." He said it was the nation's highest destiny to cling to the nationality inherited from Lincoln and to make it a proud boast to be an American citizen.

"Although the nation must play its full part in the world," he added, "it must first of all guard against surrender of its national principles."

Charles G. Dawes had an hour's conference with the President-elect today and went away without answering any questions about his chances of appointment to the Cabinet.

"I haven't a word to say," he told newspaper men as he came from the President-elect's office. "Let Mr. Harding do the talking."

Reminded that during his recent spectacular appearance before a congressional war investigation he had said he would not go into politics, Dawes replied: "Well, do you think I am going in? If you do you have some imagination."

Harding Also Silent.

Harding also declined to throw any light on what passed during the talk, except to say that they discussed co-ordination among the Government departments in the light of Dawes' experience in the army in France.

"It was the most illuminating hour I have experienced since I was elected President," said Mr. Harding, and that closed the subject.

Once conceded to have first call on the Treasury portfolio, but more recently regarded as a less formidable contender for the place, Dawes has become one of the mystery men of the Cabinet problem. It was said at Harding headquarters that his call was not the result of a formal appointment made at Mr. Harding's request, but in some quarters the fact of his coming at this time was interpreted as evidence that he still is being considered for some high Government position.

Dawes is in Florida to visit relatives, having come from Washington.

KING GEORGE APPROVES NEW APPOINTMENT FOR CHURCHILL

He Is to Be Secretary for Colonies and Sir Laming Worthington Evans War Secretary.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—King George today approved the appointment of Winston Spencer Churchill as Secretary for the Colonies; Sir Laming Worthington Evans as Secretary for War; Lord Lee of Fareham as First Lord of the Admiralty, and Sir Arthur Griffith-Boscawen as president of the Board of Agriculture.

Says Verdict Was Based on Passion.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 12.—A verdict based on passion and prejudice induced by Chicago newspaper publicity condemned Gene Geary, alleged Chicago gunman, to hang, the Supreme Court was told today by one of Geary's counsel, Michael J. Ahern, in asking that the lower court's verdict be set aside and a new trial granted. "Geary is insane," the lawyer added.

SHIP PRODUCTION ASTOUNDED EUROPE HURLEY TESTIFIES

Former Board Chairman Tells House Committee of Effect of Nation's Whirlwind War Work.

ALLIES AND ENEMY EQUALLY AMAZED

Enlisting of Schwab Frightened Germans, Heartened French and Enthused British, Clemenceau Told Him.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Both the allies and the Germans were astounded at the rapidity with which the Shipping Board constructed ships after the United States entered the war, the House Committee investigating the board's operations was informed today by E. N. Hurley of Chicago, who was chairman of the board from July, 1917, to the summer of 1919.

High Government officials in England, France and Italy told him, during a visit to Europe after the armistice, Hurley said, that they were highly pleased at the achievements of the board, which, he added, built ships faster than those countries had thought possible. He learned also, he said, that the Germans, too, had been amazed at the board's construction program.

The former chairman discussed the favorable comment he had heard abroad after touching in a general way on criticisms directed at the board in this country. Admitting that mistakes had been made, Hurley said that was inevitable, since it was necessary to create a mammoth organization in a short time.

"We delivered the ships," he declared. "That's what we were supposed to do."

Shipping Board officers profited by their mistakes and took pains not to repeat them, the witness said, adding that the country could view with pride the accomplishments of the board. The ships it put into use, he declared, helped turn the tide at the most critical period of the war.

Hurley paid tribute to the men associated with him, especially Charles M. Schwab, who, he said, had been drafted to take charge of construction when satisfactory progress was not being made. At the peace conference, Hurley continued, Clemenceau told him that the appointment of Schwab had frightened the Germans, heartened the French and enthused the British.

"I know that his appointment," he added, "inspired the American people to get behind the shipbuilding program."

He expressed optimism over the future of the American merchant marine, but said that too many ships might prove a liability in case sufficient cargoes could not be obtained for them.

Junking of the Government's fleet of wooden ships was favored by Hurley, who said the vessels were no longer of any use or practical value.

anything like that and get away with it down here.'"

McDowell said that after the evictions, Felts and his men were preparing to leave Matewan. They were approached by Hatfield, who told Felts that warrants for their arrests had been sworn out in Williamson and were coming on the next train.

Opponents Walked Arm in Arm.

To this, the witness said, Felts replied: "Sid, I've got a warrant for you, too." Hatfield laughed, McDowell continued, and arm in arm he and Felts walked toward the hardware store, in front of which the first shot was fired.

A door leading to a jury room behind the Judge's bench, was used by Attorney Coniff to illustrate the doorway of the hardware store. He took the witness to the doorway and had him point out where the principal actors in the shooting were standing. Efforts of the State to prevent this display was overruled.

It was further brought out in the cross-examination that "fully 100 rounds of ammunition" were fired at the Baldwin-Felts men before one of them was able to return the fire. Persistent questioning as to who fired the first shot always brought the answer that he did not know.

McDowell said he ran to a telephone pole and opened fire on Reece Chambers, who, according to the witness, was "bringing his gun into play." By this time the fight was on in earnest and rifles and pistols were cracking on every side. He did not know who was shooting at him nor could he see from where the shots came.

EIGHT MEN KIDNAP TEXAN

Captive Was Tarred and Feathered Recently by Masked Men.

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Texas, Feb. 12.—Eight masked men today kidnaped B. W. Hobbs, at Alvin, south of Houston, and fled to the country in motor cars, according to reports received here. Hobbs was tarred and feathered by a masked group of men in Houston Saturday night.

ENGINEER FORCED TO RUN TRAIN INTO AMBUSH IN CORK

Armed Men in Cab Ordered Halt in Cut, Where Heavy Fire on Soldiers' Car Was Opened by 200 Attackers.

EQUIPMENT AND RIFLES SEIZED

Official Report Says Repetition of Attack Will Lead to Closing of Railroad in Martial Law Area.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Feb. 12.—An official report of the attack on a passenger train in Cork today, reported in news dispatches from that city, says the train was about to leave Mallow Station when armed men boarded the engine and compelled the engineer to proceed until the train had reached a cut near the Mill Street Station. There it was halted and a heavy fire immediately opened upon the foremost car, in which 14 soldiers were riding.

A fight lasting a quarter of an hour followed, in which a Sergeant was killed and one officer and five soldiers were wounded, four seriously. Rifles and equipment were taken by the attacking party, which numbered 200 men, and the engineer was ordered to proceed.

In view of this and of similar incidents involving danger to railway men and pasengers, the official report says a repetition of the occurrence will lead to the closing of the railway in the martial law area in which the attack occurred.

One man was killed by a police volley today at Clondrohid Bridge in the martial law area, which armed men destroyed yesterday. An attack was made last night on the barracks at Elphin, County Roscommon. The police held out all night, although explosives were used in the attack.

Report of British Troops Carrying Bags From U. S. Consulate Denied.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The Evening News today printed a dispatch from Cork which said much excitement had been caused at the Cove (Queenstown), by the visit of a party of troops to the American Consulate. The message said the military had carried off some leather bags to the Royal Irish Constabulary barracks at Westview, the contents of the bags not being known. Inquiry at Queenstown, however, evoked a denial that there had been any invasion of the American governmental premises there.

American Relief Committee Plans Taken Up.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Feb. 12.—Whether the American committee for relief in Ireland, which recently arrived, will be permitted to execute its plans depends upon a joint conference of the civil and military authorities which will be held soon to decide this question. Members of the committee with the American Consul, visited Dublin Castle today and had a long interview with Sir John Anderson, the under-secretary, and Gen. MacReady both of whom displayed interest in the intentions of the committee, but opposed the plan for the distribution of money and supplies. The prime object of the committee is to aid in reconstruction.

It was pointed out by the officials of the Irish Government that no chance could be risked of the money becoming diverted to the hands of the Republican army. It was suggested to the committee to spend a few days in Belfast and Donegal, and investigate the field for relief work there while the authorities were considering the scope that should be allowed the committee's operations. It is understood that the committee accepted the suggestion, and will probably go to Belfast, after visiting Barbriggan Monday.

It was intimated to the committee that its relief work, if permitted at all in martial law areas, will be sharply defined and that the committee would not be permitted to alleviate the effects of punishment officials inflicted for attacks on the crown forces. The committee this morning visited the Lord Mayor and Archbishop Walsh.

Labor Party Aiding Campaign Against Government's Irish Policy.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The Labor party and Peace-With-Ireland Council for the last few weeks have been conducting a campaign through public meetings throughout the country, intended to arose the English people to denunciation of the Government policy of repression in Ireland. The leaders of the movement report that great success is being attained.

Lord Buckmaster, presiding at such a meeting at Golder's Green today, declared that conditions in Ireland were calculated to corrode the very foundations of the British empire.

"We do not claim to be imitation Gladstones, as the Premier sarcastically described us the other day," said Lord Buckmaster. "But if we were we would light such a flame in England as would not be quenched until it had consumed this Government and the evil it has done."

Pastoral Letter by Cardinal Bourne on Irish Situation

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 12.

CARDINAL BOURNE, Archbishop of Westminster, in a pastoral letter to his Archdiocese, which will be read in the churches tomorrow, refers to the "horror and outrages" in Ireland.

"In the midst of this welter, of confusion," the letter continues, "I have grave reason to fear that some of my own flock, impelled by legitimate love of country and urgent longing for realization of their lawful aspirations, are unwarily allowing themselves to become implicated, by active sympathy or even actual co-operation, in societies and organizations which are in opposition to the laws of God and the Catholic Church."

Cardinal Bourne refers to the warning of Cardinal Manning in 1867, in which Catholics were reminded that the church, through the Pope, had declared all conspiracy, whether against the church or state, was a sin against the former because it could not be without heresy and apostacy and against the latter because it was rebellion.

Cardinal Bourne concludes by declaring that Parliament should deal "justly and promptly with this tragedy in Ireland."

mitteeman, and about two-thirds of these precinct committeemen are on the city's payroll. This may incline the precinct workers to favor the Mayor's continuance, even though ward committeemen may be indifferent or hostile to the Mayor.

Speculation on Democratic Vote.

The possible effect of the Democratic vote in the Republican primary is the subject of much speculation, as the primary day draws nearer without bringing any Democratic aspirant who is acceptable to the Democratic City Committee as a candidate. If there should be no Democratic candidate in the primary, which is considered unlikely, or if there should be one candidate without substantial opposition, it would be hard to keep Democrats from helping the Republicans in the selection of their candidate. Some Democrats, in such a case, would vote for the best man among the Republican candidates; some would vote for the man who, in their opinion, would be the weakest candidate, in the hope that the Democratic nominee might beat him in the election.

Supporters of the Mayor believe that if a large Democratic vote is cast in the Republican primary, Kiel will benefit by it. They point to the enthusiastic reception which he had recently at the MacSwiney demonstration in the Odeon, when he made a talk indorsing the Sinn Fein cause.

There is no practicable way, under the primary statute, of preventing Democrats from voting in the Republican primary, or vice versa, if they are willing to give up the privilege of voting in the primary of their own party.

Negro Files in Aldermanic Race From Twenty-third Ward.

Charles J. Gates of 4124 Cook avenue, a negro undertaker, has filed his candidacy for Alderman from the Twenty-third Ward, in the Republican primary March 11. He is the second negro candidate, Aaron W. Lloyd having filed for the nomination from the Seventeenth Ward.

Candidates for Alderman from each ward will be nominated by city-wide vote. There are three white candidates for Alderman from the Twenty-third, and at least one more is expected to file before Feb. 28. There are two white candidates from the Seventeenth. Some negro leaders are urging a concentration of the negro vote, throughout the city, on negro candidates, in the hope of nominating them through the split in the vote for the white candidates.

DOCTORS ASK WHY THEY CAN'T PRESCRIBE BEER FOR PATIENTS

Point to Its Greater Value Than Whisky in Some Cases—Ruling Up to Palmer.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—A ruling as to whether physicians can prescribe beer for sick people under the terms of the prohibition enforcement act was sought from Attorney-General Palmer today by the Treasury Department.

Assistant Secretary McLean explained that since the recent order permitting physicians to prescribe wine in unlimited quantities, many inquiries had been received from doctors asking why the right to use beer for medical purposes was denied. The argument was advanced, McLean said, that beer had a lower alcoholic content than wine and for some ailments, particularly various forms of weakness, its medicinal properties were more valuable.

PRIEST TO BE CONSUL TO ROME

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 12.—It developed here today that the consent of Archbishop Henry Moeller to the withdrawal of the Rev. Father Joseph M. Denning of the Marion, O., Church in this diocese to become United States Consul to Rome was given after earnest entreaty from the apostolic delegate to the United States from Rome. The Rev. Father Denning, has been pastor of St. Mary's Church at Marion, and it is stated officially is a personal friend of President-elect Harding.

The appointment will be made official soon after the President-elect's inauguration.

PLAN TO BUILD CEMENT PLANT WITH ROAD FUNDS

Representative Dyatt Would Borrow Money and Make Payment in Cement.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 12.—A plan to finance a State cement plant out of the proceeds of the $60,000,000 road bond issue, should the investigation now being conducted by a House committee indicate that one can be operated profitably by the State, has been evolved by Chairman Dyott of the House Committee.

Dyott has suggested, and intends to propose to the Cement and Road Committees of the House and Gov. Hyde that the plant can be built out of a loan from the road bond money which could be repaid in cement.

Dyott pointed out that, regardless of what sort of roads are built, great quantities of cement will have to be used in the construction of culverts and bridges, retaining walls and other incidentals to the highways.

Data Points to Saving.

Dyott's committee has been hearing the testimony of geologists and engineers as to the location of materials for the manufacture of cement in Missouri and the probable cost of erecting and operating a State plant, and has been furnished estimates that indicate cement can be produced for as low as $1.50 a barrel, while it now is selling in St. Louis, for instance, at a figure considerably in excess of $4.

The next step in the investigation, Dyott said, will be to invite representatives of the companies now manufacturing cement in Missouri to appear before the committee early in the week.

For Auto Tag Charge.

Dyott, who also is chairman of the House Roads Committee, has in addition a plan to save the State a substantial annual sum on automobile license tags.

Dyott's idea, obtained from the plan now in operation in Wyoming, is to provide a plate number of a specified combination, say red and white, as at present, which would bear the State name and permanent number of the automobilist to whom it is issued, while the numerals indicating the year would be on a smaller plate of different color, attached to the large plate by screws, and which could be changed from year to year at a cost considerably less than that of changing the entire plate each year. This system, it is believed, would greatly increase the State's revenue from automobile licenses.

High Temperature in Denmark Sets New Record—May Build Wireless Station to Make Experiments.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Europe is enjoying the same unusually mild winter that prevails in the United States. On some days during January the temperature in Denmark was higher than ever before recorded in that country. Norway has experienced the mildest winter since 1905-06.

Some scientists claim that the unusually mild weather is due to conditions in the north polar region. Very little ice has come out of the polar basin. Large stretches of water which usually are covered with ice this winter have remained open.

To determine the influence of climatic conditions in the polar region on weather changes in the northern hemisphere, plans are under consideration in Denmark for erecting a wireless station in southern Greenland. The project is interesting scientists in all countries and the British Government has recently approached Denmark on the subject. If a wireless meteorological station is built in Greenland it probably will be supported financially by other countries as well as by Denmark.

DINNER CLOSES CONVENTION OF PRINCETON ALUMNI

Dr. John Grier Hibben, President of University, and Isaac Lionberger Speak at University Club.

POLICY TO PROMOTE DEMOCRACY OUTLINED

St. Louis Graduate Cites Lessons of War in Criticising Deficiencies of Present University Training.

The first annual meeting of the National Alumni Association of Princeton University ended with a dinner at the University Club last night. The principal speakers were Dr. John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton, a member of the class of 1882, and Isaac H. Lionberger of St. Louis, a member of the class of '75.

President Hibben outlined the policy by which it is intended to insure that Princeton shall be a democratic institution, representative of the entire country rather than of any section, and without distinction between rich and poor students. Lionberger criticised deficiencies in university training, his remarks applying both to Princeton and to other institutions. His criticism included utterances of President Wilson, who was the head of Princeton from 1902 to 1910.

"In former days," President Hibben said, "when the need of the world was not so obvious or so acute, our young men were sent to college for the most part in order that they might fit themselves for a career. Such a purpose naturally fired them with an ambition in which self-interest was predominant. But out of the chaos and confusion of present conditions, with the new demands of the new world of today, life can no longer be regarded merely as a career but rather as a mission. The men who go out of our universities dare not be consumers merely of the world's goods, but must be primarily and essentially producers, not only as regards the material things of life, but as regards the intellectual, moral and spiritual values as well."

Establish Regional Scholarships.

Dr. Hibben told of the decision of the Princeton authorities to establish regional scholarship, to attract men from sections other than that in which the university is located.

"We are also determined," he said, "to guard with jealous care another of our most highly prized traditions, namely, that the possession of wealth is never in itself an advantage to a man, nor the lack of it a handicap, in his university career. By virtue of what he is and not what he has, one makes his way at Princeton.

"In order that we may give a chance to every man of merit whose circumstances in life may necessitate his working during his college course to support himself, wholly or in part, we have established a number of new scholarships that may be available for men of this type. We have given these scholarships particular value in the world war. We have established scholarships, each of which will bear the name of one of the 149 Princeton men who sacrificed their lives in war service. And I am confident that every one who may receive the award of such a scholarship will be conscious of a heightened sense of responsibility to play the man and prove himself worthy of all that such a trust implies.

"The board of trustees, moreover, has committed itself to a policy of remitting the tuition in whole or in part in the case of deserving students who come to us, knocking at our doors for entrance, and who are dependent on their own resources and sacrifice for an education. In order that we may wipe out all distinctions between men of different circumstances in life, the four new dormitories which we expect soon to erect will have in them, side by side, the most expensive rooms on the campus and the least expensive, so that even our physical environment may serve to create and foster a genuine spirit of democracy."

Proposes Limiting Student Body.

Dr. Hibben expressed the belief that it would be wise to limit the Princeton student body to a total of 2000 undergraduates. There are now about 1800. "Our ambition," he said, "is not a big university, but a great one." He said that if a limit were fixed, standards of selective choice would become necessary, and that it would be necessary to examine the school record of applicants, as to scholarship, character and qualities of leadership and co-operation.

"The call now," he said, "is for men whose disciplined thought can quickly penetrate the superficial plausibility of the theories of the day, born either of fanaticism or of fear, and can discover the fundamental fallacy underlying them; men who are able to lift themselves above passion and prejudice and class jealousy, and the selfish greed of the herd about them. Such men our universities must furnish, and this task they can accomplish only by creating, and causing to prevail throughout the whole of the university life, that spirit of idealism which is the need and the demand of the present age."

Lionberger, in his criticism of university methods, cited his own experience, saying, "In my own case college did not turn out anything like an educated man.

There was no department in the university which taught me how to defend myself against imposture, quackery, plausibility or fanaticism. None told me either the meaning of words or how to repel their tyranny. I had no opportunity to ask questions.

"The baccalaureate sermons were influential with us. I have heard many and none which did not tell the graduates that they had been equipped to make the world a better place to live in. Every one of them enjoined the duty to influence, to improve, to raise others to our own level; and not one of them explained precisely what it meant us to do. Mr. Wilson, for example, claimed for us the spiritual leadership of the world, but he did not tell us on what ground he based his claim, nor to what goal we should lead the world. Peace, the right of self-determination, righteousness, are words, high-sounding perhaps, but still mere words, for there is a peace which is dishonorable, and we properly denied to the South the right to establish its own institutions, and righteousness may be what I think and not what another conceives it to be, and not what is in fact righteous. Such vague notions, eloquently expressed, captured our fancies and filled us with a comfortable self-complacency, for they required no thinking and gave a certain emotion which seemed not altogether ungenerous.

"War Shattered Conventions."

"The recent war shattered the conventions by which we lived. Every tradition was disregarded, every institution was challenged. We conscripted our sons and sent them to fight an alien's battle, dedicating them to sacrifice on strange altars; we appropriated private property scornfully, as if the owner were a thief; we forbade men to use wine even to strengthen the bonds of amity or celebrate a marriage; we emancipated women to sordid uses and thrust them into offices and duties which cannot but impair the peace and serenity of the home. We convinced the laborer that the community owed him a living and even tried by law to compel employers to pay $2 for work worth $1. We told the farmers that they had a right to exact more for wheat than it was worth in the market, and we said to the borrowers: You may borrow more than the banks have to lend and to the banks: You may lend more than your resources justify. Scorning the work of patient time, we tore asunder the laborious fabric of centuries of progress and shattered old notions in order to set up mushroom states which had never known the problems of liberty.

"A new creed was substituted for the old; riches without work, liberty without character, the franchise without responsibility, happiness without goodness, the right to live at another's cost. Dissatisfied with the old laws interpreted by the courts and therefore intelligible, we made new ones—rashly, inconsiderately, impatiently. We created an amazing number of new offices and eagerly rushed to strange untried and silly expedients to raise money. We taxed property, service and the income from property. We searched, seized and deported without a hearing, and gave to the executive authorities an unfettered power such as no tyrant has ever enjoyed. Heedlessly disregarding the limitations of fundamental law and time-honored principles as though they were obsolete barriers to progress, and having invented many new words and perverted to strange uses old ones, we called this man 'profiteer' and that one 'bolshevist' and used him accordingly. Fascinated by the word 'propaganda,' we filled the newspapers of the land with the partisan reports of paid officials. We complained of the high cost of living and encouraged the 'stabilization' of prices. Having invented a reserve system, we approved the issue of fiat money and made finance corporations and manufactured credit. Under the guise of government ownership, we crippled the railroads and impaired their service. We pretended that conscripted soldiers were all heroes. Having fought for the freedom of the seas and the removal of economic barriers, we set up a multitude of little states to vex each other by customs laws, and acknowledged the right of England to prevent access to its enemies even by seizure in mid-ocean.

"None of these agitating innovations was quite understood by us; we lacked the faculty to judge of them. Roused by sensational newspapers, denied the opportunity to hear the other side, we were swept along the current of what we deemed public opinion to all sorts of strange extravagances, and mightily rejoiced in out patriotic emotions. The university might have made us less credulous. Never before was there a more urgent demand for that "complete and generous education which fits a man to perform justly, skilfully and magnanimously all the offices, both public and private, of peace and of war." What is a university but a great treasury of experience? It teaches the past and pretends to interpret that past. It does not do so. It has made us familiar with dates and names, but it has not explained to us the meaning of history, literature, politics or science. It did not give us that knowledge which might have enabled us to realize that there is nothing new under the sun, that the problems of today expressed in A, B and C are but the problems of yesterday which were expressed in X, Y and Z; that from the beginning what is good and bad, what is expedient and inexpedient, what is just and unjust, what is new and old, have been in incessant conflict and that over and over again the same expedients have been tried with the same results.

Should Have Cited Blunders.

"College might have taught us that mere laws have never secured good government. None but an ignoramus could have assumed that a sumptuary law which denies temptation to weakness can result in anything but a cloistered and fugitive virtue unsuitable to the many character. College might have told us that since the beginning none has been able to eat bread save in the sweat of his face; it might have pointed out the innumerable instances in which price regulation has resulted in the very evils against which it was directed; it might have told us the meaning of 'not worth a continental,' and all the miseries which resulted from the use by our ancestors of paper money, and warned us against inflation and artificial credits and finance corporations; it might have told us that inflation always increases the cost of war, and that exports are profitable only when they result in the exchange of goods for goods.

"It might have taught us the value of free speech and the dangers involved in midnight searches and seizures. It might have explained the economic value of capital and the perils involved in excessive waste and taxation. It might have informed us that the sanctity of treaties has never depended upon the engagement of words and that since the days of Solon no league has ever curbed the rapacity of the strong; and it might have informed us that our own solemn league of confederated colonies, composed of people of the same blood engaged in a common struggle for emancipation from a common tyranny, failed in every crisis of that struggle. It might have told us that Napoleon tried to set up a barrier against his enemies by the creation of the Rhine Federation, and that that federation afforded a basis for the German Empire. It might have presented to us that amazing series of sins and punishments blunders and afflictions, aims and disappointments which constitute the history of the world—but it did not."

Lionberger, in outlining improvements in university spirit and methods which he considered possible, said the normal man has always been eager to learn, and that the question-and-answer method of instruction, as pursued by the teachers of ancient Greece, teaching how to think, is preferable to a system that undertakes to teach what to think.

At an afternoon meeting at Hotel Statler, three speakers told of ideas in education that have been introduced at Princeton in recent years, and outlined plans for future development.

Dr. Joseph E. Raycroft, professor of hygiene and physical education and director of the department of physical education, who was in charge of physical training at all of the army camps during the war, told of the part that scientific physical training was playing at the university in "better education." Every student is required to take a course in physical education, and must take a physical efficiency test on entering the university.

Dean Howard McClenahan described the honor system, which was carried out to such an extent that even instructors did not remain in rooms while examinations were going on to see whether the students "cheated."

Plans for the erection of more and larger dormitories for the students were outlined by George C. Wintringer, controller of the university.

A film, "Princeton," was shown at a luncheon at the Statler yesterday. Student songs were sung by the alumni.

Clement Seaman in Will Pays High Tribute to Wife

Pioneer Traction Magnate Leaves Acknowledgment of Great Debt Owed to Her as "the Real Architect."

Clement M. Seaman, 86 years old, of 5554 Delmar boulevard, pioneer steamboat owner and traction magnate, who died Wednesday and whose will was filed yesterday for probate, paid an uncommon tribute to the lifelong aid and devotion of his wife, whom he married in St. Louis 54 years ago and to whom he bequeathed all except $20,000 of his estate. This reference to Mrs. Seaman is as follows:

"Among the many other bright and beautiful blessings showered upon me by an ever beneficent Providence. I deem the most precious that it was my happy lot, early in life, to win the friendship of my dearly beloved wife, Ada C. Seaman, and to gain her affection after a long friendship by the very qualities I was enabled to acquire through my intimate association with her and knowledge of the nobility, purity and unselfishness of her lovely nature.

"Since the time of my early youth to my present old age all the joys I have so abundantly possessed were attained solely through her influence and love, for even my material possessions were acquired from the noble stimulus of a desire to please her and make myself the purveyor of her happiness.

"I deem it fitting that this acknowledgment should be made of the great debt I owe her, and that at my death, should she survive me, substantially all my possessions, of which she was the real promoter and architect, should pass and revert solely to her as a slight token of my undying affection."

Mrs. Seaman is named executrix in the will, which was filed for probate today. A codicil bequeaths $20,000 to Charles W. Isaacs, a brother-in-law for friendship and valuable services."

Information on the value of the estate will not be known until an inventory is filed.

The funeral was held Friday, and burial was in Bellefontaine Cemetery. Mrs. Seaman is under the care of a nurse, and could not be seen for a statement. Isaacs, her brother, who has helped look after the business affairs of Seaman in recent years, said Seaman had been a friend of the Isaacs family since boyhood.

Both families lived in New York City, and Seaman and his wife's elder brother were schoolmates at old Trinity School. After being graduated, Seaman entered the insurance field, and later came to St. Louis and purchased a steamboat, which plied the Missouri River, between this city and Fort Benton, Mont. Later on he sent for his boyhood sweetheart, and they were married in this city.

At that period the late John Scullin, was building street railway lines, and interested Seaman in his ventures. Seaman became a stockholder and later an official of the Depot Lines. He was also interested jointly with Scullin in other business enterprises having to do with the development of St. Louis.

Exactly what part Mrs. Seaman took as "the real promoter and architect" of her husband's fortune could not be ascertained, as Isaacs said discussion of the subject at this time would be indelicate.

He said he did not believe Mrs. Seaman actually took a practical part in her husband's business affairs, but by daily living the duties of wife and spiritual adviser, was a constant source of inspiration.

Mr. and Mrs. Seaman were communicants of the Episcopal Church of the Assumption, and for the last 27 years, during which Seaman has been retired from business, they traveled extensively.

ST. LOUIS VOTE ON BILLS TO INCREASE SALARIES PROPOSED

Dent County Representative Says It Is Clear That Masses Here Have Little Voice in Such Measures.

WILL AID MOVE IF PROPERLY BACKED

Lumping of Increase Measures and State-Wide Referendum on Them May Be Necessary Under Law.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 12.—A referendum in St. Louis on proposed salary increases and the creation of new offices there, which will mean greatly increased expenditures by the city, variously estimated in excess of $500,000 a year, was suggested today by Representative Elmer of Dent County, a Republican.

"A country member of the Legislature hesitates to meddle in the affairs of the cities," Elmer said, "but it is readily to be seen that the great messes of the citizens have little voice, for instance, in the drafting of bills sent here from St. Louis to create new jobs and greatly increase the salaries of some of those already in existence.

Holds People Have Rights.

"I feel that the people have a right to say whether these salaries shall be increased, and if a petition, backed by reputable people and signed by enough of them to show that the movement really represents somebody, I will sponsor a measure in the House to refer these salary increases to the people."

Though the legality of such a referendum is doubtful, Elmer said that he believed that it legally could be held on such measures, though the constitutional referendum provision does not specifically set out such a proceeding, except in the reference of ordinances enacted by city councils in cities of the first and second classes.

State-wide Vote Suggested.

It was pointed out, however, that should it be found impossible to hold such a referendum in St. Louis alone, all of the salary increases sought for various offices in widely separated parts of the State could be lumped in one measure and the whole referred to a State-wide vote.

The bill to increase salaries in the Police Department, and that to create four new Circuit Judgeships at an estimated cost of $110,000 the first year, would provide the largest addition to expenses of the City of St. Louis bills now pending.

It was pointed out that such measures have been gotten through the Legislature in the past by "log-rolling" methods, in which St. Louis members traded votes with country members who also had pet bills to pass.

Lieutenant's Coat Taken by Burglars

The uniform coat of a First Lieutenant, two pairs of trousers and 56 bolts of cloth were stolen by burglars from the tailor shop of J. Winterman, 3158 South Grand avenue, early yesterday. Winterman valued the stolen articles at $1200. The burglars "jimmied" the front door. They left two pinch bars and a screw driver.

ELECTION REFORM HERE MENACED BY SENATE COMBINE

Policy of Prolonged Delay on Election Bills Begins to Subject Administration to Criticism.

EXCUSES ARE MADE TO WOMEN

General Primary Bill and Smaller-Cities Election Measure Still Slumber in Senate Committee.

By a Staff Corespondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 12.—Election reform in St. Louis defeated in the Legislature two years ago by the Republican organization controlled by legislators from St. Louis, is menaced again by the Lloyd Senate combine, influenced to a policy of prolonged delay in the election bills by the Republican Senators from St. Louis.

Efforts of the League of Women Voters to obtain reports by the Senate Elections Committee on two of the more important reform measures, particularly the Bar Association's primary election bill, have met with one excuse after another from Chairman Proctor of the committee, but have not caused the bills to be reported.

The situation is very similar to the one existing two years ago when Kansas City Republicans introduced election bills applicable only to Kansas City. At that time John Schmoll, then chairman of the City Committee in St. Louis, and Senator Spencer wrote letters to members stating that the reform legislation was wanted for Kansas City, but was not desired in St. Louis. This year the bills were drawn to apply to the entire State, but in the meantime Kansas City has come under the control of the Republicans, and there is a marked falling off in the enthusiasm of Kansas City Republicans for changes in the election laws.

Causing Criticism.

While there is no indication that Gov. Hyde has weakened in his position for new laws governing elections, the delays caused by party leaders have begun to subject the entire administration to criticism, and have aroused in some quarters, where it is contended the Governor could force the bills from the committee if he would exercise the powers of his office, a question as to the party sincerity in its promises of reforms.

A comprehensive program of election and primary reforms directed at existing evils emerged from a conference here called by Hyde and held soon after the Legislature convened, at which Kansas City and St. Louis Republican Election Board officials of both cities and women's organizations of Kansas City, St. Joseph and St. Louis as well as the Missouri League of Women Voters were present. There were four of these bills, an election bill applicable to the three larger cities, another for the smaller cities, a blanket ballot bill and a general primary bill.

Of these measures only two have emerged from the Senate committee and one of them was marred considerably in the view of the Hyde conferees by the blanket ballot, which had been decried in the conference as a device of city gang politics. The election bill for the larger cities came out without substantial change. It was drafted largely by anti-boss Republicans of Kansas City.

Bills in Committee.

The general primary bill, known as the St. Louis Bar Association primary bill, the skeleton for which was drafted at the Hyde conference, and the smaller-cities election bill, both of which are strongly supported by 19 women's organizations of the State, still slumber peacefully in the Senate committee, while antagonistic propaganda is being systematically scattered, particularly against the primary bill.

This measure confers express authority on the courts to compel opening of primary ballot boxes to permit a recount to determine fraud, and permits introduction of the ballots in court to establish criminal acts on the part of election officials and as evidence in contests. It enables the filing of contests by candidates ostensibly defeated on the face of primary returns.

Some of these provisions are believed to be the origin of opposition to it by St. Louis Republicans.

Lloyd, though only Lieutenant-Governor, a position not vested by the Constitution with legislative prerogative, has extended the sphere of his activities from the post of presiding officer of the Senate, where his duties were designed normally to cease, to dictating the trend of events throughout the administration. With consistency he has shown an active interest in the framing of the election bills, and now is said to be going even further.

One day last week when Chairman Stockard of the House Elections Committee was preparing to ask the House to take some action on one of the House election bills, Lloyd entered the public chamber and adjured Stockard to "be careful" with the bill, which had been set as a special order of business for about that hour. Stockard informed him that he intended to ask that the bill go over for a time to permit the preparation of additional amendments, whereupon Lloyd's interest in the subject ceased and he departed.

Joint Caucus Proposed.

It also was stated here tonight that Lloyd has passed around the word for a joint caucus of House and Senate Republicans for Monday night, at which Lloyd is to preside, where the fate of the election reforms will be settled.

Opposition to the Bar Association primary bill also has come from certain Kansas City politicians who object to its method of nominating judicial candidates. It provides for a convention, the delegates to which would be selected at the regular State primary. This convention would be held in Jefferson City, delegates coming from every county, their railroad fare paid at State expense from a fund into which would go the filing fees of all judicial candidates. The convention would meet by counties to select the local judicial candidates, by Appellate Court districts to name the candidates for Judges of the Courts of Appeals, and then together to choose the candidates for Supreme Judges.

Proctor has introduced four judicial primary bills, taking the nomination of judicial candidates from under the provisions of the primary law and providing for the holding of nominating conventions along much the same lines as the old-time conventions which were abolished with the enactment of the present primary laws.

The four major election bills have suffered no serious opposition in the House. That fact has put little encouragement into the hearts of the advocates of election reform, however, as they recognize the Senate, with its Lloyd caucus combine, as the "neck of the bottle" through which all legislation must be forced.

Chairman Stockard of the House Elections Committee introduced three of the major bills, Representative O'Donnell of Kansas City presenting the election bill applying to St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph. The four bills are all out of committee without serious change, and the blanket ballot bill has been engrossed without addition of the emblems. Stockard intends to try to obtain engrossment of some of the others early in the week.

The women's organizations which are bearing the principal burden of the fight for election reform, declare through their representative, Miss Marie Ames, that they care little about changes of details which are objectionable to any partisan group or faction.

"Our only desire is for laws which will assure clean primaries and elections and which will go as far as possible toward the nomination and election of candidates of high principle," Miss Ames said.

Those sentiments were echoed with emphasis by Mrs. George Gellhorn of St. Louis, president of the Missouri League of Women Voters, who was here today, and who said that organization is interested chiefly in the passage of "somebody's" primary and election bills which will raise the tone of Missouri primaries and elections.

GIRL FOUND, ALONE ON TRAIN FROM SOUTH

EDNA GRAHAM

MARLBOROUGH DUCHESS TO WED

Former Consuelo Vanderbilt Will Marry French Sportsman.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Cable dispatches just received here confirm the rumors of several months past that the Duchess of Marlborough, formerly Consuelo Vanderbilt, is to be married to Jacques Balsan, member of a wealthy French family and well-known sportsman.

The Duchess of Marlborough is the daughter of the late William K. Vanderbilt and the present Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont. She was married to the Duke in New York in 1895. In November of last year a final separation was effected by a decree of divorce. Jacques Balsan, with his brother, is proprietor of a great racing stable. For years he was interested in ballooning and once competed for the Gordon Bennett cup. He was the first private airplane owner in France.

SAYS CHILD TRAVELER HAS MOTHER IN DENVER

Former Resident of That City Identifies Girl of About 4, Taken From Train.

A girl about 4½ years old who was turned over to policewomen at Union Station yesterday on the arrival of a train from Atlanta, Ga., after passengers had bought her an outfit of clothing, was identified yesterday afternoon by Chris Basel of 1602 Market street, who went to police headquarters after reading about the child in the afternoon papers. He said she was Edna Graham, daughter of Mrs. Pearl Graham of Denver.

Basel said he and his wife were formerly neighbors of Mrs. Graham in Denver and Mrs. Basel had been permitted to take the child with her when she moved to Atlanta. Later the Basels separated and Basel came to St. Louis. The child when found on the train gave her name as Edna Basel.

George Herring, division passenger agent of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, also called at police headquarters after receiving a telegram from Atlanta saying that the girl had been taken from Mrs. Basel's custody by Juvenile Court officers there and placed on a train to be sent to her mother in Denver. Herring said he would have her sent to Denver under proper protection.

Child, Taken From Train Here, Was Traveling Under Legal Consent.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 12.—The little girl, taken from a train in St. Louis, was on the way to the home of her mother in Denver. Christopher Basil, a candymaker, now in St. Louis, and his wife, Marian, who is in Atlanta, had the child for some months.

The Basils formerly lived in Denver and took the little girl with her mother's consent. Juvenile Court authorities in Denver authorized Juvenile Court officials here to send the child to Denver.

HOUSTON IN EXECUTIVE SESSION TELLS OF FOREIGN LOANS

Senator Afterward Says More Than One Suggestion Has Been Made to Cancel British Debt.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—More than one suggestion that Great Britain's war debt to the United States be written off has come from British sources, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said today after Secretary Houston had been closeted with the committee for two hours discussing the status of American Government foreign loans.

Committee members said Secretary Houston had confirmed that the British Government had made a formal proposal to cancel the debt, and that the Treasury Department had refused.

First intimation that such a proposal had been made was given by J. Austen Chamberlain, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, in a recent address in England.

Some Senators said the course of Secretary Houston in dealing with such suggestions had been "eminently satisfactory."

Houston was said to have reiterated that the only course open to him was to follow the law authorizing the Treasury Department to exchange the present allied certificates of indebtedness for long term notes.

The Secretary read a long prepared statement to the committee detailing all payments to the allies and the present status of the loans. At his request no part of this was made public, but it was said to have been substantially the same as testimony given by him recently to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Members of the Foreign Relations Committee were said to have asked especially as to advances to the Kerensky Government, and the alleged use of funds to advanced by the Russian embassy here after the Kerensky Government was overthrown.

DANIELS AND MEREDITH TO PAY $140 FOR $65 CABINET CHAIRS

Baker Planned to Purchase Seat He Has Occupied, But Price Moves Him to Take Only Name Plate.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels and Secretary of Agriculture Meredith plan to keep the seats they occupied during the Cabinet sessions conducted by President Wilson. They have arranged to purchase the chairs they occupied in the Cabinet room at the White House.

Secretary of War Baker wanted to take his chair to Cleveland with him on his return to private law practice, but he discovered that the slump in the cost of living does not apply to furniture in the White House, so he compromised on the name plate on the back of his chair.

The chairs in the Cabinet room at the White House originally cost $65 each. When Secretary Daniels and Secretary Meredith called on the superintendent of the offices to purchase them they were surprised to discover that since the chairs were bought they have increased more than 100 per cent in value, and were asked to deposit $140 each. Secretary Baker was assessed $4.60 for the name plate.

FREE HEALTH LECTURE TODAY

The sixth of the series of 10 free popular lectures on health and medical topics, by members of the faculty of the Washington University School of Medicine, will be given at 3:30 this afternoon in the school auditorium, Euclid and Scott avenues.

Dr. Alan M. Chesney, associate professor of medicine, will speak on "Common Colds and Allied Diseases."

TRUCK HITS PATROL CARRYING INJURED MAN

Three Persons, Besides Man Previously Hurt, Injured When Wagon Is Thrown Against Tree.

A police patrol wagon, which was carrying to the city hospital a man who had been injured in an automobile accident, was struck by a motor truck at Tenth and O'Fallon streets, about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and three persons, besides the man on the way to the hospital, were injured.

John Akins of 824 North Market street was the man being carried to the hospital. He had lost control of his automobile on Montgomery street, west of Broadway, and it had run into a tree, throwing him against the windshield. The patrol wagon got him at Ninth and North Market streets. Patrolman Joseph Hotfelter, 69 years old, was on the wagon, which William O'Meara was driving.

At the O'Fallon street crossing, the patrol wagon was hit by a 10-ton truck of the Reid Bros.' Express Co. The wagon was thrown against the tree, and the policeman was caught between the tree and the rear of the wagon. The driver was thrown out, and William Etheridge of 1118 Cass avenue, who was on the sidewalk, was knocked down.

Truck Driver Arrested.

Patrolman Hotfelter suffered fractures of the skull and two ribs, and was taken to the City Hospital. Etheridge suffered scalp wounds and a possible skull fracture, and was also taken to the hospital. Akins was found to have scalp wounds, and was held as a prisoner, pending an inquiry into his condition at the time of the original accident. O'Meara, the driver, suffered scalp wounds, but did not go to the hospital. Odie Roberts, driver of the truck, was arrested. He said he did not see or hear the patrol wagon in time to stop.

Louis Hahn, 12 years old, son of Walter Hahn of 2909 South Jefferson avenue, was run down by a grocery truck while he was roller-skating on the sidewalk on Jefferson avenue, between Wyoming and Utah streets. The truck was turning an alley. The boy's left leg was fractured, and scalp wounds inflicted. The driver, Charles J. Hoffman of 3721 Missouri avenue was arrested.

Boy Suffers Broken Leg.

Peter Bruno, 12, of 911 North Ninth street, was knocked down by a Stix, Baer & Fuller store truck in crossing Twelfth street at St. Charles yesterday, and his left leg was broken. The driver, Harry Villhardt, was arrested.

Mrs. Anna Schoene, 53, of 1927 Burd avenue, fell as she was crossing Broadway at Pine street yesterday afternoon, and an automobile bruised her right arm.

Louis Rich Jr., 13, of 3201 Natural Bridge avenue, was hanging to the side of a Bellefontaine car, stealing a ride, yesterday afternoon, when he was knocked off by an automobile which was parked near the track on the 3900 block on Florissant avenue. Scalp wounds were inflicted.

WOMEN WANT REPRESENTATION ON STATE COLLEGE BOARDS

Missouri League of Women Voters to Ask Hyde to Name Women Curators of University.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 12.—Gov. Hyde will be asked by the Missouri League of Women voters to appoint women as members of the boards of regents of the five state teachers' colleges and of the board of curators of the University of Missouri, it was decided today at a meeting of the league's board of directors, held at Warrensburg.

Mrs. George Gellhorn of St. Louis, president of the league, who came here for a short stay after the meeting, said that members of the board felt that since the interest of women in the welfare of children was so great they should have a voice in the conduct of the institutions which train such a large part of the teachers who direct their children.

The board also decided to urge all of its local branches and allied organizations to bring to bear all possible pressure upon members of the Legislature to obtain the enactment of an efficient county unit school bill.

It was decided that the next State convention of the league will be held at Kansas City in May.

11 BABIES, TRIPLETS AND TWINS, FAKED IN MOTHER LOVE

Atlanta Wife Confesses and Tells How She Deceived Her Husband and the Neighbors for Many Years.

"INFERNAL LIE!" SAYS "FATHER" OF FAMILY

Even Her Triplets Were Bogus, Coming From Three Families — Has Three Children of Her Own.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 12.—An amazing story of mother-love came to light in Atlanta this week when Mrs. F. E. A. South confessed that the triplets supposedly born to her on New Year's eve were not her own; that twin girls born to her two years ago were not her own; that twin girls born to her four years ago were not her own; that she has reared 11 children whom even her husband believed to have been born to her, when, in reality, they were all adopted secretly because of her great desire for babies.

Mrs. South's husband, who is a clerk in a grocery store, first laughed when he was informed of his wife's confession, and then was indignant, declaring it was an "infernal lie."

"If she made such a statement it was because some sinister influence was at work on her," he declared. "They are all my children, and my neighbors will testify to the fact."

While Mrs. South fooled her husband, fooled the children, fooled the public, fooled everybody but herself and the institutions from which she procured the babies, she has committed no wrong in the eyes of the law.

Just Wanted Children.

"I don't like movies, I don't like theaters, I don't like to go out. The greatest thing in my life is children," she declared. "That is why I did it—because I love children and because I wanted to give them the best raising I could, especially the little nameless waifs in the maternity hospitals, who haven't got a chance in the world."

Mrs. South declared the reason she fooled her husband with triplets "born" on New Year's eve, but in reality procured from Mrs. M. R. Mitchell's maternity hospital, was because the women in charge of the "cradle roll" at St. Paul's Methodist Church, where she has her membership, had agreed to educate as missionaries the first born to a church member.

"I have raised all my children to be good men and women," declared Mrs. South, "and I saw here a chance to have three little ones brought up to go out and teach the gospel to the heathen."

Daughter of Minister.

Mrs. South said she is the daughter of a Methodist minister. She was brought up in a religious home, she declared, and she felt it was her duty to train as many good children as possible, whether they were her own or not. During her married life she has actually had thr children of her own, now grown up and married.

Mrs. South is 52 years old. More than 10 years ago, she said, her yearning for children to take the places of her grown-up sons and daughters was so overpowering that she hit upon the scheme of deceiving her husband with a "fake birth." As she succeeded in fooling him, she said, at annual intervals she adopted others.

Decides on Twins, Gets Them.

Four years ago, said Mrs. South, she decided to have twins. She got them from the maternity home, she said. They were boys, but both later died. So, two years ago, Mrs. South declares, she got two girls from the home which she palmed off as twins. And then the last day in December she procured three little girls from the home to serve as her triplets.

Mrs. Mitchell, who conducts the home, admitted Mrs. South's statement regarding these sets of triplets and twins. The triplets, said Mrs. Mitchell, were not really triplets, but were three little girls of three different mothers.

The "birth of the triplets" was first announced in the newspapers soon after New Year's. Their pictures were published, along with Mrs. South's and those of one pair of "twins." Hundreds of persons called at her home to see them. The church people were extremely interested, and the Associated Charities, to whom the case was reported on Jan. 11, sent out two loads of coal to help the family.

And then official Atlanta took note of the case. There began the first inkling any one had that the "triplets" might be bogus.

It was noted at the City Health Office at the city hall, where all births and deaths are reported by doctors, that no certificate of the "triplets'" birth had been turned in. An inspector was sent to the South home and to him Mrs. South gave the name of a doctor. No such doctor could be found. The inspector was puzzled. He reported his findings to the City Health Office. An attache of the office, having his suspicions and his own theory about the case, happened to mention it Friday morning to a newspaper reporter.

"Say," he ended, "why don't you try that maternity home on Windsor street? I'm willing to bet the 'triplets' came from there."

And his hunch proved correct, if the statement of Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. South's own confession are to be believed.

Taken From Maternity Hospital.

At least seven of the children, the "triplets" and two sets of twins, were obtained from Mrs. Mitchell, who operates a maternity hospital at 22 Windsor street. Unfortunate girls go there, and after their babies are born Mrs. Mitchell gives them out to other families. The practice is within the law and the institution is recognized by the police. Since the story became public Mrs. Mitchell said her telephone line had been kept busy with calls from mothers who had taken babies from her home begging her to guard their secret. In most instances both parents have knowledge of the origin of their adopted children, but she admitted there were other instances when wives had obtained babies from her without the knowledge of their husbands.

Mrs. South is a gaunt, middle-aged woman, strong but scrawny, her face a network of wrinkles that record the hardships and sacrifices she has undergone in order to gratify her love for children. She is religious almost to the point of fanaticism, an ardent member of the Methodist church.

The husband, R. E. A. South, is 60 years old. For years he has slaved as a clerk in a grocery store to support his steadily increasing family. He was once a saloon keeper, but sold out the business before Georgia went dry because his wife wished him to. His unquestioning faith in his wife is the chief reason why she has been able to deceive him with the protracted succession of babies, and his loyalty to her has safely carried them through their tremendous crisis.

Their home is a little one-story frame cottage at 23 Weyman avenue, in a section of small houses occupied mainly by laboring people, a clean little home crowded by its strange collection of adopted children.

How a husband who lived with his wife could have been deceived so often and for so many years is a natural question. Regardless of how it was accomplished there is no doubt but that he was sincerely ignorant of the true origin of the children he proudly claimed as his own.

Husband Was Duped.

There was a series of dramatic scenes when he learned how he had been duped. He got a taxicab and immediately went to see his wife.

He was sure she would deny having made the confession, but she repeated what she had said before and told him that none of the eleven children had been born to her.

"You have played hell!" shouted the husband, overcome by his anger and chagrin at the embarrassing position in which he was placed.

"Dear, I have done nothing wrong. I know God approves of my taking these helpless babies and caring for them as though they were my own," she answered.

"I know He does not approve. You have acted a lie for 14 years and made me slave my head off for somebody else's children. This is more than I can stand. Why have you fooled me this way?"

The wife, who had shrunk back at his denunciation, walked to him and caught his arm firmly.

"Because," she asserted with emphasis, "you denied me the privilege of motherhood for 20 long years, and then I brought these little ones into our home in another way. I know I have done no wrong."

"But why did you pile them up on me this way—and why didn't you tell me, and why didn't you—Oh, God, this is too much! What do you expect to do with this houseful of children that belong to someone else?"

"Keep them and train them and love them," she answered calmly. "What did you expect, Honey?"

"Well, I won't continue to work for them," he exclaimed. "You have played the devil, you deceived me for 14 years. You didn't love me right, and now the world will look on me as a pig-perfect idiot. I won't stand it."

In his anger, South told his wife to pack up his clothing, and he would leave. He did leave, but in half an hour he had returned, drawn back by love of the children to whom he had acted the part of a father and devotion to his wife which survived the storm.

For many hours, until late that night, the husband, the wife and the older children sat together and talked over their problem and prayed for guidance. The children were told, and each one, except the helpless "triplets" too young to plead their own case, begged the foster parents to keep them.

Finally, at South's insistence, his wife agreed to give up the "triplets," and he agreed to adoption of the other six. Saturday morning a nurse from the foundling home came and took away the three infants, and Mrs. South holding an armful of baby clothes went back into her room to weep alone.

Landis Answers Senator Who Would Impeach Him

Judge Repeats Remarks Made in Case of Youth Accused of Embezzlement, in Which He Blamed Bank Diretors for Conditions

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., Feb. 12.—Federal Judge K. M. Landis, in a speech tonight before the Iowa American Legion, answered charges made in Congress today by Senator Dial of South Carolina, who demanded impeachment of Judge Landis because of statements alleged to have been made in a trial in Chicago this week.

The statements related to a case in which a youth was charged with embezzling bank funds, wherein bank officials were criticised for paying too low a salary to the youth.

Judge Landis admitted he had made remarks similar to those quoted by Senator Dial and added: "I repeat that and send it to Senator Dial with my compliments."

"Senator Dial says," stated Judge Landis, "that he has written to find out if what it is reported I said is a truthful report—that is to say, that the banks were really responsible for the theft, because they paid Carey only $90 a month. I want to tell you what the case was. This fellow won't have to inquire any further. I want to save him his time for his cotton mills and his banks."

Judge Landis then went into details of the case, in which Francis J. Carey, a clerk in the National City Bank of Ottawa, Ill., was charged with the embezzlement of $96,000. Carey, he asserted, was only 19 years old, and was paid but a little more than $3 a day for handling approximately $1,000,000 a month. Judge Landis declared that his investigations showed him that young Carey was the support of his mother and four younger brothers and a sister. The Judge further declared that his study of the situation had disclosed the fact that the bank which employed Carey as receiving teller at $90 a month, paid "20 per cent of profit on the investment to their shareholders on their stock per annum."

"Then it was," Judge Landis declared, "that I made the statement that a board of bank directors that were guilty of creating the condition I have outlined would naturally and reasonably invite embezzlement. I repeat that here, and I send that to Senator Dial with my compliments."

Concerning Senator Dial's interest in South Carolina banks and cotton mills, Judge Landis declared:

"I think he had better get out of the banking business, or else get out of the Senate," and concluded that if in all his 16 years of service on the bench he had not accomplished anything else, "I have performed the herculean task of dragging Senator Dial from what appeared to be an airtight obscurity."

Judge Landis declared that he had, of course, to send Carey some place, but that he did not intend to send him to the penitentiary.

Impeachment Proceedings Threatened by Senator Dial in Speech.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Senator Dial of South Carolina announced today in the Senate that he would bring impeachment proceedings against Federal Judge Landis of Chicago if he obtained confirmation of statement credited in papers today to Judge Landis in the case of Francis J. Carey, a bank clerk, charged with embezzlement.

Carey, who pleaded guilty to embezzling $96,000 from the National City Bank of Ottawa, Ill., was released yesterday on his own recognizance by Judge Landis, who was quoted as saying the bank directors really were responsible for the theft because they paid Carey only $90 a month.

"Any man who utters that kind of statements," said Senator Dial, "is not worthy of public confidence and should be impeached."

Senator Dial said he had written to Chicago to obtain confirmation of the statements credited to Judge Landis. If confirmation is had, he declared he would "bring the matter to the attention of the House, where impeachment proceedings are required to originate, and ask his impeachment."

Senator Thomas, Democrat, Colorado, interrupted to say that Judge Landis, besides his salary as Federal Judge, received "an enormous, princely salary from some baseball club."

"If this report regarding the Chicago embezzlement case is true," Senator Dial replied, "he won't draw any hereafter if I can help it."

Y. W. C. A. CLUBS FEDERATION HAS ITS 'BIRTHDAY BANQUET'

Fifty-one New Members Added to Roster, and Campaign for More Is Announced.

The annual "birthday banquet" of the Young Women's Christian Association Federation of Clubs was held last night at the Y. W. C. A. Building, with 390 girls in attendance. In addition to the Federation "birhday," the dinner was a celebration of Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays and the tercentenary of the landing of the Pilgrims. The girls wore caps representing the various periods of history, from the Indian feather to the 1921 styles.

Fifty-one members, forming four new clubs, were initiated with a candle lighting ceremony. For each member a small candle was lighted from the large candle representing the "Spirit of the Association." The federation now has 19 clubs, and the Industrial Service Center is a part of the organization. The cup for the best work in membership and other branches of club effort, was awarded to the Allotheha League, the oldest unit in the federation.

A new membership contest, to last for one month, and with a goal of 1000 members, was announced by Maybelle Anschutz of the Ownissa Club.

Miss Mabel Schadt, president of the federation, and Miss Alice Brooks, chairman of the Industrial Department, presided at the dinner. Mrs. H. V. January of the Industrial Department, spoke on conditions among European women resulting from the war.

SPEECH BY VILLARD INTERRUPTED, RIOT CALL IS SENT IN

Crowd of About 50 Men Rushes Hall in Which Pacifist Editor Is Talking to Cincinnati Clubs.

WOMEN IN MIX-UP WHERE BLOWS FALL

Organizations Sponsoring His Visit Lose Many Members and Are Denied Several Halls for Meeting.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 12.—Turbulent scenes which necessitated the sending of a riot call to police headquarters, marked the course of an address delivered here today by Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of the Nation, and former editor of the New York Evening Post. The address was given under the auspices of the City Club and the Woman's City Club.

During the week there had been many resignations from both clubs, on the ground that Villard was an admitted pacifist, and that he opposed the military draft as a means of bringing the world war to a successful conclusion. Prominent women who belonged to the Woman's City Club circulated petitions protesting against the Villard meeting, and the use of several halls were denied to the club.

Villard was in the midst of his address when about 50 men rushed up the stairs to the auditorium. A closed door containing a glass panel opened into an anteroom. The glass was broken, and several of the invaders, also of the defenders who rushed to hold the door shut, were slightly cut. The crowd poured into the anteroom and there was a wild melee. Women members of the club threw themselves against the main door to bar the invaders, who were yelling: "Let's go," "we demand to hear this man." Blows were exchanged and a riot call was sent in.

Villard stopped his address, but continued when the police had cleared the place.

Herbert Seal, who denied that he was the leader of the attacking force, was charged with assault and battery by Guy Mallon, a lawyer, and member of the City Club, but he was released on bond.

Villard was escorted from the hall to an automobile by the police after the streets had been cleared for a block in each direction, and was said to have been taken to a suburban residence. He left later for Cleveland.

NOONDAY LENTEN SERVICES AT THEATER TO BEGIN TOMORROW

Lutheran Ceremonies at the American Will Continue Until March 25.

Noonday Lenten services of the Lutheran Church will begin at the American Theater tomorrow at 12:25 p. m. to continue until the end of Lent, March 25. The services will be held daily, except Saturdays and Sundays.

General subjects for each week are: "The Trinity—God the Father," "Great Institutions of God," "The Trinity—Jesus Christ," "Questions of the Day," "The Trinity—The Holy Ghost," "Great Texts of the Bible." The subjects for the first week are: "Who Is God?" "How Does God Speak to Man?" "Does God Send Trouble?" "Does God Answer Prayer?" and "The Hour Is Come." Pastor Arthur Hauser of Brooklyn, N. Y., will be the speaker the first week.

Other speakers will be Pastor Harry Olsen, Milwaukee; Pastor J. W. Behnken, Houston, Tex.; Pastor H. W. Prange, Minneapolis, Minn.; Pastor M. Walker, Buffalo, N. Y.; Prof. George A. Romoser, Bronxville, N. Y., and Dean H. C. Fritz of Concordia Seminary here.

BUILDING COUNCIL ASSESSED

The Building Trades Council has authorized a special assessment of 15 cents a member against the 10,000 or more members of the council to create a fund with which to pursue its investigation of building material prices and reports that building material dealers and manufacturers operate in St. Louis to restrict competition.

The assessment will be levied in each of the two first quarters of this year and it is expected that about $3000 will be raised. The council has employed an attorney to put data in shape that is being gathered by business agents for presentation to the State Attorney-General, with a view to having an official inquiry into building conditions in this city.

CAN'T CONVINCE U. S. HE'S ALIVE

WALCOTT, N. D., Feb. 12.—Relatives of Henry O. Magenton, former soldier, today received citation from the War Department, signed by the Adjutant-General and by President Wilson, for bravery "in giving his life on the battlefields of France."

According to the War Department Magenton is dead. His efforts to correct a War Department notice to his family early in 1918 that he had been killed in action have so far proved to be futile. Magenton is working here.

MRS. RORA FOUND NOT GUILTY OF POISONING HER HUSBAND

Jury at Hillsboro, Ill., Frees Her of Charge After She Testifies on Own Behalf.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HILLSBORO, Ill., Feb. 12.—Mrs. Sylvia Rora was found not guilty this morning by a jury in the trial in which she was charged with having caused the death of her husband, Joseph Rora, at Hillsboro, last July, by poisoning him with tea containing a deadly drug.

It was first believed that Rora had killed himself with the concoction which, his widow testified, he tried to make her and their child drink. Following his burial, the authorities had the body exhumed and the vital organs sent to Dr. H. E. Wiedemann, a St. Louis chemist, who found that death had been caused by potassium cyanide.

Witnesses testified that she had threatened to kill her husband, because he treated her so cruelly. An intimate friend of the Roras testified that after Mrs. Rora's arrest she visited her in the jail and that Mrs. Rora proposed that she go to St. Louis and write a letter saying that she had poisoned Rora and then escape to Canada after disguising herself.

Mrs. Rora has been living at the Oxford Hotel in St. Louis for some time, but formerly lived at Auburn, Ill. She testified in her own behalf with a running statement that gripped the crowd which jammed the courtroom during the three-day trial.

AUTOPSY DISPELS IDEA THAT MISSING MAN WAS MURDERED

Cut on Throat of Italian Was Superficial, Death Being Caused By Carbolic Acid.

An autopsy on the body of Antonio Tumminello, 55 years old, 5224A Bischoff street, which was found yesterday afternoon in a ravine in a vacant lot at Wilson and Sublette avenues, with a cut in the throat, revealed that death resulted from carbolic acid poisoning and the cut was superficial.

Tumminello was employed until last September by the Carondelet Foundry, King's highway and Accomac street. He had not worked since then. His son, Samuel, 18, told policemen that he was arrested in December by federal agents, who found several barrels of raisin mash in a building at the rear of his home, and was out on $1000 bond. This, his son said, had constantly preyed on his father's mind.

He left home at 11 a. m. Friday, telling his wife that he was going to look for work. When he did not return that night she notified the police and a search was begun. He was found by three small Italian boys. As no knife was found near the body, the death was not thought to be self-imposed until the autopsy disclosed it.

SYNTHETICAL PRODUCTION OF MILK POSSIBLE, SAYS EDISON

Veteran Scientist Predicts Great Advances in Chemistry Within the Next Few Years.

By the Associated Press.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Feb. 12.—On his seventy-fourth birthday yesterday, Thomas A. Edison took time to interview newspaper men and answer a number of varied questions. To the question "should a man retire at 70?" he replied: "He would die in three years."

Asked for his opinion on Henry Ford's announced intention of producing milk synthetically, Edison said it was "entirely possible; and if such milk is made it will be much purer. There are gong to be great advances in chemistry within the next few years."

Concerning business conditions he said: "We are now running through a cycle, and it will have to go its course. I don't know how long it will last but absolutely nothing is the matter. It is all in a state of mind."

M'ADOO PASSES THROUGH CITY

Former Cabinet Member Says He Was Not Offered Mexican Post.

William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasurer and Director-General of Railroads, accompanied by his wife, who is a daughter of President Wilson, also by Jerome S. Hess, a former Congressman, and Jouette Shouse, a Kansas City railroad official, passed through St. Louis yesterday on their way from Mexico to New York.

Between trains at Union Station, McAdoo shook hands and conversed with a number of conductors and other railroad employes, who greeted his arrival with applause. McAdoo said he had not been offered the directorship of Mexican railroads, as reported, and that he would resume the practice of law in New York.

OPINION ASSEMBLY MUST FIX SCHOOL TAX RATE LIMIT

Assistant Attorney-General Otis Declares Constitutional Limit Wouldn't Hold Under County Unit Law.

EXPRESS AUTHORITY NEEDED, HE SAYS

Measure Designed to Provide Revenue for All Districts Would Change State Aid Distribution.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 12.—An opinion was submitted to Gov. Hyde yesterday by Assistant Attorney-General Otis, holding that, under the proposed county school unit laws, county school districts would not be bound by the tax rate limitations of the Constitution, but might fix any rate within limits which the Legislature might decide. The ruling is expected to have an important bearing on the Hyde administration educational program in that it would permit even greater advances than the administration at first had thought possible.

It will be necessary, according to the opinion, for the Legislature to specifically authorize the county districts to fix a tax rate, Otis holding that without express authority from the Legislature the districts will not have taxing power.

The county school unit bill is by far the most important measure of the educational program urged by the Governor and the Missouri State Teachers' Association, and is one of the two really important subjects of legislation under consideration, the other being the good roads bills.

Purpose of Bill.

The real purpose of the bill is to provide greater revenue for the sparsely settled and poor communities to enable children of those districts to have virtually equal educational advantages with the children in the more populous and more wealthy districts.

On the theory that the entire State is vitally interested in the education of all the children in the State, the Governor made the county unit bill one of his administration measures, and is now preparing to get behind it with the power of the administration, if necessary.

One of the principal causes for backwardness of Missouri schools is that in the State there are hundreds of districts so sparsely settled and in which real estate is of such low value that taxation within the constitutional limits does not provide sufficient revenue to maintain proper schools, even with the State financial aid, which is distributed on the basis of school enrollment of the districts. Under the county unit bill the county would be the unit for school taxation, and the more wealthy portions of a county would contribute to the schools of the poorer portions.

Change in State Aid.

A change also would be made in the method of distribution of State aid, the bill providing that a county which does not have school revenue to an amount equal to 20 cents per pupil per day in the elementary schools and 35 cents per pupil per day in high schools, shall have State aid to bring the revenues up to that amount. This would deprive wealthy counties of State aid, but would give State aid to the poorer counties in amounts which would raise the school standards to those of the wealthy counties.

Notwithstanding the benefits the teachers' association points out would result from the enactment of the law, there is vigorous opposition to it in both houses of the Legislature and inforamtion gained both from its supporters and its opponents is that the measure is by no means certain of passage.

Representative Fair of Adair County, chairman of the House Committee on education, who has the bill in charge, would say today only that he believed it had a fighting chance. Representative Whitaker of Hickory County, one of the leading opponents of the measure, said that in his opinion the bill would be defeated unless it was amended to permit counties the option of adopting it. The option feature, in the opinion of advocates of the bill, would destroy its practicability and would virtually make impossible beneficial results.

Opposition From Many Sides.

The opposition is due to a number of reasons, coming from some members from wealthy districts who object to reduction in their school revenues. Others are actuated by a local pride in their school districts as at present constituted and do not desire to have them changed. Another group of objectors consists of members from counties in which there is a large parochial school attendance.

While the bill provides the county unit for general administration of schools, it is built around the changed taxation system. The Missouri Constitution provides that the tax rate for school purposes shall not exceed 60 cents on the $100 valuation in districts composed of cities having 100,000 or more population, and 40 cents in rural districts, except that these rates may be raised to $1 in districts formed of cities and towns and 65 cents in rural districts by a majority vote of the taxpayers of the district.

The bill, drawn with this section of the Constitution in mind, gives to the County Board of Education the power to levy an annual tax of 40 cents of the $100 valuation, and power to call an election to vote the constitutional limit, which it was expected in all except two or three counties would be $1, the view of the proponents being that with the county as a basis there would be very few districts which would not contain a city or town.

Bill Attacked by Its Friends.

This view has been attacked by opponents and by some of the friends of the bill, even, on the ground that the mere fact that a county district contained a city or town would not bring it within the constitutional meaning of "districts formed of cities or towns."

The opinion of Assistant Attorney General Otis changes this situation, however. Otis based his opinion upon the statement that at the time the Constitution was adopted its framers did not have in mind school districts formed of whole counties, and that they had only in mind the small school districts, which were the only kind known in Missouri. Not having in mind the county districts, Otis said, the framers of the Constitution did not attempt to establish constitutional provisions covering such districts.

From that he proceeded to the holding that the country districts would have power to levy such tax rate as the Legislature authorized. While this would appear to mean that the Legislature could fail to fix a maximum rate, it is thought the bill will contain the $1 maximum, as it is considered doubtful if it could be passed without a maximum or with a maximum higher than $1.

First Teachers' Bill Killed.

The bill is now on the House calendar for engrossment, the committee on education having reported out favorably a substitute which changes the original bill in some features but which contains the provisions outlined above. It probably will come before the House for engrossment Monday or Tuesday.

The first of the teachers' association bills to come before the House was killed Thursday. It was a measure introduced by Representative Harrawood of Butler County, and sought to raise the standard of teachers by specifying longer courses of preparation for each of the grades than at present. The defeat caused concern to the members handling the educational bills, but they have not given up hope of obtaining legislation along that line before the session begins. The Harrawood bill was reintroduced with some changes yesterday and will be rushed through the Committee on Education.

A bill authorizing boards of education of all districts to provide for kindergarten instruction of children between the ages of four and six has been engrossed in the House.

Other Educational Bills.

Other educational measures of importance which are pending include a bill giving countries the option of providing a county physical director for schools and creating a position of State physical director in the State Superintendent's office; a measure doubling the amount of State aid for teachers' training, making the maximum $2400 and the minimum $1500 for a county; a bill establishing a scale of salaries for teachers in the various grades; a bill by Davidson of St. Louis permitting the nomination of candidates for the Board of Education in St. Louis by convention or primary instead of by petition, and a measure prohibiting fraternities in the public schools.

The fraternities measure is not expected to progress far, according to Chairman Fair. He said there had been no disposition on the part of St. Louis members to push the bill barring fraternities and that he did not look for favorable action on it.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—The Reparations Committee has transmitted to Walker D. Hines, American arbitrator in the distribution of German inland shipping under the peace treaty, its determination of the allied losses to be paid from Germany's Rhine fleet at 820,000 tons, 63 per cent of which was incurred by France, 33 per cent by Belgium and 4 per cent by other countries.

The entire river fleet is placed at upward of 6,000,000 tons, and, therefore, the losses are less than the 20 per cent limit the treaty placed on the amount Germany must replace.

This award, which Hines must approve, is in addition to the allocation of 253,000 tons of barges and tugs with a capacity of 24,000 horsepower allocated to France by Hines early in January.

THE CRIME OF THE AGE

Is the selling of Spectacles and Eyeglasses by incompetent opticians who call themselves doctors and others. None of these men are physicians. Ask them for their license to practice medicine in Missouri.

NOTHING IS MORE PRECIOUS THAN EYESIGHT

I AM a physician, oculist and optician and have practiced for many years in St. Louis. If your eyes are diseased I will care for them, and should glasses be needed, I will prescribe and make them correctly, and the total cost for treatment and glasses will not exceed the price of a pair of glasses that may do irreparable injury to your eyes. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. I am both oculist and optician. The privilege of communicating with any of my thousands of patrons is extended to any who care to do so.

CONGRESSMAN FESS PRESENTS VISION OF REAL LINCOLN IN HIS OWN WORDS

Ohioan, in an Impressive Address Here, Quotes Freely From "Deathless Utterances"

Follows It With Many Anecdotes to Show the Thorough Democracy of the Emancipator—Comments on His Deeply Religious Character.

Congressman Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, a student for many years of the life of Abraham Lincoln, spoke yesterday at the Lincoln day luncheon at the City Club, on "The Humanity of Lincoln." During his speech, he quoted frequently from an article on "A View of Lincoln Through His Words," which he had prepared for other use, and in which he presented Lincoln as revealed in the Great Emancipator's own utterances touching slavery, government by the people, his views of God and faithful service by public officials.

The text of this article follows:

"This is the time of year when the country reverts to the significance of Lincoln's influence. Whatever be his monuments in accomplishments as the preserver of the American Union and the great emancipator, he has an enduring fame through his deathless utterances delivered from time to time. These utterances clearly pointed the course of history in a momentous era and merely became an index of the progress of our national growth from a slavocracy defended as a loose confederation of states to an indissolvable union of indestructible states.

"In 1858, when he was 49 years of age and known locally as a local political figure, he outlined the issue upon the most sensitive question which within a dozen years was to divide churches, destroy political parties and threaten the overturn of the Government in the greatest civil war known to history.

"'A house divided against itself cannot stand. I believe this Government cannot endure permanently half slave and half free.'

Stood by His Utterance.

"When his friends urged him against this 'd——d fool utterance,' and wanted to know 'What in God's name could induce you to promulgate such an opinion,' his reply was, 'Upon my soul I think it is true.'

"To those who condemned him, he replied:

"'Friends, this thing has been retarded long enough. The time has come when these sentiments should be uttered. And if it is decreed that I must go down because of this speech, then let me go down linked with the truth. Let me die in the advocacy of what is just and right.'

"The same year he pressed Douglas to answer the following question:

"'Can the people of a territory, in any lawful way, against the wish of any citizen of the United States, exclude slavery from its limits prior to the formation of a State Constitution?'

"When he was warned by his friends that unless he desisted from his demand for an answer he could never defeat Douglas for the Senate, he replied:

"'I shall demand an answer. If ever Douglas answers me, either yes or no, he can never be elected President of the United States. I am after larger game. The battle of 1860 is worth a hundred of this.'

"In New York, in February, 1860, at Cooper Union, he made his greatest long speech. Here he set out the issue as it had never yet been stated by any other man.

"'If it (slavery) is right, we cannot justly object to its nationality—its universality; if it is wrong, they cannot justly insist upon its extension—its enlargement. All they ask we can readily grant, if we thought slavery right; all we ask they could as readily grant, if they thought it wrong. Their thinking it right and our thinking it wrong is the precise fact upon which depends the whole controversy. Thinking it right, as they do, they are not to blame for desiring its full recognition as being right; but thinking it wrong, as we do, can we yield to them?'

Expression Was Animated.

"Of this speech Choate said:

"'His eye kindled, his voice rang, his face shone and seemed to light up the whole assembly. * * * It was marvelous to see how this untutored man, by mere self-discipline, had found his way to the grandeur and strength of absolute simplicity.'

"It was here where an auditor at the close of the address declared: 'Lincoln is the greatest man that has appeared since St. Paul.'

To his enemies who charged him with favoring social equality, he said:

"'I protest against the counterfeit logic which says that since I do not want a negro woman for my slave, I must necessarily want her for my wife.'

"Upon the question whether the nation could safely deal with slavery, he said:

"'It has long been a question whether any Government which is not too strong for the liberties of the people can be strong enough to maintain itself.'

"His faith in the nation as sufficient to perpetuate its liberties was well expressed at Independence Hall, Philadelphia, Feb. 22, 1861.

"'I have never had a feeling politically that did not spring from the sentiments embodied in the Declaration of Independence.'

"He then raised the question why the States had been held together so long, and declared:

"'It was the sentiment in the Declaration of Independence which gave liberty, not alone to the people of this country, but I hope to the world, for all future time, that in due time the weight would be lifted from the shoulders of all men and all shall have an equal chance.

Seemed to Know of Test.

"He then declared he would rather be assassinated than to surrender that principle.

"He was soon to assume supreme authority and he seemed to realize the test which was soon to be made, because he made it known that the laws of the Government must be respected and they would be enforced.

"'The Constitution will be preserved and defended until it is enforced and obeyed in every part of every one of the United States. It must be so respected, obeyed and enforced and defended, let the grass grow where it may.

"His views on secession were no less clear than his purpose was determined. 'We won't break up the Union, and you shan't, was his dictum.

"Upon taking the oath as President, he said on this point:

"'I hold that, in contemplation of universal law and of the Constitution, the Union of these states is perpetual. Perpetuity is implied, if not expressed, in the fundamental law of all national governments. It is safe to assert that no government proper ever had a provision in its organic law for its own termination. Continue to execute all the express provisions of our national Constitution and the Union will endure forever—it being impossible to destroy it, except by some action not provided for in the instrument itself.'

"And again:

"'In your hands, my dissatisfied fellow countrymen, and not in mine, is the momentous issue of civil war. The Government will not assail you. You can have no conflict without being yourselves the aggressors. You have no oath registered in heaven to destroy the Government, while I shall have the most solemn one to "preserve, protect and defend it." I am loath to close. We are not enemies, but friends. We must not be enemies. Though passion may have strained, it must not break our bonds of affection.'

Makes Reply to Greeley.

"Henceforth the conduct of the leaders of rebellion compelled the chief stress to be placed upon the preservation of the Union rather than protection against the spread of slavery. To Greeley, who had caustically criticised him as an opportunist because he did not free the slaves, he wrote, on Aug. 22, 1862, just one month before his preliminary emancipation proclamation was announced:

"'My paramount object in this struggle is to save the Union. If I can save the Union without freeing any slaves, I would do it; and if I could save it by freeing all the slaves I would do it; and if I could save it by freeing some and leaving others alone I would do that. I shall do less whenever I shall do less whenever I shall believe what I am doing hurts the cause, and I shall do more whenever I shall believe doing more helps the cause. I shall adopt new views so fast as they shall appear to be true views.'

"In the struggle for the life of the Union, emancipation had to be decreed, which was done, to become effective Jan. 1, 1863. Referring to the cause he said:

"'The dogmas of the quiet past are inadequate for the stormy present. The occasion is pield high with difficulty, and we must rise to the occasion.'

Observance of Lincoln's Birthday in St. Louis Yesterday Not General

OBSERVANCE of Lincoln's birthday in St. Louis yesterday was restricted to closing of city offices and the Merchants' and St. Louis Stock exchanges. Banks and business establishments remained open.

The assignment division of the Circuit Court remained open, as did Division No. 3, where a civil case was on trial. Other State and city courts were suspended.

"Soon after on the field of Gettysburg Lincoln delivered what is styled the 'finest short speech in the English language.'

Address a Prose Poem.

"The high water mark of Lincoln's utterance is found in his second inaugural address. I quote that part of it which is propertly styled a prose poem:

"'Fondly do we hope—fervently do we pray—that this mighty scourge of war may speedily pass away. Yet, if God wills that it continue until all the wealth piled by the bondsman's 250 years of unrequited toil shall be sunk, and until every drop of blood drawn with the lash shall be paid by another drawn by the sword, as was said 3000 years ago, so still it must be said, "The judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether."

"'With malice toward none; with charity for all; with frmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in; to bind up the nation's wounds; to care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow, and his orphan—to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves, and with all nations.'

"Much has been written about his religious convictions. Nothing can give greater meaning than his own utterances Feb. 11, 1861, upon leaving home for Washington.

"'My friends: No one, not in my situation, can appreciate my feeling of sadness at this parting. To this place, and the kindness of these people, I owe everything. Here I have lived a quarter of a century, and have passed from a young to an old man. Here my children have been born, and one is buried. I now leave, not knowing when or whether ever I may return, with a task before me greater than that which rested upon Washington. Without the assistance of that Divine Being who ever attended him, I cannot succeed. With that assistance I cannot fail. Trusting in Him who can go with me, and remain with you, and be everywhere for good, let us confidently hope that all will yet be well. To His care commending you, as I hope in your prayers you will commend me, I bid you an affectionate farewell.'

"His statement to Prof. Brooks, who had asked him whether he gave much thought to his obligations to God, is as follows:

"'I give more time to my obligations to my Maker than to all other questions combined.'

Addresses Well-Wishers.

"Again he said to a group of well-wishers:

"'But for these prayers I should have faltered and perhaps failed long ago. Tell every father and mother you know to keep on praying and I will keep on fighting, for I am sure God is on our side.'

"On another occasion, he said:

"'I have been driven many times to my knees by the overwhelming conviction that I had nowhere else to go. My wisdom and that of all about me seemed insufficient for that day.'

"Next to his faith in God as a ruling passion came his faith in mankind. This was well expressed in his first inaugural:

"'Why should there not be a patient confidence in the ultimate justice of the people? Is there any better or equal hope in the world?'

"No better picture of his breadth of sympathy, another very dominant Lincoln characteristic can be found than in his letter to Mrs. Bixby of Massachusetts, Nov. 21, 1864:

"'Dear Madame: I have been shown in the files of the War Department a statement of the Adjutant-General of Massachusetts that you are the mother of five sons who have died gloriously on the field of battle. I feel how weak and fruitless must be any words of mine which should attempt to beguile you from the grief of a loss so overwhelming. But I cannot refrain from tendering to you the consolation that may be found in the thanks of the republic they died to save. I pray that your heavenly Father may assuage the anguish of your bereavement, and leave you only the cherished memory of the loved and lost, and the solemn pride that must be yours to have laid so costly a sacrifice upon the alter of freedom. Yours very sincerely and respectfully.'"

"His rectitude of character is an inspiration for those who serve the public, and it was well expressed in the following language:

"'I am not bound to win, but I am bound to be right; I am not bound to succeed, but I am bound to be true I must stand with those; who stand right, but I must leave them when they stand for what is wrong.'"

Extracts From His Letters.

"Few characters have left so many basic principles of proper public conduct. I quote a few taken from his addresses and letters:

"'No men living are more worthy to be trusted than those who toil up from poverty—one less inclined to take, or to touch, aught which they have not honestly earned.'

"'My greatest ambition is to be truly esteemed of my fellow men by rendering myself worthy of their esteem.'

"'Die when I may, I want it said of me by those who know me best, that I always plucked a thistle and planted a flower when I thought a flower would grow.'

"'It rests me after a hard days' work if I can find some good cause for saving a man's life.'

"'It has been said that might makes right. It is for us and our times to reverse the maxim and show that right makes might.'

"'Let not him who is houseless pull down the house of another, but let him work diligently and build one for himself, thus by example assuring that his own shall be safe from violence when built.'"

"When criticised because he had changed his mind, he replied:

"'I do not think much of a man who is not wiser today than he was yesterday.'"

"Lincoln's aspiration was his country's future. His ruling passion was that of love of country—patriotism—the religion of the state. He once said:

"'This country with its institutions belongs to the people who inhabit it.'

"He pronounced it the rising hope of popular government throughout the world, and gave this hope its classic expression in literature. Whatever place his deeds may give him in history, his words must signalize him as the republic's finest product in leadership in that which is highest and best in American life.

Nation Was Put to Test.

"Sixty years ago Lincoln came to the head of the Government when the times were pregnant with dire possibilities. Soon the nation was put to the supreme test to determine whether popular government was possible. No man ever faced a more important mission. It called for the rare qualities of intellect, sympathy and will. No leader of history displayed a finer talent of ability in a crisis. His grasp of the situation, his patience with discordant factors, his tolerance in dealing with men of diverse opinions, his boundless pathos as well as depth of good humor, his unerring judgment, his broad sympathy, his determined will, all tempered by the soundest common sense, expressed in the purest Anglo-Saxon, all combined, mark him as a man for the period.

"Sixty years later the World War has brought its trials. It has left the world with new and unsolved problems. Readjustment today demands great leadership. It also demands a spirit of toleration, patience, good will and common sense. The leader today should have the nation's sympathy as Lincoln deserved 60 years ago, but which was grudgingly given if at all."

Fess, in Interview, Predicts Period of Prosperity.

Congressman Simeon D. Fess in an interview on the business outlook yesterday said that nearly every industry is now entering into a period of prosperity. Steel industry will be fully taxed in constructing railroad equipment, he said. The automobile and rubber industries are entering upon a firmer basis.

Lincoln's Birthday Observed by Both House and Senate

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.

LINCOLN'S birthday was observed in the House today with an address by Representative Yates of Illinois, whose father, the war governor of that state, was elected on the same ticket with the martyred president. Representative Yates, himself a former governor of Illinois, dwelt upon the life and characteristics of Lincoln. Representative Osborne of California, a veteran of the civil war, presided.

Declaring the senate should "not be permitted to forget that this is the anniversary of the birthday of Abraham Lincoln," Senator Thomas, Democrat, Colorado, interrupted its proceedings long enough to read the Gettysburg address.

"As I see it, the future is not gloomy but bright," he said. "Our people and our country hold a wonderful position. We have had no famine or failure. On the other hand, we can show a record crop from the fields of agriculture. Our industry holds first rank.

"We already have taken steps and are now assured of a successful transportation system. The last six months have shown a wonderful advancement in efficient railroading, not only in traffic movement, but in service to the public. We are no longer in danger of a breakdown in the greatest industry in the world. Upon all sides have been noted a marked increase in the productiveness of labor, in which the unit of production is increased, while the unit of cost is decreased."

Fess predicted that Congress would cut the cost of operating the Government about $1,000,000,000 during the present term. He also predicted modifications in taxes that have proven burdensome.

Correct principles at the beginning bring the best results in the end. This is well illustrated by the performance of the Franklin Car today.

The fundamentals of satisfactory motoring are light weight, flexibility and direct air cooling. These were original principles with the Franklin Car nineteen years ago. Today they give comfort, economy and long life, or, expressed another way—

French Tax Collections Smaller.
By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—French tax collections in January failed to equal the budget estimates for the first time under the present schedule. The total collections were 1,204,442,000 francs, while the budget estimates were 1,362,782,000 francs. A heavy slump in the taxes on the business turnover and the customs on sugar, which is attributed in the official announcement to "restrictions in consumption" was chiefly responsible.

From Producer to Consumer

Occasionally you've seen firms advertised "Direct From Producer to Consumer"—the facts are the REMLEY DEPT. STORE CO. (Inc.), known as the REMLEY MARKET, is in reality the only firm in this section of the country who really do produce ☛ CONCRETE FACTS. Out in St. Louis County, just a stone's throw from the city limits—8200 Olive Street road—we farm 42 acres of the best soil in the county, where we produce everything that Mother Earth will yield. More than 15 acres of this land is equipped with a modern, up-to-date Skinner watering system. It makes no difference how dry the season, REMLEY produces just the same. At this same location we have erected a modern two-story abattoir and slaughtering establishment, equipped with the most up-to-date sanitary machinery—a large 90-horse power boiler—thus enabling us to have ample steam, hot water, etc. The coolers are all enameled white, with a capacity of more than 125 cattle, 350 hogs, 100 calves, 200 lambs. Not boasting, but we truthfully say we're running full capacity, thus enabling us to eliminate the wholesaler and giving our customers the benefit; in other words, we retail to you at a wholesale price and give you a better quality than you can possibly purchase anywhere in the universe. We also conduct our own large and commodious garage, known as the Mt. Olive Motor Car Co., where we not only store our own trucks, but do a general auto repair business, giving day and night service. We solicit your patronage and guarantee satisfaction by highest skilled expert mechanics. Farther out in St. Louis County, on the Hilbler road, west of the Ballas road, we conduct a large fruit and berry farm. In driving by we invite your inspection.

At our big store on Sixth and Franklin av. all these products are sold. We manufacture and sell more than 2000 pounds of sausage every 24 hours—just think of it, a ton a day. We sell more sausage than any other store in the city.

Our Bake Shop—4 times in the past 9 years we've enlarged it, until today we employ more than 15 people.

IN OUR CAFETERIA we feed daily more than an average of 800 people between the hours of 11 a. m. and 3 p. m.

We invite all St. Louis, at any time, to pay us a visit at any of our establishments. Come, see for yourself. See our big ½-page ad on Page 5, Part Three.

TWO MEN ESCAPE WITH $150 IN STORE HOLDUP

Armed Pair Drive to Grocery in Auto—Shoe Merchant Robbed of $80.

Two men stopped their automobile last night at 8:40 o'clock at the butcher shop and grocery at 6180 Bertha avenue, entered and displaying revolvers, took $150 from two cash registers. The grocery is owned by Irwin Sitciz. The butcher shop is owned by Louis Wolfsberger.

Two men with revolvers obtained $83 in a holdup of the shoe store of Max Lemburg at 1752 South Eighteenth street, at 9:10 p. m.

Louis Lineback, 2900 North Newstead avenue, a switchman for the Wabash railroad, reported to the police that as he descended from a box car in the Luther yards near Humboldt avenue at 7:10 p. m. he heard a command "hands up." Raising his lantern, he saw a pistol in the hands of a negro pointed at him. He said that the negro took $90 and an $85 watch from him and escaped.

W. Frank Wingers, who is stopping at the Marion Roe hotel, reported to the police that two men stopped him at Sixteenth street and Washington avenue at 10 p. m., taking $42.

Thomas Fitzgerald, of 2766 La Salle street, heard a noise at the front door of his home at 9:05 p. m. He opened it and two men ran down the street. He fired three shots at them.

Lloyd J. Simpson of 2903 Madison street reported that his pocket was picked of 65 cents as he boarded a Laclede avenue car at Jefferson avenue.

BOY AND THREE GIRLS HURT BY AUTO WHEN GOING TO RINK

Account of Accident in Post-Dispatch Yesterday Erroneously Gave Destination as Dancing School.

In a news account of an automobile accident Friday evening, at Page boulevard and Marcus avenue, which appeared in yesterday's Post-Dispatch, it was stated that the four young persons who were injured were on their way to a dancing school. One of them was Wilbur Ensor, 16 years old, son of the Rev. J. O. Ensor of 1719A Marcus avenue, pastor of the Wagoner Place Methodist Church, South.

The Rev. Mr. Ensor last evening requested the Post-Dispatch to correct the statement as to the young people's destination, saying that they were on their way, not to a dancing school, but to an ice skating rink, and were carrying their skates. The Rev. Mr. Ensor is a member of the committee of ministers which is investigating the "dance-hall evil."

Three girls were with young Ensor, when a Famous & Barr delivery truck knocked them down as they were about to get on a Page car. Alice Green, 14, of 4139 Delmar boulevard, whose ankles and abdomen were injured, was taken to St. Luke's Hospital. The injuries of the others were less severe.

The driver, William Gough, was arrested, charged with careless driving and with unlawfully passing a street car receiving passengers.

CONGRESSMAN PRESENTS VISION OF LINCOLN IN HIS OWN WORDS

and innate sense of justice" in his treatment of all international problems offers the world the "only sure, straight road to peace," Ambassador Pezet of Peru declared today in delivering the annual address before the Lincoln Centennial Association here. Because in foreign, as well as domestic questions, Lincoln sought the full truth before committing himself, the Ambassador added, his "deeds are remembered, and he grows with the years in the hearts of all peoples."

"Let all statesmen take Lincoln for their model," Pezet said, "and the causes of many wars will vanish like morning mists in the sunlight. In this sense Lincoln belongs not only to the American people, but to all just men everywhere."

Y. M. C. A. Lincoln Exercises.

The life of Lincoln as a guide and inspiration to the young men of today was described by Philip Stremmel at a meeting for boys held last night at the North Side Y. M. C. A., Grand and Sullivan avenues. Music, moving pictures and short talks were included in the program. The industrial commission of the "Y" yesterday concluded a series of "Lincoln" meetings in various industrial plants, including the Medart Patent Pulley works, the Monsanto Chemical works and the McElroy-Sloan Shoe plant. Seventeen hundred visitors paid silent tribute to the memory of Lincoln yesterday at the Railroad Y. M. C. A., Twentieth and Eugenia streets. A draped death mask in the lobby attracted the attention of everyone who entered the building.

Minister to Speak on Lincoln.

Dr. E. Combie Smith, pastor of the Maple Avenue M. E. Church, will make an address on "Lincoln" at a meeting to be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Pine street department of the Y. M. C. YOUTH SAID TO ADMIT BEATING MATRON

East St. Louis Inmate of Illinois Institution Arrested After Attack on Woman.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—Dossett, 17-year-old trusty who escaped from the St. Charles, Ill., school for boys Friday after an attack had been made on Mrs. Jesse Lovett, the wife of an assistant warden, was arrested tonight in Elgin.

The police said that he admitted beating Mrs. Lovett into unconsciousness with an iron bar, but refused to give any reason for the act.

Special to the Post-Dispatch

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—Mrs. Jesse Lovelett, 32 years old, a matron in one of the four farm houses at the State Training School for Boys at St. Charles, Ill., late today was unconscious and near death as a result of an attack by an unidentified assailant. Her skull was fractured by a blow inflicted with a stove shaker.

Frank Dossett, 17, of East St. Louis, Ill., one of the inmates who, as a trusty, assisted Mrs. Lovelett with the housework, disappeared shortly before the crime was discovered. A suit, hat, shirt, revolver, shotgun and $9, all belonging to the matron's husband, Jesse Lovelett, are missing.

Posses are scouring the neighborhood for the missing boy, and police in all nearby towns have been notified.

Supt. C. B. Adams of the school, stated the assault must have been committed between 12:40 and 4:30 p. m. yesterday. The husband left the Lovelett cottage at 12:40, leaving his wife and the Dossett boy alone in the house.

Mrs. Lovelett was asleep on a lounge in the living room.

Lovelett returned about 4:30 p. m., when he found his wife unconscious, with her skull fractured. The stove shaker was beside the body.

He immediately notified Supt. Adams, who called Dr. C. A. Potter of St. Charles, and then assembled the inmates of the institution. The Dossett boy was missing.

Young Dossett was committed to the training school 16 months ago from East St. Louis, convicted of theft.

Seven months ago, as a trusty, he was assigned to household duty in Mrs. Lovelett's cottage, where, in company with 14 other lads, he lived.

Dossett and another boy entered the office of the National Iron and Metal Co., at Nineteenth street and Broadway, East St. Louis, Sept. 6, 1919, and when Joseph E. Weiss, the watchman, found them there they fired at him. He was wounded in the hand. Dossett was arrested, charged with the attack and with stealing a rifle, a revolver and four knives, and was sent to the training school. His parents received a letter from the superintendent today stating that on account of misbehavior he had forfeited until April his right to apply for a parole.

WEBSTER GROVES VOTES ISSUE OF $163,000 SCHOOL BONDS

Board Members Do Not Expect Increase of Tax Rate Will Be Necessary in Addition to Debt.

Citizens of Webster Groves, at a special election yesterday, voted to issue $163,000 worth of school bonds to complete construction work begun last year, when $183,000 worth of bonds were voted. Last year the limitation of 5 per cent of the taxable value of the community prevented issuing enough bonds to complete the work. The vote at yesterday's election was nearly 13 to 1 in favor of the proposition. Of 943 votes cast, 874 were for the proposal and 69 against.

Of the bonds, $51,000 is for the Avery School, $103,000 for the Bristol School, $6000 for a new school in Shrewsbury to relieve crowding at the Lockwood School, and $3000 for equipment for the Douglass (negro) school.

Members of the Webster Groves School Board said yesterday that they did not believe it would be necessary to increase the tax rate, now $1.98, because of increase in the taxable value of Webster property. The board recently retired $25,000 of the $183,000 issue. The tax increase, in case one should be necessary, would amount to 19 cents, board members said.

MORE POLICE GRAFT INDICTMENTS FORECAST

Whitman's Aid Says Slain Informant Implicated Relative of City Commisssioner.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Several additional indictments against members of the police automobile squad will be returned next week, Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith, former Gov. Whitman's aid in the investigation of alleged municipal corruption, declared here today.

Smith, who interviewed Frank Walsh, confessed automobile thief, killed in a whisky holdup near New Brunswick, N. J., Thursday night, said the dead man had implicated a relative of a City Commissioner. Walsh, Smith asserted, told of paying part of the reward received on stolen automobiles to this man who in turn, divided it with certain policemen. Walsh is also said to have connected certain members of the automobile squad with a band of thieves engaged in car thefts and the illicit sale of whisky.

Commenting upon the death of Walsh, Smith declared he was slain for the suppression of testimony against persons involved in the graft investigation and characterized the affair as a "second Becker case."

"The death of an Italian and wounding of a woman near police headquarters may furnish the incentive for a separate investigation, former Gov. Whitman intimated tonight. The facts surrounding the death of this man, after his visit to headquarters, are withheld by the police. It is said that as he left the building, several men loitering in the cordidor gave a mafia signal. A few minutes later he was killed.

Speaking of this case, Whitman stated:

"If the information as presented to me this afternoon, has any justification in fact, it points to a remarkable situation and I shall start an investigation Monday morning, not only of the crime itself, but of the information presented to me."

NOVELTY OF PUPPETS' ANTICS IS CHARMING

Artist Guild Audience Enjoys Unique Performance of Lilian Owen's Marionettes.

But once in many years are St. Louisans afforded the opportunity of witnessing a puppet show, so those who saw Miss Lilian Owen's Marionettes at the Artists' Guild yesterday afternoon and evening, were charmed by the novelty, as well as by the intriguing qualities of the performances.

To identify the element which gives these mannikins' antics their peculiar hold upon the imagination is difficult, but the fact of their fascination is not to be doubted; men have been entertained by puppet shows from the time of the Pharaohs. Ancient China and India had them, as did the Greeks, and they have amused the Italians for centuries.

Even the austere Puritan of Cromwell's time could reconcile his uncompromising conscience to his worldly diversion, although it is certain that the subjects of the plays ran strongly to the Biblical. "Nineveh, with Jonah and the Whale" was a London hit of the sixteenth century, and "Noah and the Ark" was another. A favored sally in the latter was that of Punch, who, while the flood thundered and raged about the ark, stuck his head in and observed: "Hazy weather, Mr. Noan."

Puppeteering—the business of manipulating the figures—is a more consummate art that the average person would fancy, combining the difficulties of the musician with those of the actor. For the puppeteer not only must manipulate his doll in a hundred nuances of motion, but he also must speak its lines. More lines and action must be in perfect harmony, or the spell is broken.

Some of the puppets have more than a dozen strings, yet so proficient do the unseen performers become than no less a person than Dr. Samuel Johnson once remarked that Macbeth could be played as effectively by puppets as by actors, and th tragedy accordingly was staged in London.

The reportoire of Miss Owen's troupe is, for th most part, well chosen. "Hynd Horn," the chief piece of the evening show, is the uproarious burlesque of a medieval romance, with humor of a very distinct Gilbertian flavor. Indeed, the Lord Chamberlain of the plot is very much of a Pooh Bah.

Spice from the same earth also tinges the skit of "Robber Brown," in the romantic narrative of his demure daughter Alice's unhappy love. A toe dance was performed by an Italian dancing girl puppet which actually was said to be 300 years old. The show will be given again tomorrow afternoon and evening.

"Jack and Beanstalk" Excite Audience of Children in Afternoon.

The main feature of the afternoon performance was "Jack and the Beanstalk," and a houseful of children rose to the pinnacle of excitement during the adventures of their hero with the giant. One youthful skeptic, however, wanted statistics.

"What are giants for, anyhow?" he was heard to inquire during a moment of comparative quiet, to which another youngster made the disgusted retort:

"Why to eat people, silly!"

The real show, however, came afterward, when Jack came down to the front of the stage and held a reception. His admirers fairly stampeded in an effort to get close to him. And, with the puppeteer now operating the controller in plain view, Jack bowed and saluted and shook hands and stood on his head for the edification of his guests for half an hour.

But one admirer, oversanguine as to Jack's accomplishments, asked him to turn a somersault. "No, that's one thing he can't do," said the puppeteer, and added grimly: "If he ever tried it, I would spend an hour untangling threads."

Even the giant came to life, and walked out to see the young spectators who a moment before had been cheering ferociously over his sudden and violent end. They, in turn, forgave him, and one little girl remarked, shaking hands, that he was "a sweet old giant, after all."

Other numbers on the afternoon program were "Sambo and His Mule," "The Four Bunnies" and "Polly and Her Pals." The miming was good, but the lines were fatuous and amateurish.

SENATOR CONTINUES HAWHAWING AT HAW AS STATE FLOWER

Despite the opposition of State Senator Jefferson D. Hostetter, of Bowling Green, Senator Frank B. Warner of St. Louis is prepared to defend the daisy to the last ditch. Hostetter's bitter sarcasm in ridicule of the daisy movement will be met by Warner's hilarious haw-haws at the effort to have the red haw made the State flower.

The adherents of the daisy in St. Louis have appointed Senator Warner, President Aloe of the Board of Aldermen, Mrs. Charles A. Stix, Mrs. W. B. Kinealy, Mrs. L. M. Ottofy and Miss Mary Hoxsey a committee to see that no legislative shuffle is permitted to sidetrack the daisy bill, which is now in the hands of the Senate Judiciary Committee. Several St. Louis women are preparing to make some daisy talks before the committee.

The Daughters of the American Revolution are supporting the haw for selection as the State flower, two of their leading advocates being the wives of Gov. Hyde and United States Senator Spencer.

The local daisy committee began its work yesterday by proclaiming that the colors of the daisy are "white for integrity and gold for resources." This will be adopted as the official slogan of the campaign. Mrs. W. B. Kinealy has been chosen as chairman of the committee. She is chairman of the educational section of the Wednesday club and president of the Phoenix Organization of Jennings, St. Louis County.

Bill Roper, Here, Says He Opposes Grid Rule Changes

Princeton Coach Delegate to Annual Meeting of University Alumni.

NOT AFRAID OF GAMBLERS

Believes Game Is Too Big to Be Endangered by Commercialism or Betting.

William A. Roper, Princeton, '02, has been in St. Louis the past two days as a delegate to the first annual meeting of the Princeton National Alumni Association. In such capacity he has helped to form an organization to promote the interests of the university.

Roper coached the team which humbled Yale and tied Harvard. About 200 Princetonians, recruited from 50 alumni associations and representing classes which span a period of 55 years, attended the meeting here.

Motion pictures of President Hibben of Princeton, and the former haunts of Woodrow Wilson and Grover Cleveland elicited enthusiastic applause from the Tiger "grads" at the Statler Hotel yesterday afternoon, but such applause was not to be reckoned with the yells which greeted Bill in his working togs.

The Future of Football.

Roper's willingness to talk about Roper is in inverse ratio to his size. However he lives and loves football. He thinks football is becoming greater with its age, and discredits the alarmists who express fear that gambling, commercialism and too much forward passing are liable to ruin the game.

"Betting cannot ruin football," he said, "as long as the game is sponsored by our universities. The university man is of the higher type who will not stoop to the lower practices in wagering. Of course there are exceptions to every rule, but there are enough lovers of the game to keep it straight."

The Princeton leader does not favor much tampering with the rules as they stand. He especially opposes the proposal which would legislate an additional period when the four regulation quarters close with the score a tie. Tie games, he thinks, are usually the hardest contested; and a continuance of play would put such a strain on athletes as to be injurious. He also has an opinion on the question of post-season games, of the trans-continental variety.

"A football coach trains his squad on the basis of so many weeks to the season and builds up to big game," he said. "Any subsequent game is an anticlimax in which there will not be the mental alertness, so necessary in winning football."

Overwork Opposed.

It is interesting to note that Princeton is rather keen in its viewpoint about over-working its athletes. Crew races of more than two miles are prohibited by the school authorities; whereas other large eastern schools have incorporated the four-mile races in their program.

Beside the extra period problem, other important rule discussions which will be taken up by the Rules Committee in New York, March 3, deal with forward passing and the kick after touchdown. Roper thinks that both phases of the game should be left untouched.

"The 1920 rule which abolished the punt-out was a big improvement over the previous method," stated the Tiger tutor. "Most of the touchdowns which were scored directly behind the goal-posts were of the flukish variety; while the steady plugging type were downed on the sides of the field. Giving all touchdowns an equal opportunity for the full score has removed much of the chance element but has retained a spectacular part of football.

Game Opened Just Enough.

"The game has just been opened enough to give the spectators a real interest in play, and this trend should not be enervated. The weaker teams are given a chance, and the play is a beautiful part of the game. I disfavor any tampering with the forward pass."

Princeton was not the first Tiger lair that Roper has entered. In 1909 he coached the Missouri University Tigers and gave the State school a team which beat Kansas 12 to 6, after it had gone out to Lawrence with little hope. He has not seen much Western football since then, but thinks that the Western schools have played a greater part than the East in developing the modern open offensive. The East, of course, is more thorough in its defensive play. He says Princeton, Yale, Harvard and other schools of that section have taken an attacking lesson from the West, and profited by it enough last year to retain it.

Roper spoke at the dinner at the University Club last night, which closed the two-day meeting. His address dealt with the Princeton athlete. He maintained that overdevelopment in athletics was as injurious as under-development; and that the man who went in entirely for athletics or entirely for classroom work was not a desirable student.

Lynch Wild in Workout With Benny McGovern

BANTAM CHAMPION JOE LYNCH, who has been in the city since his bout with Jabez White, showed in a workout at the Business Men's Gymnasium, Friday, that he was still suffering from his eight weeks' absence from the ring.

In a practice bout with Benny McGovern, Lynch swung and hooked wildly, sometimes missing his foe a foot or more. Lynch, according to onlookers, needs gymnasium work for a few days to put him on edge again.

McGovern is training for a bout with Jimmy Kerns of East St. Louis at the Armory, Monday. In a workout with Jabez White, a few days ago, he made that fighter step lively.

MIKE O'DONNELL TO BOX ORA DEAN IN FEATURE OF SHOW AT STAUNTON, ILL.

Mike O'Donnell of St. Louis and Ora Dean of Staunton, Ill., will meet in the eight-round feature bout of a boxing show at Staunton Tuesday night. O'Donnell in his bouts in St. Louis, since he graduated from the amateur ranks, has shown a commendable willingness to mix things and has gained much popularity by his habit of whaling away at his opponent from gong to gong. Dean also is favorably known, having met Charley Stapp, Johnny Kerns, Freddie Nelson, Sailor Jerabek, Leo Kelly and others.

Other bouts on the card are: George Povich, Benld, vs. Eddie Taylor, St. Louis, six rounds, 145 pounds; Kid Newton, Staunton, vs. George Walsh, St. Louis, six rounds, 100 pounds; Andy Wolf, Staunton, vs. Kid Burns, Edwardeville, four rounds, 128 pounds. George Timmerman will referee.

Britton, Oldest Ring Champion, Appears to Improve With Years

Welterweight King, Titleholder at 36, Will Be Able to Claim the Modern Age Record, if He Retains His Crown a Few Months Longer—Fitzsimmons Champion at 37.

By Robert Edgren.

(Copyright, 1921.)

JACK BRITTON is one of the most remarkable champions we've had since the days of the great oldtimers. At 36, Britton is still invincible, among the welterweights and holder of the championship in that class. Britton fights more frequently than any other champion in any class. Risking his title is nothing to Jack. He does it every week or so. He has upset the old theory that "they never come back," for he has lost the title and won it again from the man who beat him. After 16 years in the ring he still seems to stay at the top of his fighting form—a thing that no one but the great Bob Fitzsimmons ever did before. He proved it conclusively by beating Ted Lewis, Monday night, in 15 rounds. Lewis is 25 years old.

Britton's real name is William J. Breslin, and he is of Irish-American descent. He was born in Clinton, N. Y., in 1885. He began fighting professionally in 1905 and was soon mingling with all the crack feathers and lightweights. Just 10 years ago he suddenly achieved a reputation by fighting an eight-round draw with Packey McFarland, the master boxer of the lightweights in his time.

Packey always resented Britton's claim to fame on the strength of this bout, and two years later met him in two 10-round bouts. Packey outboxed Britton, although Britton had been knocking out a lot of first-class lightweights and had developed a remarkable degree of skill. But Packey couldn't do more than outbox Jack.

Both McFarland and Britton outgrew the lightweight class. Packey never went after the welterweight title, but Britton did. The first of his long series of fights with Ted Kid Lewis, the clever English welterweight, was fought in 1915, a 10-round no-decision affair. That same year, in Boston, Lewis won over Britton, taking decisions in two 12-round fights. Lewis claimed the welter title.

In 1916 Britton beat Lewis in 20-rounds, taking the title. He beat Lewis a couple of times in 12 round bouts and fought two no-decision tens and one no-decision twelve.

Just when it was beginning to look as if Britton could outpoint Lewis as long as he cared to, they fought 20 rounds at Dayton, O., Lou Bauman refereeing, and Lewis won the decision and the title. This was in June, 1917.

Lewis refused to meet Britton again in a decision fight for some time, but they boxed two no-decision 10 rounders and two no-decision six-round bouts in New York. Lewis was fighting like a champion and had middleweight aspirations. He even fought the great Mike Gibbons and gave Mike the liveliest time of his life for 10 rounds.

Britton Came Back.

Finally Britton and Lewis met again in a 20-round bout at Canton, March 17, 1919, and Jack knocked the English fighter out in nine rounds and regained the championship, which he has held ever since. He and Lewis have fought 19 times.

But Lewis hasn't been Britton's only notable opponent. Benny Leonard had a hankering for the welter title. As a shrewd business man Benny realized that with two titles on his string, and a knockout over Johnny Kilbane, feather champion, he'd be a much greater attraction in the movies or in vaudeville, as well as in the ring. But Benny wasn't clever enough to beat the veteran welterweight. Britton was one boxer who didn't have to take a boxing lesson from Benny.

After disposing of Lewis, Jack Britton did a lot of business with Soldier Bartfield, a tough, rugged, aggressive opponent who had made good fights against Mike Gibbons and many other first-class men. He fought Bartfield four times in a row, on Nov. 11, 16 and 22, and Dec. 23, 1918; all no-decision bouts.

During the past year Britton has traveled around the United States like a commercial drummer, and there are few fighting towns he has missed.

Jack has cleaned up a fortune in the ring. His good luck began when Dan Morgan, manager of Knockout Brown, read about his 8-round draw with Packey McFarland. Morgan hunted Britton up and asked him how much money he had.

"Not a nickel to my name," said Britton, expecting a touch.

"Do you mean to say you aren't making any money after all the advertising you got out of fighting Packey to a standoff?"

"I'm trying to raise enough to buy baby a pair of shoes right now," said Britton.

Pays to Advertise.

"Then you need a manager, and that's me," was Morgan's decision.

Morgan began advertising Britton's fight with Packey, saying that Jack really had Packey whipped, and Packey was drawn into an argument. People began to talk about Britton, and Morgan got him fights by the dozen. He always made good, and if he met anyone he couldn't whip at least nobody could whip him. All the time, with so much boxing, Britton was growing more and more skillful.

Britton is essentially a left-handed fighter. He uses his left like a rapier, thrusting sharply with it, and he has a peculiar knack of doing a lot of damage with a twist of the wrist at the finish of a straight arm blow delivered with a slight sideways sweep.

He stands straight and holds his head up to see what's coming. He has a good right hand for a finishing blow. He is quick as a cat and no one but McFarland ever had much success in landing on him when he was on the defensive.

McFarland, in their last 10-round fight, outgeneraled Britton by introducing a novel trick. Packey reached out with his open left glove, covering Britton's face and shutting off his view of coming events while he cracked Jack neatly on the chin with his right.

For all his hundreds of ring fights, Britton carries no noticeable marks. Nobody ever changed his map or interferred with his natural beauty. Outside the ring he is always neatly dressed, quiet, retiring, pleasant, moral, studious, entertaining, modest, polite and the exact opposite of everything the alleged "reformers" would have us believe a boxer to be. He is married, has a large family, lives at home all the time when not busy with ring affairs, and is reputed to be able to draw checks for something over $100,000.

If Jack should take it into his head to retire he'd be the first welterweight that ever went into "private life" without being "socked" and deprived of the old title. But he isn't likely to retire while business is so good. Jack is working the one-a-week stands very successfully, and unless some lad accidentally slips one through his guard one of these fine evenings, the idea of retiring may neved enter his head.

A pretty good champion, Britton, and equal to any of the old timers in confidence, aggressiveness and skill.

A DEFUNCT RACE.

THE Walrus and the Carpenter
Were talking through their hats,
Discussing ships and sealing wax
And bungalows and flats;
And marveled at the seeming dearth
Of active Democrats.

"The time has come," the Walrus said,
To find a candidate
To head the Democratic list,
Before it is too late.
If we could find a volunteer,
I think it would be great.

"I wrote to all the Democrats,
And asked them to decide
Upon a man to make the race,
But none of them replied."
And that was scarcely odd, because,
All three of them had died.

"Do you suppose," the Walrus said,
"If Jefferson were here,
That he could find a Democrat
By searching for a year?"
"I doubt it," said the Carpenter,
And shed a bitter tear.

Indicted Chicago White Sox Begin Fight in Court

Lawyers Say They Will Take Advantage of Every Legal Process and Technicality.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—Attorneys representing Chicago American League baseball players indicted in connection with the alleged throwing of the 1919 world series, today opened their fight to exonerate the men by announcing that a demand would be made before County Judge William E. Dever Monday for a bill of particulars in the case.

Notification of the contemplated action was accompanied by affidavites from Claude Williams, Joe Jackson and Buck Weaver denying that they had entered into any conspiracy to throw the series. Jackson and Williams denied that they had confessed to a conspiracy when they testified before the baseball grand jury, but did not repudiate announcement made at the time of the indictments that they had accepted money to throw games.

The action of the defense was not taken by State officials to mean that Jackson and Williams would repudiate their grand jury testimony when brought to trial, but attorneys representing the players refused to deny or assert that this might be done.

"To Use Every Technicality."

"We expect to fight from beginning to end, and to take advantage of every legal process and technicality," said Benedict Short, representing the two players. "Whether the alleged confessions will be repudiated ignored or defamed when the trial begins cannot be said now."

Announcement of the action taken by the defense brought a statement from Judge McDonald, who brought the world series case before the grand jury, that if Jackson, Williams or Eddie Cicotte repudiated any point of their grand jury testimony immediate steps would be taken to prosecute them for perjury.

"These men had better proceed very carefully," said Judge McDonald, "for they may jump from the frying pan to the fire. They face possible maximum penalty of five years in the penitentiary at present, if they are found guilty. But a perjury charge might make it much harder for them."

State Will "Sit Tight."

George E. Gorman, Assistant State's Attorney, who has charge of the prosecution, said the State would "simply sit tight, as its case was complete." "The men were indicted on several counts," he said. "They deny only that they entered into a conspiracy. We can prove without question that they did. But even if they did not actually throw games, the receiving of the bribe was crime enough."

The defense petition asks that the State be compelled to furnish the defense with a bill of particulars of the following:

What control and supervision, if any, the White Sox club owners had over the players after the expiration of their contracts for the playing season, Sept. 28, 1919.

When and where and in what manner William Burns and Hal Chase, former major league players, charged with helping engineer the alleged throwing of the series, and Rachel Brown, Sport Sullivan and Abe Attell conspired with the petitioners to destroy the business and reputation of the White Sox club.

Information as to Bribes.

What bribe was offered and given and by whom and to whom and when, where and how such bribe was offered and given and by whom it was accepted and received.

When, where and in what manner the petitioners did not execute plays with their best skill and ability and in what games and in what particular plays of each game did the petitioners not play with their best skill and ability.

How games alleged to have been thrown could have been won by the players under indictment.

Claude Williams, before going to the grand jury to testify, issued a sworn statement that he received $10,000 to help throw the series and that he gave Jackson $5000. He said arrangements were made to throw the series in a conference between himself, Jackson, Weaver, Risberg, Felsch, Gandil, Cicotte and McMullin and two gamblers named Brown and Sullivan, in a South Side hotel, previous to the series. His affidavit today said he did not know whether the Brown and Sullivan at this conference were the Brown and Sullivan indicted and that he did not know N. K. Nims, mentioned in the indictments as a victim of the alleged conspiracy. The other affidavits were similar to his.

"Babe" Ruth and Hornsby to Meet In Spring Clash

BILLINGS IS SATISFIED

Browns Sign Bayne and Burwell, While Bottomly Swings Into Line With Knot Holers.

Rogers Hornsby, champion batter of the National League, and George Herman (Babe) Ruth, the major league home run king, will meet in actual competition this spring. This was made certain yesterday when it was announced from Cardinal headquarters that the Knot-Hole gang would oppose the Yankees in an exhibition game at Lake Charles, La., March 16.

It will be the first time during their major league careers that Hornsby and Ruth will oppose each other, although in the fall of 1918 they were members of the same aggregation that played at Lebanon, Ill.

According to C. F. Lloyd, the Lake Charles people intend to make March 16 a Ruth-Hornsby day. With these two athletes in the game, a good crowd should witness the clash.

The scheduling of the clash with Miller Huggins' aggregation practically completes the Cardinals' series of spring exhibition contests.

Billings Writes He Is Satisfied in St. Louis.

While stories have recently been printed that Josh Billings, one of the Browns' catchers, who is wintering on the Pacific Coast, would like to remain there this summer, the receiver has written Business Manager Bob Quinn that he was not responsible for the statements and that he was satisfied to play in St. Louis.

Billings' letter to Quinn follows:

Dear Mr. Quinn—I have just had occasion to read the Sporting News and noticed the two articles stating that I would rather play out here.

While I don't believe you would put any credit in it unless you had heard from me personally, to make sure, I will tell you now that I as not responsible for the statement and, furthermore, am satisfied to play in St. Louis as long as I can play in the major league. You have treated me square and that is all I can ask. I hope the statement has not influenced you against me in any way.

Local Teams Announce Signing of Three Players.

The signing of three players was announced at headquarters of local clubs yesterday. Bill Bayne, southpaw, and Bill Burwell, righthander, were those announced by the Browns, while the Cardinal tosser to swing into line is James Botomly, a first sacker, who resides at Nokomis, Ill.

When Fohl was here to sign his contract, he stated that he expected Bayne and Burwell to be of great assistance to the Browns the coming year. Both showed well at the close of the 1920 season. Bayne has one of the best curve balls of any lefthander in the A. L.

Bottomly last season played with the Mitchell team, pennant winner in the South Dakota League, and batted .312. He was taken south by Rickey last spring, but farmed out for further seasoning.

The Cardinals also announced that Ray Blades, the former Post-Dispatch League second sacker, who last season was with Memphis had been released to Memphis under an optional agreement. Blades at present is under a physician's care for treatment of an injured knee.

Cardinals' Regulars Slow in Coming Into the Fold.

Cardinal regulars are slower in signing than those of the Browns. Contracts announced by the local American League club show that all the infielders and outfielders, as well as Hank Severeid, the leading catcher, are in the fold. Urban Shocker and Frank Davis, the clubs' leading hurlers of 1920, have also signed.

However, with the Cardinals, Milton Stock, the team's star third sacker, is still out in the cold. Lavan signed recently, while Hornsby and Fournier have holdover contracts. The pitchers signed by the Knot-Holers are Schup, May, Reviere, Kircher and Goodwin, leaving Bill Doak and Jess Haines, the club's 1920 aces, still out of the fold.

Not one of the regular outfielders, McHenry, Smith or Heathcote has sent in his signed document. Vernon Clemons and Lew McCarty as well as several youngsters are the catchers in the fold.

RICH WITH 87 SCORE LEADS POLICE STARS

William J. P. Rich with a score of 87 was the leader in the regular shoot of the St. Louis Police Revolver Club, with Dr. M. R. Moore was second with 86. The other scores deer as follows: W. H. Spencer 82, S. Sears 82, G. B. Godfrey 77, J. Joyce 76, W. F. Linne 76, W. D. Thompson 75, C. Mueller 71, Dr. D. C. Todd 70, S. Dorman 67, J. J. Waddock 62, M. Gilmore 62, F. C. Schoenthaler 60, H. Alexander 55, A. L. Durrett 52 and Dr. F. H. Krug 52.

The first of a series between the local teams and the East St. Louis Rifle and Revolver Club will be held on the local range, Feb. 23, and the second March 2 on the East Side. There will be 10 men on each side.

Tennis Club to Meet.

The Carondelet Park Tennis Club will hold its first meeting of the year at the Carondelet Library tomorrow evening. All South Side tennis followers are invited to attend.

Radbourne's Twirling Feat Is Still Unrivaled

Famous Pitcher Ruined Arm in Winning Flag

Frank Bancroft, Recently Retired on Full Pay by Garry Herman, Tells How Providence in 1884 Won Title Through One Man's Efforts.

FRANK C. BANCROFT, the veteran business manager of the Cincinnati Reds, after 43 years of active connection with the national pastime, has been retired by the Reds on full salary for the remainder of his life. Bancroft is at present 74 years old, and recently has been in ill health.

"Banny," as he is familiarly known among ball players and other followers of the pastime, never played the game except as a semiprofessional. All his time in baseball has been spent as a manager or business manager. He went to the Reds as business manager in 1891, and held the position until only recently.

While he served with the Reds, Bancroft saw 13 different managers. First came Charles Comiskey, now owner of the White Sox; then came Bob Ewing. He was followed by Bob Allen, now owner of the Little Rock club. "Bid" McPhee, considered by Banny the best second sacker of all time, was next in line. He was followed by Joe Kelly, Ed Hanlon, John Ganzel, Clark Griffith, Joe Tinker, Hank O'Day, Charley Herzog, Christy Mathewson and Pat Moran, the present leader of the club.

The veteran never tires of telling of the feats performed by Charles Radbourne during the campaign of 1884, while Bancroft was manager of the Providence team. Bancroft rates Radbourne as the greatest pitcher of all time and claims that he was the "only one-man team in the history of the game." Radbourne's work in '84 makes the hard working hurlers of today look like drones.

World's Greatest Hurling Feat.

BEFORE going into detail about Bancroft's story of Radbourne, as related to the Post-Dispatch while he was here last season, the following facts concerning the pitcher may be stated: Of the 112 games played by Providence, Radbourne pitched 77, winning 63, losing 12 and tieing 2. He had a winning streak of 18 in a row and from July 23 to Sept. 26, pitched all but three of the club's contests. Of this number he won 31, lost 4 and tied 1.

For performing this feat, which has never since been equaled, or probably never will be, Radbourne received the princely sum of $2800 with a promise of his release at the end of the season. However, the release was not accepted, the hurler taking a raise of $1200 for '85 instead.

Bancroft's own story of Radbourne's feats follow:

"Yes, I managed the Providence club, and let me tell you that it was a ONE-MAN CLUB. Charles Radbourne, than whom there never was a better pitcher, was the "TEAM." That year—1884—one I will never forget—we captured the National League pennant, although we were sixth in batting. But we were first in fielding.

"But Radbourne was the man who won the pennant for us. He did it after the owners of the club had talked of throwing up the sponge. Following this trying moment, which was brought about when another pitcher was expelled from the club, Radbourne performed the greatest feat ever known in the history of the national pastime—that of pitching all but three of the games played in the space of two months.

"During this time he also turned in a winning streak of 18 straight, accomplished in exactly 30 days. Nothing of that sort had ever been heard of before, and it has never been done since. Nor do I expect to see this feat equaled again.

"When the season started, we had in addition to Radbourne, Charley Sweeney, another star pitcher. Along in the campaign we signed another hurler, named Miller, and it really was because of Miller that Sweeney quit the club.

Not Allowed on Field.

"IN those days the manager was not allowed on the field, but had to sit in the grand stand, so before the contest I was forced to give all instructions to Joe Start.

"It was Sweeney's turn to pitch, and I told Start that if we obtained a long lead to shift Sweeney to the outfield and give Miller a tryout. It happened that about the sixth inning we had a margin of 7 to 3, and Start told Sweeney to go to the outfield, as the instructions were to give Miller a chance.

"Sweeney, who had been out on a 'tear' the night before, became peeved, and informed Start 'that if he could not finish a game he started he would quit the team.'

"And true to his word, he quit. Instead of going to the outfield, he left the park. That same night he was expelled. This left us with only one reliable twirler—the great and only Radbourne.

"Here the owners wanted to throw up the sponge. However, they finally decided not to, but it took a great deal of argument on my part to get them to change their minds.

"Only one thing saved me. Radbourne wanted his release so that he could go to New York, and on this theory I worked. I informed the owners that if they would pay Radbourne the salary that was due Sweeney for the remainder of the season and his release when the curtain was rung down, I could get him to pitch every game. They agreed and I took up the subject with the pitcher.

"After only a short conference, Radbourne said:

"'I'll pitch every day and win the pennant for Providence, even if it costs me my right arm.'

Radbourne Hurled 36 Games in 65 Days, Scoring 31 Victories, 18 in Succession

"AND that is just what he did. From July 23 to Sept. 26 he pitched all but three of the 39 games we played. He was the winner in 31, lost four and tied one. It was during this time that he turned in his winning streak of 18 straight, in which he permitted only 32 runs.

"But while he was doing this Radbourne suffered untold agonies. The morning after each game his arm would be so sore that he could not comb his hair with his pitching arm, but had to use his left hand. However, the same day he would be at the park bright and early.

"He would grab a ball, start tossing it from a short distance and then increasing. Finally we, would see him go to the outfield and throw to home plate. Then we knew that the "Old Master" was ready to go in and pitch again.

"Radbourne just about succeeded in throwing his arm away in accomplishing this feat. While he was with us the next year, he was not the same pitcher. The constant strain on his arm proved too much and he had only a fair record.

"But for doing all this, Radbourne received just $2800. When the season was over the owners called in the pitcher and placed before him his release and a blank contract. They told him to either take the release or write his own figures into the document. However, the Providence officials had one ace.

The Woman in the Case.

"THEY knew there was a girl in Providence who was 'pretty sweet on' the pitcher, and they did not forget to tell him.

"After thinking it over a short time, the pitcher took the contract, wrote in $4000 and affixed his signature for 1885.

"Radbourne pitched with his head as much as he did with his right arm. Control was the real secret of his success. He knew the weakness of every batter in the league and he always signaled the catcher, instead of the receiver giving the signals as the case is now. And a batter never got a good ball to hit while 'Rad' was on duty.

"In order to gain control Radbourne would place a chair on home plate with a bottle on it. He could knock that bottle down nine out of ten times. His control became so good with constant practice that he could throw the ball through a good sized knot-hole in the fence.

"That's the story of the man who I consider the greatest pitcher the pastime has ever owned."

When asked how Radbourne was able to pitch every day while present-day flingers work only every third or fourth day, Bancroft replied:

"There's no particular reason that I know of, but I suppose it is because the pitchers today think they cannot do it."

The player limit did not bother managers in the old days. The year Bancroft won the National League championship and beat the Metropolitans three in a row in the first world's series ever played he had just 12 tossers. And the salary list of this aggregation, which included some great players, was only $28,000, an average of less than $2500 a man.

A Famous Lineup, This.

BESIDES Radbourne, the men on the team were: Start, first base; Farrell, second base; Irwin, shortstop; Daily, third base; Carroll, left field; Hines, center field, and Radford, right field. Murray, Bassett and Lovett were others carried.

One of the players of this famous club is still connected with the national pastime. He is Arthur Irwin, who played short and is now a scout for the New York Yankees.

In those days, according to Bancroft, there was rarely such a thing as a player being forced out of the lineup because of injury. And in the olden days they played more for the sport than the compensation they received.

Bancroft, who was born at Lancaster, Mass., May 9, 1846, first took baseball seriously in 1877, when he organized the New Bedford club and won the Massachusetts championship. At the time he started his connection with the game Banny was the owner of a hotel.

In 1878 and 1879 he managed the Hop Bitters and took the outfit to Cuba and helped introduce the game in that country. In 1880 he was connected with Worcester and two of his players were Arthur Irwin and J. Lee Richmond, one of the famous old-time southpaws.

Once Managed the Tigers.

BANCROFT was manager of the Detroit club in the N. L. during 1881 and '82, and the next campaign found him with Cleveland. In 1884 nad '85 he managed Providence. The '84 team won the championship and defeated the Metropolitans three in a row in the first world's series ever played.

Rochester was Banny's stand in 1887, while the next year he was business manager of the Athletics. In '88 Bancroft tried his hand at the theatrical game, but the venture proved a failure, and the next season he was back in baseball, being business manager of Indianapolis. In 1890 he was with Cincinnati and Milwaukee and in '91 started his long service with the Reds.

During the Civil War, Bancroft served four years and two months with the Eighth New Hampshire Volunteers. He became interested in the national pastime reading about the famous Knickerbockers. Bancroft is really the father of baseball double-headers. He had led several teams to Cuba and in 1915 took the All-Stars to Honolulu.

Radbourne's Remarkable Feat That Still Tops All Pitching Records

DURING his winning streak of 18 in a row with Providence in 1884, Charles Radbourne yielded only 32 runs, an average of 1.8 per game. Five of his contests were shutouts, two of them over Boston coming by a 1-0 margin. His winning streak started Aug. 7 and did not end till after Sept. 6. Here are the figures:

Aug. 7—Radbourne 4, New York 2.
Aug. 9—Radbourne 1, Boston 0.
Aug. 11—Radbourne 3, Boston 1.
Aug. 12—Radbourne 4, Boston 0.
Aug. 14.—Radbourne 1, Boston 0.
Aug. 15—Radbourne 3, Cleveland 2.
Aug. 19—Radbourne 4, Detroit 2.

WHITEHEAD AND TAVENER MEET IN SPECIAL MATCH

Oscar Whitehead and C. W. Travener are scheduled to open the New Palace Bowling Alleys in the Wall Building, Vandeventer and Olive, at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon with a five-games-total-pins to count special match. Whitehead and Tavener are rated among the best tenpinners in the city.

A five-man sweepstakes will be rolled Monday and Tuesday nights. Ed Schaefer is manager of the new drives, which are constructed along the latest lines.

Washington Pin Tourney

L. B. Heibel, Adolph Knittle, George Metzler and Hi Meyers won their matches in the third round of the open individual elemination tournament on the Washington alleys last night. Knittle shot in fine form, averaging 203, and won from W. L. Waters. Meyers trimmed H. E. Varenhorst three straight games, averaging 185. Metzler won from O. Overback in a five game match while Heibel captured three out of five games from E. E. Grubb. The pairings for tonight in the semi-finals are Meyers vs. Knittle and Heibel vs. George Metzler. The matches will be rolled at 7 o'clock.

Hoefle Wins Tourney

Glory Hoefle won the Washington Individual Sweepstakes Tournament last night from a field of 37 with a total of 604. Hoefle got scores of 205, 188 and 211. Mike Cassin was second with 569 and Hi Meyers third with 564. Meyers defeated George Metzler for third prize by one pin.

Penn Wins at Indoor Pony Polo.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12.—The University of Pennsylvania defeated Yale, 7 to 4, at pony polo here tonight. The contest was played indoors.

Oklahoma Defeats Pikers in Second Contest, 44 to 27

Free Throwing of Forward Thompson Proves Feature of Valley Basket Tilt.

NORMAN, Ok., Feb. 12.—Oklahoma made a clean sweep over the invading Washington basketball team by taking the second of the two games series 44 to 27 here this afternoon, making the fourth defeat in a row for the Pikers on their Southern trip. The game was featured by close guarding on the part of the Sooners which held the invaders to six field goals in the game. The Oklahomans broke through the Pikers' defense repeatedly, shooting goals from all angles of the court.

The remarkable free throwing of Thompson, Piker forward, was the most consistent part of the Washington offense. Thompson scored 15 free tosses out of 15 tries. Waite and Cox led the Sooner scoring, with six field goals respectively, while Tyler counted five from the floor.

The Pikehs developed better team work and displayed more fight than in the first of the two games, but poor goal shooting kept them on the short end of the score throughout the clash.

PRINCIPIA TROUNCES CLEVELAND QUINTET

Principia defeated Cleveland High School at basketball last night, 30 to 14. At the end of the first half the victors were leading, 16 to 13, and so close was their guarding in the second period that Cleveland was unable to score from the floor, getting only one point on a free throw.

Brownell was high for the evening, accounting for 20 of the Principia points. He scored on 12 out of 15 free throws. Each team played without the services of a star, Wernentin of Principia and Schlapprizzi of Cleveland being absent. The Principia victory ties the series between the two school quintets. In a preliminary game the Cleveland second team humbled the Principia seconds, 33 to 6.

ILLINOIS QUINT TAKES LEAD IN BIG TEN RACE

URBANA, Ill., Feb. 12.—Illinois came back strong in the second half and defeated Minnesota here tonight, 24 to 20, in a Big Ten basketball game. The victory puts Illinois in first position in the conference race. Walquist and Mee were the stellar performers for Illinois. Kearney and Oss and Arnston made favorable showing for the Gophers.

Etchens Wins Trap Title.

Missouri Again Defeats Kansas Aggies, 35 to 26

Tiger Quintet Scores Tenth Successive Victory in Valley Basketball Race.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Feb. 12.—It will take a better team than the Kansas Aggies to stop the Missouri Tigers in their victorious march to a Missouri Valley Conference basketball championship. The speedy Columbia quintet again defeated the Kansas State Agricultural College team here tonight, winning the final game of the series, 35 to 26.

The victory places the Tigers only a short distance from the valley goal, with only Nebraska to fear in the final lap of the race. Missouri now has won 10 consecutive conference games without a defeat. Nebraska has dropped only one game to date.

Missouri played the same brand of basket-ball tonight that sent the Aggies down to defeat in the opening game last night. Capt. Browning again played a fine offensive game, leading his team in scoring with six goals.

The Aggies, led by Capt. Bunger, played one of the best games of the season and fought every inch of the way. Missouri, however, jumped into the lead in the early minutes of play and never surrendered its advantage. The Manhattan team made its greatest bid for a victory after the start of the second half. Missouri led, 17 to 12, at the close of the opening period, but that margin was cut to one point by an Aggie spurt. Baskets by Bunger, E. Cowell and Jennings in this rally enabled the Aggies to climb within a point of a tie count, the score at this stage of the battle being 21 to 20.

The Tigers, however, soon recovered from their slump and again passed, dribbled and shot their way to a comfortable lead.

The Aggies have won six games and lost three. The next series between K. S. A. C. and Missouri will be played in Columbia, March 4 and 5.

LORD AND APPLEBY WIN BALK-LINE GAMES

CLEVELAND, Feb. 12.—Robert Lord of Chicago and Francis S. Appleby of New York were the winners in today's play in the national amateur 18.2 kalk-line billiard tournament.

Lord won from Dr. A. I. Brown of Cleveland, 300 to 214, and Appleby defeated Emil Renner of Youngstown, O., 300 to 218. Lord had an average of 5 10-58 with a high run of 51, and Brown an average of 3 48-57 and high run of 24. Appleby had an average of 7 13-41 and a high run of 51, and Renner an average of 5 18-40 and a high run of 23.

RAY TO MEET CUTBILL IN MILE RACE FEB. 22

BOSTON, Feb. 12.—The racing rivalry of Joie W. Ray, the Illinois A. C. runner, and Harry Cutbill, known as the flying parson of the Boston Athletic Association in which Cutbill has gained victory this season, is to be renewed here at the American Legion games on Feb. 22.

Ray has wired his entry for the Boston mile run in which other competitors probably will include Cutbill, Mike Devanney, the New York runner, and J. J. Connolly of Georgetown University.

Syracuse Dispute Settled.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Feb. 12.—According to information made public here tonight, differences between E. C. Landgraf, holder of the local franchise in the new International Baseball League, and owners of the ball park here have been settled amicably and the club will remain in this city during the coming season. It had been previously announced that the differences might determine Landgraf to place the club in another city.

31 Dodgers to Go South.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—The Brooklyn National League champions will assemble at New Orleans March 7 for their spring training with a squad of 13 players. The squad will consist of 13 pitchers, four catchers, eight infielders and six outfielders. The veteran battery will report about two weeks earlier at Hot Springs.

Penn to Meet Harvard.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12.—Approval was given by the Athletic Council of the University of Pennsylvania for a dual track meet between Harvard and Pennsylvania on April 23. It will be the first time in 25 years that these institutions have met on the track in a dual contest.

Winona Pair Is Second.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 12.—P. E. Skomars of Duluth, Minn., rolled into a triple tie for sixth place in the singles at the International Bowling Association tournament here today. He rolled 641. Two St. Paul men have the same count. Earlier in the day W. Critchfield and Ben Kremer, Winona, Minn., moved into second place in the doubles with 1223.

Forest Park Club to Meet.

The Forest Park Golf Club will hold its first meeting of the year at the Cabanne Branch Library tomorrow night.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.

LOREN MURCHISON, the St. Louis sprinter, who is now representing the Illinois A. C. of Chicago, twice equaled the world's indoor record at the games of the 106th Infantry Post, American Legion at the Twenty-third Regiment Armory, Brooklyn, tonight.

The former new York A. C. flyer won the special 60-yard dash in 6 2-5 seconds and the 70-yard dash in 7 1-5 seconds, equaling the indoor record in both races. However, Murchison will not be credited with the record for the track was remeasured and found to be short, in each event. Martin Kline of the Metropolitan Record Committee, said after the games that the track was 11½ inches short in the 60-yard dash and 10 inches short in the longer event.

In addition to winning these two races, Murchison also finished first in the 50-yard special race, giving him a triple victory for the night. He was by far the best of the field in each event and his margin of victory in each race was a yard or more. Ed Farrell of Brooklyn, finished second to the Western sprinter each time and G. Bisger of New York third.

MUNICIPAL SOCCER BODY DISALLOWS 2 PROTESTS AND DISMISSES 2 OTHERS

Five protests were heard at the meeting of the Municipal Soccer Executive Committee last week. Two were disallowed, two others dismissed for lack of evidence, and one was laid over until the next gathering of the committee. A request of the Paulian team to have a case reopened was also laid over.

All the protests came from the No. 2 Division of Fairground and No. 2 Division of Carondelet Park. In both divisions, the race for the championship is very close with only two points separating the four leaders at Fairground, while a like number of points makes up the difference between the three leaders at Carondelet Park.

The protest of the De Paul team of the game of Jan. 30 against the Concordias was disallowed owing to the failure of the protesting party to show conclusive evidence of the ineligibility of several Concordia players.

The Ben Miller team protested the Nov. 21 game against the Prendergasts, won by the latter team. The Millers claimed Player Edward Hyson was ineligible owing to the fact that he had received money from the Innisfails team to whom he was under reserve for next season. The evidence submitted showed that the money Hyson received was in the form of a personal present from Manager Foley and that Hyson has played only for the Prendergasts this season and that the contract signed with Foley does not go into effect until the opening of next year. The committee disallowed the protest.

The protest of the Trumbulls versus the Paul Mueller team of the game played Jan. 30, was held over until the next session.

A protest of the SS. Mary and Joseph of games of Dec. 19, won by the Minerals, as well as the tie game Nov. 28 were dismissed.

Kenrick Quintet Defeats Western

St. Louis Basketeers Score Second Victory of Season Over Cadets, 33 to 24.

Kenrick High School's basketball team scored its eleventh victory of the season yesterday afternoon when it defeated the Western Military Cadets at Alton for the second time this year. The score was 33 to 2 The previous victory was by a 21-1 score, that game having been played at the Kenrick gymnasium.

Muehling was the star for Kenrick yesterday, accounting for 17 points. He scored on five out of seven free throws and made six goals from field. His speed and dodging ability makes him one of the most difficult men to guard in high school circles. Rotermund also played his usual clever game.

The Kenrick quintet was scheduled to play a return game Wednesday against the St. Louis University high school, the only quintet which defeated Brother John's shooters this year, but St. Louis U. asked for an indefinite postponement, Brother John said, because several star players were on the hospital list. Kenrick's big game the coming week will be Saturday, against the Spalding High School team of Peoria. The game will be played at the Kenrick gymnasium.

Yesterday's score:

Kenrick (33)	Position.	Western M. A. (24

The most individual cigar

ROBT. BURNS' reputation as an individual cigar is national—reaching into every nook and corner of the country. What other full-Havana-filled cigar, selling at Robt. Burns prices, is smoked to the same extent as Robt. Burns?

Like the Robt. Burns cigar, Robt. Burns smokers, too, are individual. Robt. Burns conforms to their ideas of what a fine cigar should be. They like Robt. Burns' full Havana filler. They appreciate the May-mildness which special curing and the mild Sumatra wrapper give to this Havana.

Robt. Burns smokers always ask for Robt. Burns by name. It is next to impossible, cigar dealers declare, to sell Robt. Burns smokers anything but Robt. Burns cigars.

POLICE TO WITHDRAW GUARD OVER LIQUOR

City Counselor Gives Opinion in Seizure of 90 Barrels of Mash; Will Take Samples.

Ninety barrels, containing 4550 gallons of a liquor mash that now tests 7½ per cent alcohol and is growing in alcoholic content daily in the process of fermentation, which were seized by the police Jan. 11 in a vacant house at 1706 Cass avenue, have employed three policemen daily as guards, while police, city and Federal officials have endeavored to determine how to dispose of it legally.

St. Louis needs the policemen, however, and the guard will be withdrawn, it was announced yesterday, and inasmuch as Federal officials have declined jurisdiction, it appears the forbidden stuff will be abandoned.

The stuff was discovered on anonymous information that it was red wine, stolen from a residence, but it was found to be no more than brown sugar, water and ingredients to stimulate fermentation. A guard of three shifts of one patrolman to each shift was placed in the house to await developments, but nothing but an offensive odor has developed.

The situation then became irksome and the odor was reported to the Health Department, which in turn referred the guard to the Department of Streets and Sewers. The latter department would have none of it, and so City Counselor Daues was called upon for an opinion.

In this he advised the police to take samples of the mash and after notifying the Sheriff, the Federal authorities and the Circuit Attorney of the intention, to abandon the watch on the moonshine.

In accordance with this opinion, Lieut. Gerk of the Carr Street Station acted as directed, and, following a conference with Chief O'Brien, will withdraw the guard for more active pursuits.

BURNS PROVE FATAL TO BOY, 5, WHO FELL IN TUB OF HOT WATER

East St. Louis Lad Lost Balance When Knob on Door Slipped Off.

John Sweda Jr., 5 years old, of 707 Winstanley avenue, East St. Louis, died yesterday from injuries suffered Thursday when he fell into a washtub of hot water while waiting for his father to give him a bath.

Sweda said he had placed hot water in the tub and went into the yard for cold water. The boy apparently tried to open the door, but the doorknob, which was loose, slipped off, and he fell into the hot water.

Can Airships Sink Any Battleship? "They Can," Says Army Air Force; "Ridiculous," Says Navy

But See What Bombs Have Done to the Old Indiana, Once Pride of Sampson's Fleet

Fine Old Fighting Ship That Helped to Destroy Cervera's Armada Now Given Over to Bombing Torture

Many Varieties of Experiment Have Been Tried on Her, but, Though Badly Used Up, She Is Still Intact.

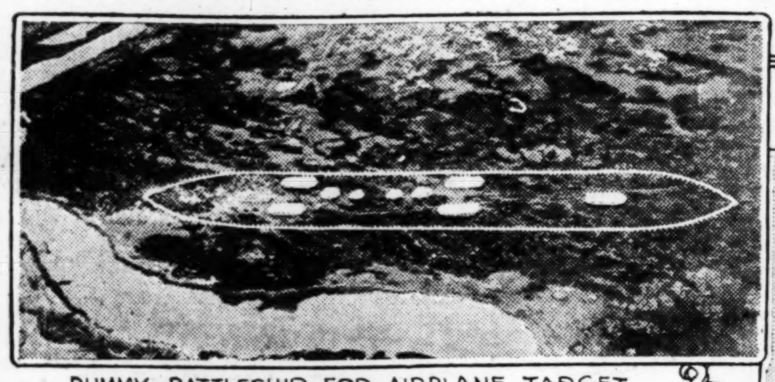
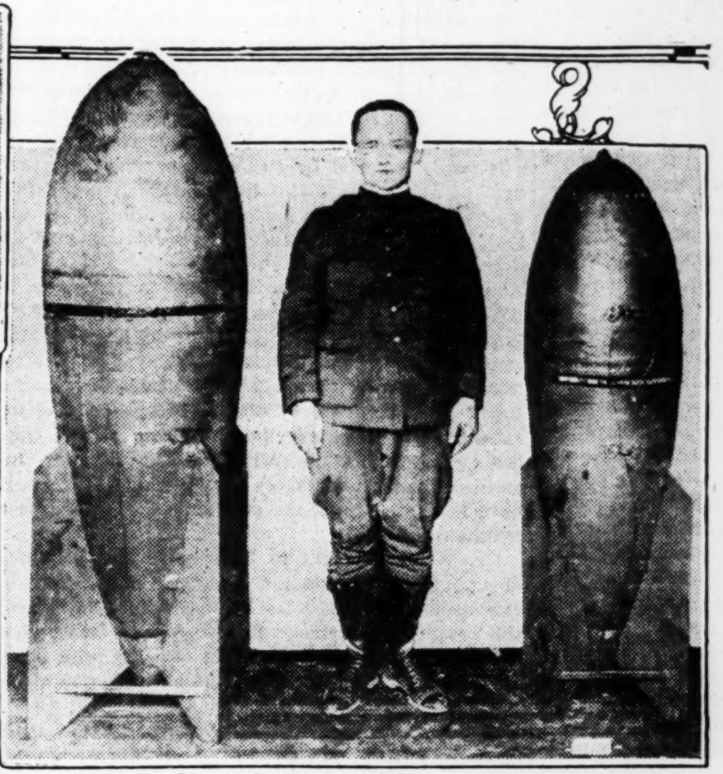
WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.

THE Indiana was a proud and stately ship—the finest of her kind. She fought in Sampson's fleet at the Battle of Santiago. The crowds that gathered along the Hudson to watch the great naval parade celebrating Dewey's return to New York from Manila marveled at her immensity. She seemed invincible—permanent.

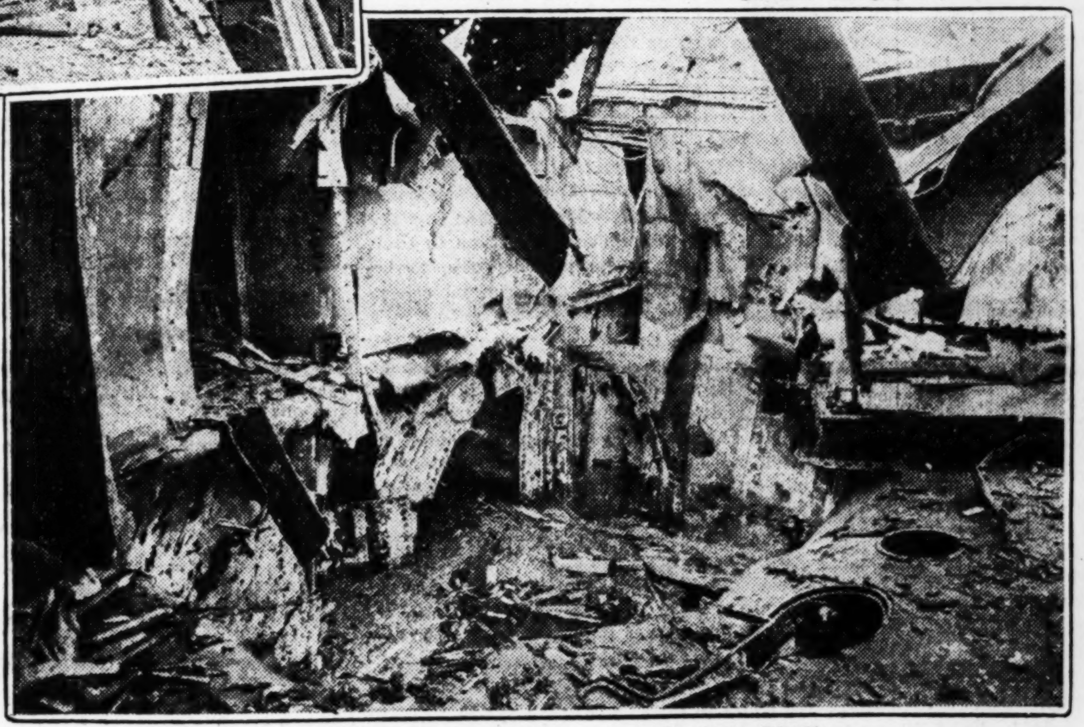


DUMMY BATTLESHIP FOR AIRPLANE TARGET at LANGLEY FIELD.

WRECKAGE on SECOND DECK..



TYPES OF AERIAL BOMBS — LARGER IS 1000 POUNDS and SMALLER 500 POUNDS...



WRECKAGE AT POINT OF CONTACT on FOURTH DECK...

The little diagram in the upper corner is the dummy battleship laid out at Langley Field near Washington for army aviators to use as a target. The wreckage scenes are from the deck of the Indiana after the explosion of the bombs planted aboard it by naval flyers.

But styles in battleship construction change fast. The Indiana, the last word in fighting craft when she was commissioned in 1895, was long since pronounced obsolete, good only for subordinate tasks in the service of the newer and greater ships that had superseded her.

Finally the supreme indignity was put upon her; she was stripped of her guns and machinery and made a target. She touched, indeed, the very depths of degradation; for she was made a target not alone for the capital ships of the line—her own kind—but also for that impudent upstart of the service, the airship. Lying helplessly at anchor, she was peppered with dummy bombs from above; then her plates were wrenched loose with charges detonated in the water about her; then bombs were exploded on her decks, reducing her to what she is today—a bunch of junk.

Easy to Hit Battleship, Say Airmen.

It was easy, that proud day on the Hudson, to endow the Indiana with a warrior's soul; and it is easy now to fancy that soul, in the wrecked and tortured body, writhing in the realization that the damage wrought upon her in her stricken estate is regarded by the young cavaliers of the air as proof positive that the day of the battleship is done. Hits can be scored against a moving ship with real bombs, the air men confidently assert, with as much ease as they were scored against the Indiana with dummies. Moreover, they point out, bombs dropped from a height will have a much greater destructive effect than the bombs that were laid on the decks of the Indiana in one phase of the experiments.

"We can tell you definitely," said Brigadier-General William Mitchell, assistant chief of the Army Air Service, to a Congressional Committee, "that we can either destroy or sink any ship in existence today."

Naval Line Officers Ridicule Flyers' Idea.

Gen. Mitchell stirred up a hornet's nest with that and similar remarks. By the line officers of the navy he is being facetiously dubbed "Admiral" Mitchell. Hitting a moving ship, with its anti-aircraft equipment, they say, is a different thing altogether from hitting the stationary and unprotected Indiana. The aircraft is a useful engine of warfare, they concede, but to scrap the chief reliance of the navy, the capital ship, because of the flamboyant promises of the air "visionaries" would be, in their opinion, the height of criminal folly. The battleship-airship controversy brought on by Gen. Mitchell's testimony is one of the most peppery that army and navy circles have seen in a long time.

There will be no end to the controversy till a conclusive test is made with actual bombs dropped from airplanes against a ship in motion. Secretary Daniels of the Navy, who has condemned Mitchell's conclusions as absurd, has definitely promised that German ships, which would have to be sunk anyway, will be assigned for experiments in answer to Mitchell's challenge. On these tests may depend the character of the whole future building program of the navy.

Meantime, with the battleship school of thought diametrically opposed to the airship school and with the experts on both sides equally positive that the forthcoming tests will bear out their theories, the layman can draw his own conclusions from the Indiana tests, which supply the only data of the sort available.

Indiana Tests Began Last October.

Though these tests were made last October and November, the results did not become generally known till Gen. Mitchell testified last month before the congressional committee drawing up the annual army appropriation bill. The tests were made by navy men, and army fliers were there only in the capacity of observers. That Gen. Mitchell, an army man, should have told Congress about a naval experiment, the result of which the navy had been keeping pretty much to itself, shocked the older officers of that service inexpressibly.

Gen. Mitchell merely sketched the Indiana experiments. By supplementing his testimony from other sources, it is possible to give now a more detailed account of the mimic warfare waged against the old battleship in Chesapeake Bay, near Tangier Sound, from Oct. 27 to Nov. 3.

Still wearing the armor with which she resisted the attacks of Cervera's fleet, with her masts intact, but without armament, the one-time "pride of the navy," built at a cost of some $7,000,000 and now as out of date as a woman's last-year hat, was anchored 10 or 15 miles from shore, as a target for the naval airmen. These were men who had not been especially schooled in bombing, and the planes they used were not particularly adapted to the purpose. Operating at an altitude of 4000 feet, they dropped 100 50-pound aerial bombs—bombs shaped like a great fish, with fins that act as stabilizers. The bombs were all dummies—loaded with sand.

Eleven Hits Out of 100 Tries.

Eleven of the bombs scored actual hits on the battleship. Nearly as many more would have struck her if she had been the same size as modern battle cruisers, which measure 875 feet in length and 80 feet in breadth in comparison with the Indiana's 348 feet by 69 feet 3 inches. All but 22 of the bombs fell within what would have been the "danger zone" of the modern ship—a zone taking in 60 feet all around the vessel. This is the space within which a bomb that misses a ship can still do appreciable damage by concussion. The percentage of direct hits, airmen say, was greater than has ever been scored by cannon at 20,000 yards.

"That work," said Gen. Mitchell, "was done by a personnel with very crude equipment and very little experience in dropping bombs, but they did very well. We can hit very often, if we have to," he added, "because, if necessary, we will come down and lay the bomb on the deck."

In the second phase of the experiments with the Indiana, 13 naval bombs were detonated one at a time under water around the ship at distances ranging from 25 feet to 100 feet. These were all charged with TNT. The object was to determine what size bomb would sink the ship, and its effective distance from the vessel. The trick was finally turned with a bomb containing 214 pounds of explosive, placed about 60 feet below the water and 30 feet from the stern. The explosion opened the plates of the vessel and she began to take water rapidly. She was towed to shallow water, her seacocks were opened and she was allowed to sink.

How the Bombs Splintered the Decks.

The Indiana was down but not yet out. She had other torture to undergo. As she rested there on the beach, her deck five feet out of water, she made a picture in strange contrast with that of the Indiana sailing up the Hudson on parade, with pennons fluttering and cheering jackies at the rail answering the cheers from shore. But despite all the maltreatment from dummy bombs and charges set off under water, she was still a ship—of a sort. She was now to become junk. Appropriately, the scene was near the wreck of the old San Marcos, which the navy several years ago used in target practice.

One at a time bombs were laid on the Indiana and set off. The first, a 100-pound bomb, placed on top of the forward 13-inch gun turret, "dished" the center plate of the turret five-eighths of an inch. Another 100-pounder placed half way up the cage mast destroyed the gun control platform and weakened the supporting struts of the mast. Another of the same size, laid on the forward deck, starboard side, tore a hole in the side of the superstructure and wrecked the deck for a space of two feet square. A 250-pound bomb, loaded with 100 pounds of TNT, detonated in the rear of the 13-inch turret, blew a hole in the deck four feet square and caused damage in the compartments below. A 550-pound bomb placed just forward of the smokestack on the upper deck tore a hole 7x9 feet in that deck and a small hole in the deck below, and damaged the stack and boat deck.

What One 1600-Pound Bomb Did.

The greatest damage was caused by a 1600-pound bomb charged with 900 pounds of explosive. This was laid just rear of and against the eight-inch gun turret on the port side of the ship. Besides lifting the turret out of its roller path and cracking its armor plate, the explosion blew off the upper boat deck, wrecked the second and third decks fore and aft and penetrated downward to the fourth deck. Observers declare the explosion would probably have affected all the personnel in the engine room and killed all in unprotected positions within a radius of 300 feet.

Describing this bomb and its effects to the committee, Gen. Mitchell said: "There were 900 pounds of explosives there, of which 20 pounds were TNT and 880 pounds were amitol. It is the ordinary bomb of the capacity developed several years ago. It was just laid there on the deck. If it had been dropped from an airplane it would have blown the ship into fragments."

According to those who hold, with Gen. Mitchell, that the Indiana experiments prove the armored ship as helpless against airplane attack as the knight in armor was against firearms, a direct hit by an aerial bomb will accomplish the following result:

It will break every electric light globe on the ship and throw her into absolute darkness below decks; will disrupt telephone, radio and interior communication systems; fill fire rooms, engine rooms and all compartments ventilated by force draft, with noxious gases; will cause shell shock to the personnel practically all over the ship; will disrupt ammunition hoists, dislodge and jam turrets, dish under decks, kill all personnel on upper decks, anti-aircraft gun crews, fire control parties in the tops or anyone standing on deck; will cause fire to break out, exploding all anti-aircraft ammunition on upper decks, and sink or disable the battleship. If exploded in the water alongside, it will either sink or permanently disable the vessel.

Hitting in Peace and War Difficult.

Moreover, say the air enthusiasts, it is easy to hit a fast-moving battleship, for the ship can change its course or its speed but slowly in comparison with the plane, and all the airman has to do is "lay over" the ship, adjust his speed to the speed of the target, and let fly. War, they point out, breeds men who will take chances, and if need arose—if, for example, New York was about to be shelled by a fleet—airmen would sacrifice their own lives to go right down on top of the ships and plant their bombs. However effective the anti-aircraft barrage, some aviators, they assert, would get through.

"We have a complete project," said Gen. Mitchell, "involving the use of smoke, the use of gas and attack aviation, to neutralize the anti-aircraft attack and to destroy the ship."

The Air Service has been able to drop dummy bombs on the old Indiana and on the silhouette targets of battleships marked out on Langley Field, Virginia. Can it, in actual fighting, put the capital ship, protected as it is with every device against the airplane, out of business?

The Air Service says that it can; the line officers of the navy say it can't.

And there you are. The controversy which has reached its peak with the disclosure of what happened to the gallant old Indiana can only be settled by tests more nearly simulating actual battle conditions.

PROPOSAL TO MAKE LIBERTY BONDS LEGAL TENDER AT PAR

Petitions Sent to Senator Spencer Requesting Introduction of Necessary Bills.

A proposal to increase and stabilize the market value of Liberty Bonds, by making them legal tender at par for the payment of income taxes and other obligations to the Government, is contained in petitions, addressed to Senator Spencer, which have been circulated by a committee headed by Irving Jones, assistant treasurer of the Mercantile Trust Co.

Senator Spencer is requested, in the petition, to introduce and advocate bills making Liberty Bonds legal tender for the purpose named, and permitting national banks to deposit Liberty Bonds with the United States Treasurer, to secure circulating notes, in the same manner now premitted upon deposit of registered United States bonds.

VOLUME OF ST. LOUIS BUSINESS SHOWS FIVEFOLD GAIN WITHIN TEN YEARS

VOLUME FOREIGN TRADE.
Total St. Louis Business	$ 51,500,000	$ 100,00,000

ST. LOUIS, in ten years, has doubled its banking resources and increased the volume of business transacted almost five times, according to a compilation of business statistics of 1920 and 1910, made public yesterday by the Chamber of Commerce. The statistics form the basis of an article in the February issue of "Greater St. Louis," in which the growth of the city as a manufacturing and jobbing center during the last decade is reviewed.

The survey includes a comparison of statistics of many of the important phases of the city's activities during the 10-year period, such as municipal finances, banks, postoffice receipts and imports, volume of manufactured output, land and building, public schools, street railways, freight traffic, grain receipts and the volume of foreign trade.

Almost every item has increased in favorable proportion during the last decade, with the exception of the miles of street railway track. In 1910 there were 347 miles of single track in the city; 1920, the total mileage is given as 345 miles. However, approximately 100,000,000 additional passengers were carried in the last year as against the number carried in 1910.

Total resources of the city treasury for 1920 are $6,550,708 as against $14,166,386 in 1910, while the bonded debt of the municipality has been reduced from $27,816,311 to $19,064,000. The sinking fund in 1910 was $1,396,030, while in 1920 it amounted to $6,473,869.

Financial Growth of City.

Total resources of St. Louis banks, as indicated by September statements, aggregated $388,409,020 in 1910, while in 1920 this figure increased to $631,166,475. The 1910 deposits were $283,416,824 and for 1920 were $434,074,842. Federal statistics show the postoffice receipts were $4,539,185 for 1910 and $8,627,671 for 1920. In round numbers, 63,000,000 pounds of mail were handled in 1910 and 268,000,000 pounds last year. Imports were $9,000,000 in 1910 as against $17,000,000 in 1920.

Growth of the city as a manufacturing center is illustrated by the tremendous increase in the volume of business in the leading lines. This total was $328,000,000 in 1910 and $1,682,957,145 for the past year. Typical examples given are dry goods, which increased from $75,000,000 to $280,000,000; shoes, from $60,000,000 to $180,000,000; groceries, from $76,500,000 to $157,500,000, and hardware, from $42,000,000 to $110,000,000.

Although more building permits were issued in 1920 than in 1910, the total being 8110, as compared with 6982, a greater percentage were permits for alterations. The cost of new buildings for the year was $17,694,078; for 1910, $19,600,063. The assessed valuation of property increased from its former figure of $564,500,000 to a 1920 total of $777,500,000.

Expansion of School System.

Progress along educational lines is revealed by statistics of the Board of Education. In 1910 the number of schools was 109, as compared with 132 last year; the teachers numbered 2256 in 1910 and 2857 in 1920. Total registration was 95,568 in 1910; 106,991 in 1920.

Freight traffic 10 years ago amounted to 51,918,100 tons. Figures for 1920 are not yet available. In 1919 the total was 66,256,095 tons and it is believed that the 1920 total will exceed these figures. Grain receipts were 67,149,123 bushels in 1910; 94,667,155 bushels in 1920. The volume of St. Louis' foreign business increased from $51,500,000 in 1910 to more than $100,000,000 for the year just closed.

Chamber of Commerce List of Approved Charities for Year

Federated Plan as Followed in Other Large Cities Is Not Favored for Present, Says Report of Investigating Body.

Warnings to charitable St. Louisans to beware of professional parasites have been sent out by the Charities Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce in connection with its approved list of charitable and philanthropic organizations for 1921.

The scope of the committee's approval, as outlined in the booklet, is confined to local charitable and philanthropic organizations seeking contributions from the general public.

The Charities Committee has completed its study of the federated plan for charities and philanthropies as worked out in some other large cities, which includes a careful analysis of the local situation, because in deciding on so radical a departure from the present method of control, the one question of primary importance is, "What plan will result in the greatest efficiency and highest development of the charities and philanthropies themselves?" That which works well in one community may not necessarily be successful in another.

Against Federated Plan.

The committee has concluded that the federated plan should not be adopted here for the present, and not until certain readjustments have been made, and a finer sense of co-operation and understanding has been developed among the agencies.

The list of approved charities for the year follows: Barnard Free Skin and Cancer Hospital, Ben A'Kiba Home for Women, Bethesda Charities, Beth Moshab Z'Keinheim Society, Big Brother Organization, Big Sisters of St. Louis, Board of Religious Organizations, Boyle Memorial Center, Caroline Mission (Evangelical Social Center), Catholice Outing Home, Central Institute for the Deaf, Children's Home Society of Missouri, Children's Industrial Farm Association, Children's Lunch Association, Christian Orphans' Home of the National Benevolent Association of the Christian Church, Epworth School for Girls, Evangelical Deaconess Home and Hospital, Federation of Jewish Charities, German General Protestant Orphans' Association, German Protestant Orphans' Home, Girls' Industrial Home, Girls' Protective Association of St. Louis (Euclid House), Greeley Memorial Presbyterian Church (institutional), Holy Cross Corporation, Home for Aged and Infirm Israelites, Home of the Friendless, Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association, Humane Society of Missouri, International Institute of the Y. W. C. A., Jewish Community Center, Jewish Home for Chronic Invalids, Jewish Hospital, Jewish Orphans' Home, Jewish Shelter Home, Junior League of St. Louis, Kingdom House, the Letmar Club Association, Markham Memorial Presbyterian Church (institutional), Memorial Home, Miriam Convalescent Home, Mission Free School, Missouri Association for the Blind, Missouri Association for Occupational Therapy, Missouri Baptist Orphans' Home, Neighborhood Association, the Old Folks' Home, People's Hospital (colored), Queen's Daughters, Russell Home, St. Joseph's Deaf Mute Institute, St. Louis Altenheim, St. Louis Association for Social Work, St. Louis Catholic Woman's League of Missouri, St. Louis Children's Aid Society, St. Louis Children's Hospital, St. Louis Colored Orphans' Home Association, St. Louis Council of National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations, St. Louis County Welfare Association, St. Louis Maternity Hospital, St. Louis Obstetric Hospital and Dispensary Association, St. Louis Protestant Orphans' Asylum, St. Louis Provident Association, St. Louis Pure Milk Commission, St. Louis Settlement Association, St. Louis Working Girls' Home, St. Luke's Hospital, St. Vincent de Paul Society, the Salvation Army Rescue and Maternity Home, Sisters of St. Mary, South Side Day Nursery, Summer Rest—branch of Women's Christian Association, Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis, Urban League of the St. Louis Provident Association, the Visiting Nurse Association of St. Louis, Wesley House Settlement, Women's Christian Home, Young Men's Christian Association, Young Women's Christian Association of St. Louis, Phyllis Wheatley branch of Young Women's Christian Association of St. Louis.

Agencies Not Passed Upon.

The committee does not pass on the work of the following agencies, but refers donors to the Archbishop of St. Louis for information: Aid Society for the Inmates of Penal and Reformatory Institutions of Missouri, Alexian Brothers' Hospital, Catholic Women's Association, Convent of the Good Shepherd, Father Dempsey's Hotel for Workingmen, Father Dempsey's Hotel for Workingwomen, Father Dunne's Newsboys' Home, German St. Vincent Orphan Association, the Helpers of the Holy Souls in Purgatory, Hessoun Bohemian Catholic Orphanage, Home of the Aged, Mercy Home (St. Joseph's Convent of Mercy), Mount St. Rose Hospital, St. Ann's Widows' Home, Lying-in Hospital and Foundling Asylum, St. Anthony's Hospital, St. Elizabeth's Settlement of the Central Verein, St. Frances' Colored Orphans' Asylum, St. John's Hospital, St. Joseph's Catholic Social Center, St. Joseph's Male Orphan Asylum, St. Louis Mullanphy Hospital, St. Mary's Female Orphan Asylum, St Patrick's Day Nursery and Emergency Home, St. Philomena's Technical School, St. Vincent's Institution for the Insane, White Cross Crusade.

The following agencies are listed as not reporting to the committee direct but are under the supervision of the Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association: Barnes Hospital, Missouri Baptist Sanitarium, Mount St. Rose Hospital, St. John's Hospital, St. Louis Baptist Hospital.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Don't Burn Your Bonds.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The statement that I have advised people to burn their Liberty Bonds has been published rather widely in newspapers of recent date. I have given no such advice. On the contrary, I believe Liberty Bonds at the present time a good investment, and am advising my friends to keep what they have and to save money and buy more.

Two years ago, when prices were rising and people were buying all kinds of luxuries with their Liberty Bonds, I said in a public address in New York City that such practice was dangerous, for it tended to make prices rise still further, and any such artificial rise of prices would certainly be followed by a crisis, if not a panic. "Rather than have people use their Liberty Bonds as money," I said, "I would prefer to see them all burned in a big bonfire the next Fourth of July."

A few weeks ago I addressed the business men in an up-state city on "The Credit Outlook of 1921." In that talk I said that the rise of prices which succeeded the armistice and culminated in a collapse last May had been partly due to the use of Liberty Bonds as money, but I said nothing about burning them, for they are no longer working any mischief in our markets.

After my address two reporters talked with me and I tried to make them see the difference between conditions today and those of two years ago. In my talk I told them about my bonfire suggestion of two years ago. That was very unwise, as I see now, for one of the young men in his report of my address made me advocate the burning of Liberty Bonds at the present time. I did not see his newspaper until 10 days later, and so was considerably surprised when letters poured in from distressed widows and indignant investors, denouncing me as a fool professor.

JOS. FRENCH JOHNSON.

Do Not Stop Immigration.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Referring to the letter opposing immigration the writer, I think, forgets to look on the good side of the question. There are many American citizens who have beloved parents or brothers and sisters in Europe, suffering, perhaps, worse than death, and the only relief for them is to come to this country, where they can learn to live in a free country and become the best of citizens. Looking at this question from a business view, these immigrants would need clothing and shoes and furniture and other thinks necessary for the comforts of life. This would encourage buying and keep things moving. So let immigration go on and give those that are suffering a chance to live in God's country.

AN AMERICAN CITIZEN.

Daylight Saving.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

As spring approaches, there again arises the question as to whether we are to have the daylight saving law or not. That this law was not in effect in St. Louis last year, it is absolutely certain, was not of the people's choosing. They had no choice in the matter whatever. The attitude of the public was ignored and in the face of the fact that St. Louis wanted two more hours of sunshine after a day of mental and physical exhaustion, St. Louis did without it.

It will be but a matter of a short time before the question will again be placed before the representatives of the city, and let us hope that their views will this time be in accord with those of other large cities and that their verdict will be such as to allow the business man, the laboring man and the working woman to receive the effects of "Old Sol" other than in the office, the factory or the eternal grind of the day's routine.

This letter is not written from the standpoint of the tennis enthusiast, nor of a past advocate of the law. I was one of those vastly opposed to it, until I had an opportunity to see that the effects resultant from its repeal were not such as would or could be considered of sufficient advantage over the former year as to warrant its continued existence.

At least, it is not out of order to add the hope that we may have a word in the matter. With all due respect to the judgment of our city officials, a question of this kind, of such vital interest to the people, should certainly be placed before the people for their approval or disapproval.

A CONVERT.

Bonus or Job.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I was interested in a letter in your column, "Not a Bonus, a Job." Thought I'd explain points left out.

I am an ex-service man myself, having served 22 months in France. While we were fighting, people back home were saying what they were going to do for us when we returned to civil life, patting us on the back, saying, "Go to it." But after we had fought and kept their homes together and the "Stars and Stripes" floating above their heads, what are they doing for us today? I believe likewise, "Keep the bonus," but let us have a job, whereby we can support our families. We do not ask for charity, but only a chance. I have been out of work for two months.

EX-SERVICE.

FOR MISSOURI BOYS AND GIRLS.

The defeat in the House of the first bill sponsored by the State Teachers' Association is taken to mean that the whole educational program is jeopardized.

No other construction is possible. This bill, so modest in its proposals, was beaten by the overwhelming vote of 75 to 31. Its object was to get better teachers in our country schools by gradually raising the qualifications. It provided that, after Sept. 1, 1922, applicants for third-grade teachers' certificates should have done two years' high school work. Two years later, Sept. 1, 1924, the requirement was to be three years' high-school work, and on Sept. 1, 1925, a full four-year high-school course. Teachers with five years' experience were exempt from the provisions of the bill.

Nobody can sincerely contend that the requirements of this bill are exacting. To be competent to teach a person must have some education of a strictly bookish sort and the character and poise developed by discipline and application. That such attainments can be had without high-school work is impossible, except in the case of genius. It was genius that Representative Hubbard of Lawrence County had in mind when, in vociferating against the bill, he wanted to know if the "immortal Lincoln was a high-school graduate." Mr. Hubbard might also have presented Shakspeare as proof of the uselessness of high schools, or even of grade schools. Unfortunately, there are few Lincolns or Shakspeares. Democracy recognizes that fact. Aware that genius is the architect of its own fortune democracy concerns itself with the common run of us by giving us the opportunity and facilities with which to make the most of ourselves. The greatest single institution that democracy has provided for the general betterment is the public school.

In this respect Missouri has been cruelly and criminally delinquent. The responsibility for this was charged, during the last campaign, against the party that had been so long in power in this State. The fact was cited that educationally Missouri ranked thirty-fourth in the list of states. The pittances our rural teachers were paid as wages were dwelt upon. The testimony of rural teachers was cited, showing how their salaries did not meet their bare living expenses. The hovels that served as schoolhouses were introduced into the story of Missouri's shame.

We were promised better things. Missouri was to be lifted out of the educational mud. Mr. Hyde and his opponent, Mr. Atkinson, properly denounced the less-than-living wage of our school teachers, and both parties in their platforms pledged themselves unequivocally to decent salaries for teachers. Now, the first effort to improve the schools by requiring better equipped teachers, which necessarily means higher salaries, is defeated by more than a two-thirds vote in the House, by almost a three-fourths vote.

How the 75 members of the House who voted against this bill can reconcile their action with their party platforms, with the personal pledges of the heads of their tickets, with the terrible facts and conditions of our rural schools, and with their own consciences, we do not know.

In his inaugural address Gov. Hyde, discussing our educational needs, said:

> One of the most important and far-reaching matters to come before this session is the question of school legislation. I regret that the standing of Missouri among the states of the Union in educational matters is not such as to give us cause for pride. * * * In considering legislation great weight should be given to the testimony and recommendations of the teachers and educational leaders of the State, though it should never be forgotten that education is not solely a teachers' problem. The problem of successful schools must be approached from the viewpoint of the citizen who provides the taxes and sends the children to the schools. The object of the schools is to afford to every child an opportunity for the best possible education and, therefore, the best possible opportunity in life.

The bill which has been defeated had the support of 15,000 teachers and many County School Superintendents. But this expert testimony, for which the Governor bespoke such serious consideration by legislators, was flouted. If the vote honestly expresses the convictions of our legislators and the wishes of their constituents, then Missouri is content with its wretched schools, its miserably paid teachers and its disgraceful educational standing.

That such is the fact we do not believe. But even if it were true there is still a constituency to be heard from. This constituency is not able to voice its protest. It cannot censure or penalize its betrayers now. It is the boys and girls of rural Missouri that were wronged when the House refused to give them better teachers and denied them a fair chance.

This wrong should be repaired promptly. Will not the Senate undertake to do justice by Missouri's boys and girls by passing this bill and compelling its reconsideration by the House?

COAL PROFITS IN 1920.

The coal operators of West Virginia had a prosperous year in 1920. In one instance the profits were 200 per cent of the investment. Some of the companies, however, did not do so well as that. One of them, for example, made 109 per cent. There is a record, too, of a company closing the year with a net profit of 67 per cent, and still another that made only 35 per cent.

The coal operators, however, decline to admit that such profits had anything to do with the price of coal. They explain to consumers that coal prices are due principally to the advance in wages, though freight rates are also conceded to be a contributing cause.

Meantime, the Calder bill, designed to stop profiteering in coal by nationalizing the coal mines, if no other plan is effective, is before the Senate. And the most urgent argument for its enactment is the folly of the coal operators in presuming to think that they have inherited the divine right of the departed Baer to plunder the public.

SOLDIER HOSPITALS.

The House has passed a bill, by a rising vote, appropriating $13,000,000 for hospital accommodations for disabled soldiers. This sum falls far short of the $30,000,000 estimated as necessary by Surgeon-General Cummings some time ago.

The Surgeon-General's judgment was based on the fact that there are now more than 19,000 soldier hospital patients. Some 5000 of those patients are suffering from tuberculosis, a similar number from neurosis and the rest from general breakdown. Moreover, the number of patients is increasing rapidly each month, a condition which, it is said, will continue for several years, or until 1929, when the maximum of 30,000 will be reached.

Possibly the present appropriation will suffice for present needs. However, the possibility of inadequate provision should not have been risked. If there is one obligation of our Government above another which calls for generosity to the limit of need, it is the care of our disabled soldiers. A niggardly response to this demand would be treasonable ingratitude.

It is in the ranks of the disabled, too, that the cost of war is written prohibitively. Fallen thrones, provinces lost or recovered, the creation of new states, economic crises—those are the incidents of war. It is the wreckage of men that indicts our civilization's reversion to barbarism and challenges the statesmanship of the world to see that this crime against the present and the future shall not be repeated.

Meantime, ample provision must be made for those first creditors of our Government. As Watterson might put it: To hell with battleships. Build hospitals.

GUILTY OR NOT GUILTY?

Not all of the subject of our economic ailments is covered in the recent and last annual report of Comptroller of the Currency John Skelton Williams, in which he makes a sweeping indictment of the excessive profits still being exacted, he says, by the steel and coal producers. Unquestionably disrupted foreign markets are very largely involved in the hesitancy of industry to return to normal. Germany—to cite one of numerous instances—before the war was one of the largest purchasers of American copper, which she used in the manufacture of electrical goods. Owing principally to her present paralyzed condition, our copper mines have all but ceased operations.

It cannot be held by Mr. Williams, therefore—nor does he attempt to maintain—that the free and fair marketing of the two basic commodities, steel and coal, would swing the industrial pendulum back to normal. But he does intimate very pointedly that American business is not doing all in its power to induce the return of normalcy. In the face of an imperative demand for coal and iron following the armistice, states the Comptroller, production was reduced one-fourth "for the purpose of enabling manufacturers and miners to obtain, because of the insistent and peremptory demand for coal and iron, the exorbitant profits realized during the war, instead of the more moderate profits which they would have had to accept if the maximum output had been maintained."

Mr. Williams ought to know what he is talking about. He was a veteran organizer and official of railway and industrial institutions before he entered the Treasury Department in 1913. Since 1914 he has served in his present important capacity with original access to all the official information obtainable in his field.

His report places the steel and coal industries squarely against the necessity of disproving his charges of deliberate profiteering and manipulation of the market or of standing convicted.

THAT DEADLY UTAH.

The United States Chamber of Commerce is unnecessarily alarmed about the Federal Government's fell designs on the packers. The Chamber of Commerce would much better turn its attention to Utah, which seems destined, at its present pace, to become regulator in chief of this once estimable hemisphere.

Consider what Utah has already accomplished this winter. She has banned cigarettes, driven the practice of smoking in any genre into the dark arcana of the home, amputated a couple of inches from the high heels of femininity and has just declared for meatless Fridays. And this has been a mild winter, too. What Utah will do as soon as the climate gets back to normalcy!

If Utah can proscribe meat on one day, why not on any other day, or all other days? And with meat removed from the menu as completely as the various manifestations of John Barleycorn, the packers will cease from troubling. They will be one with Nineveh, Tyre, the brass rail and the white-aproned gentry of old, unhappy, far-off times. If the Chamber of Commerce hopes to save the packers it should forget Washington and mobilize on Utah.

We do not wish to be misunderstood as saying that the total prohibition of meat, which Utah may be expected shortly to effectuate, will be an unalloyed blessing. Doubtless purveyors of that forbidden merchandise will infest the land—brothers in spirit to the class denominated bootleggers. And the consequence of beefsteaks and pork chops obtainable only at murderous prices and by persons properly vouched for could not, we believe, be looked forward to complacently. We must also take into account the possibility of desperate housewives attempting, in violation of the law, to coax the fledgling lamb to edible size or inducing the egg to achieve chickenship within the fastnesses of their rooftrees.

All this may come about unless somebody applies the brakes to Utah. If the Chamber of Commerce wants to save the packers, it should pitch its camp on the physically placid but morally seething shores of Salt Lake.

RUSSIA.

OH, FATE, which only uses man to set a stone,
To fell a tree or blast a mountain fissure, cleft—
For marble, cold, uncouth, to sculpture out a Throne—
From which the Romanoffs their royal house have weft.

Oh land of snow and sleigh-beat tree-marked avenues,
Where wolves salute the jingling bells in mock refrain,
Where remnants of a traveler's death the way bestrews,
And fangs of savage bears in snow have left their stain.

In gray processions they who scorned the Czar were driven—
Into Siberia to labor, and to toss—
On beds of agony; to pass away unshriven.
And as they passed were shown a stemple for a cross.

No more thy Capitol is sanctified or known—
By apostolic title, but an impious age—
Inscribes its Petrograd; thy piety has flown,
And in its stead has come the curse of unleashed rage.

Within thy boundaries were endless half-told tales—
Of intrigue, love, of mighty men and beauty rare;
The memories of romance remain where history fails,
To tell us why thy mysteries are ever there.

Each night the little children list as mother tells—
Of Santa Claus, Kris Kringle, and their Northern homes—
In far-off Russia; Christmas and the midnight bells,
Rung in the Kremlin and in great Cathedral domes.

A seventh of all the world was thine to have and hold—
To guide in Art and Music; and in graceful dance—
No nation equaled thee; thy treasuries of gold—
Uncounted; Oh Russia, wake, wake, from out thy Trance.

Time was when Russia spake, the world was fain to hear,
Whoe'er was Czar of all the Russias, held their fate;
Grim Fate; which only uses man its path to clear
Has borne the Romanoffs within the graveyard gate.

Sir: Some of the most serious casualties incident to the recent cosmic crash were those suffered by the English language. The results are so numerous that they may be resolved into types, and it is of one of these—adequately designated, perhaps, traumatic idioms—that I hope here to treat effectively an aggravated instance:

During nearly six years, whenever any one seeking public attention has evinced a loss of perspicacity at short range, he has become at once, either in his own pretension or in the ascriptions of his promoters, a "forward-looking" man.

No one (except me, and even my utterances some of my literary friends called "vatic")—no one, who has had occasion to commit critical expression in English, has seemed able to avoid the phrase; and yet in no case has it indicated any discovery ahead worth the telling. It has been merely the description of an attitude—an attitude of evasion in fact, signifying nothing but the need of avoidance as to instant questions, the importance of which developed more promptly than true or available answers.

I should like to make the foolish fad—attribution to the conventional "great man" of such a meaningless essential—seem to the public as ridiculous as it is.

No doubt it originated in the confused reaction of his Democracy to Wilson's declaration, in April, 1915, that "no man was wise enough to pronounce judgment" on the "titanic struggle" Germany had precipitated—that "no one could speak definitely in the midst of a confused world because no one had the key to the confusion; and no man could see the outcome, but every man could keep his own spirit prepared" to ratify it when it "displayed itself."

His hypothesis was obvious: That, since intelligence culminated in him and he was unable to formulate the ethical issue of the world-welter, of course no man could. It was determinable only with the outcome of the physical struggle, and there was nothing to do but to abide that and learn what to think: * * * All natural enough and conclusive on Wilson's part; but even his docile Democracy—subconsciously and inexpressibly, perhaps—were smitten with some American instinct or intuition fatally at variance with his position. Committed, however, to the dogma of his infallibility, they were driven into this "forward-looking" attitude as the only position into which they could reconcile their Wilsonism and their Americanism.

The rife prophets of the Semitic era were articulate, taking effect accordingly; and seers of every era—usually, if not essentially heretical—gain ultimate appreciation just in proportion to the distinctness with which they see and describe "things as they are;" but these forward-lookers have not as yet evinced discernment of anything, at this ostensible foci of their "looks," that could conceivably develop into a subject of veritable public interest. * * * No, the "League of Nations" is properly a subject only of strictly retrospective inspection—Volney, Tennyson, et al, brought it exhaustively into intellectual definition long ago. * * *

By all means the somewhat histrionic concourse of forward-lookers should be induced to relieve their bootlessly strained vision and to turn a normal scrutiny on the multiplying subjects of instant human concern.

Let them learn the lesson of Thorvaldsen as construed by the poet Aldrich.

WAR COST TO INDIVIDUAL.

From the Christian Science Monitor.

No matter how deeply peace-loving people appreciate the meaning of the current proposal for international disarmament, the point of it all hardly comes home to any individual until he realizes the terrible details of war in the light of the multiplication table. The cost of war always seems remote from individuals. They think of it as a burden for nations, a mass weight of a nature to be lifted only by some human mass. But, as a matter of fact, it is possible to cut this great cost into its particles, grind these particles through the multiplication table, and all the stupendous wastage of war stands clearly forth, where every clerk and every tradesman can plainly see. Anyone who has ever used a cartridge for a target rifle is aware that it costs but little. A cartridge for a magazine rifle costs only a little more. But war does not deal with cartridges by dozens and fifties. It deals with them by millions. And it is not to be forgotten that a million rifle cartridges are as a drop of water in a spring freshet to the number that are shot away in a great war. What is thus true in the case of rifle cartridges is all the more impressive in artillery ammunition. Few people would care, personally, to pay the cost of a single shot from a 110-ton gun. One such shot, at $800 or more, would be enough to satisfy any ordinary individual ambition in that direction. Yet governments not only pay for multiple shots at that rate, but they provide the guns with which the shots are made, at a cost, for each gun, of perhaps 100 times what a single shot amounts to. And in spite of this great outlay, not more than a hundred shots can be counted upon, without re-firing, from any one gun. So quickly do these engines of war wear themselves out and swell the total of war's wastage. What this means is illuminated by the statement that a thousand shots from such big guns is equivalent to the loss of yearly interest on a capital of nearly $10,000,000. Shortsighted, indeed, are those who stupefy themselves with the notion that nations pay for all this sort of thing! What are nations but individuals writ large? It is the individual who pays. Not even the poorest can escape.

ENGLAND AND RUSSIA.

From the San Francisco Chronicle.

THE arrangement between Great Britain and the Russian soviet virtually recognizes it as a de facto Government with which it can officially deal. The convention signed is stated to be preliminary to the conclusion of a formal treaty. Some conditions are made, the most important being that Great Britain will not permit the attachment of property delivered in Great Britain by the soviet as not the property of that Government, and, on the part of the soviet, that it will cease revolutionary propaganda within the British dominions. In fact, both parties agree to let the other politically alone. The Baltic Sea is to be cleared of mines, postal and telegraphic services are to be restored and business generally is to go on "as usual." While the British Government was doubtless impressed with the necessity of checking Bolshevist emissaries out of India and Persia, just as the soviet felt the necessity of importing supplies, it is difficult to see why the arrangement is not wholly desirable. The rule of the soviet is a grotesque tyranny, compared with which the worst abuses of the Czars were mild and benevolent, but so was the rule of the French Directory after the deposition of Louis XVI. And yet in due time the French people straightened themselves out and re-established a responsible and orderly Government—a succession of them, in fact. There is no reason to doubt that the Russian people will do the same thing. Apparently the British Government has shown common sense. Nobody has any quarrel with the mass of the Russian people, who, in any event, have the right to a Government of their own choice, and, what is more, the power to get it.

Events in the Social World

Society's Interests Turning to the Serious During Lenten Season, and Charity Affairs Are Receiving the Most Attention—Preparations for Flower Show Being Made.

WITH the penitential season coming earlier than usual this year society has bidden farewell to a short and none too gay winter season. That no formal entertaining is being done is proof that Lent is being observed even by those who are not bound by religious obligations. Society's interests are being confined for the most part to serious things. Charity has been the keynote of the last week. The "Invisible Guest" dinner was given at the St. Louis Club Wednesday evening with members of the Junior League serving, and a "Hoover" card party Thursday at the Hotel Statler, proceeds from both these affairs going to the European Relief Fund.

Besides the usual activities of the Junior League, members are now engaged in campaigning for Mrs. Elias Michael for the School Board.

Preparations for the second annual flower show, which the St. Louis Garden Club will hold in May, are occupying another group of women.

Mrs. E. H. Simmons is general chairman of the show, which is to demonstrate the possibilities of home gardening. Some of the committee chairman are Mrs. Herman von Shrenk, Mrs. Fidelio Sharp, Mrs. Clinton Whittemore, Mrs. Edward J. Walsh and Mrs. James Drummond.

Of interest in St. Louis is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Edith Harris, daughter of Mrs. Lloyd G. Harris, formerly of Waverly place, to Joseph W. Prather in San Antonio, Tex., on Jan. 27. The couple will make their home in Mexico. Mrs. Harris, who is visiting in Texas, is expected to return to St. Louis in the spring.

The engagement of Miss Hildegarde Hanpeter, daughter of E. C. Hanpeter of 3213 Palm street, to Charles M. Cunliff Jr. was announced yesterday at a luncheon at which the prospective bridegroom's sister, Miss Ruth Cunliff, was hostess at her home, 15 Windermere place. Miss Hanpeter is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and a member of the Delta Gamma Sorority. The date of the wedding has not been announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Wheaton C. Ferris of 6995 Washington avenue, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Williams of 5732 Cates avenue, left last Tuesday for Havana, Cuba, to remain a month.

Mr. and Mrs. William G. Boyd of 5601 Washington court have as their guests Mr. Boyd's sister, Mrs. J. C. Mahon, and sister-in-law, Mrs. J. G. Boyd of Louisville, Ky.

Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Dally of 5532 Maple avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Daily, to Dudley W. Southward of 6185 Kingsbury boulevard. The wedding will take place in June.

Miss Mildred Myers of 5653 Cates avenue returned last week from Pueblo, Colo., where she spent two months with her brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. G. M. Myers.

Miss Virginia Fowler of 5742 McPherson avenue was hostess at a bridge party at her home yesterday, in honor of Miss Georgine Culling, who will accompany her mother, Mrs. Horace Culling, and sister, Mrs. Clark Clardy, to California this week.

The marriage of Miss Helen Wiener, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Wiener of 5588 Waterman avenue, to Leonard Sessler of Philadelphia, took place Tuesday in Philadelphia. The couple will reside in the East. Mrs. Sessler was educated at Lindenwood and Smith College. Her parents, who were present at the wedding, are expected to return home in about two weeks.

Officers for 1921 include Mrs. W. D. Simmons, regent; Mrs. Edward Bretch and Mrs. Walter Fabricius, vice regents; Mrs. Charles Williams, recording secretary; Mrs. William Penniman, treasurer; Miss Catherine Penniman, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Eugene Johnson, historian; Miss Edna Newcomb, Miss Nellie A. Holman and Miss Cornelia C. Dyer, directors.

Sorority Circle will have a reciprocity meeting Thursday, Feb. 17, at 2 o'clock. It will be held in the Scruggs-Vandervoort recital hall. A special musical program is planned and a sketch entitled "Washington's First Defeat" will be given by Miss Blanche Walton, Mrs. Lyle Campbell and Mrs. Girard. Presidents and all club members are invited.

A silver tea will be given Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 22, from 3 to 6 o'clock, at the residence of Mrs. W. D. Simmons, 5085 Raymond avenue, for the St. Louis Society, Children of the American Revolution. Proceeds will be given to the Tuberculosis Society, in which the senior division, C. A. R., takes an active interest. Members of patriotic societies are invited.

The Hadassah Sunbeams will give a doll shower and dance at the Jewish Community Center, 3636 Page boulevard, this evening. The dolls donated will be sent to the little orphans in Palestine.

Mrs. Harry Phelps was hostess to Chapter C. K., P. E. O., at her home, 3535 Wyoming street, Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 8. Luncheon was followed by a business meeting.

The marriage of Miss Lucile Kriegesman to George Montgomery, 2222 Nebraska avenue, was solemnized Feb. 2, at the home of the bride's parents, 1436 Belt avenue. Only the immediate relatives were present at the ceremony, after which there was a reception to about 100 guests. The young couple departed for a tour through the Southwest, and will be at home March 1, at 1436 Belt avenue.

The wedding of Miss Sophian Orenstein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Orenstein of 4620 Newberry terrace, to Charles Gold, took place Wednesday evening at Shaare Zedek Temple, Dr. Adolph Rosentreter officiating. Misses Faye Orenstein and Lillian Gold were bridesmaids and Jack Orenstein, a brother of the bride, was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Gold will reside in Chicago.

The College Club, St. Louis Branch of the Association of Collegiate Alumnae, will hold its regular weekly meeting Tuesday, Feb. 15, at 3:30 o'clock, in the Church of the Unity. The Literary Section will be in charge with Mrs. Elma H. Benton, principal of Hosmer Hall, as speaker.

At the informal tea which will precede Mrs. Benton's talk, the hostesses will be Misses Catherine Regan, Katherine Prehn, Helen Duffett, Anita Battle, Lois Bogle and Edith Glatfelter.

Miss Leona Phelps entertained at her home, 1316 Union boulevard, Friday evening, in honor of Miss Mabel Williams.

Mrs. L. R. Vincent, regent of Douglas Oliver Chapter, D. A. R., assisted by her daughter, Mrs. F. H. Udell, entertained the chapter

Wednesday afternoon in honor of its ...nth anniversary.

The members of the Tuxedo Literary Club will be guests of Mrs. H. D. Hetzell of Webster Groves at a luncheon at the M. A. C., Tuesday afternoon, at 1 o'clock. A special program has been arranged by Mrs. Jane Wood, president of the club.

Mrs. William Voittien of 3738 Gravois avenue entertained Feb. 5 in honor of the birthday of her young daughter, Miss Louise Voittien.

The Literature Section of the Webster Groves Monday Club met last Monday morning with Mrs. W. S. Farries and Mrs. William Keysor in charge. The next meeting will be held Feb. 22. Monday afternoon the Science and Educational Section of the club held its monthly meeting, with Miss Alice Williamson in charge. The subject for the afternoon was "Educational Philanthropy." TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed with Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive-

FLOWER SHOW TO BE HELD AT SHAW'S GARDEN IN MAY

Garden Club Offers Long List of Prizes for Exhibits of Back Yard Plants.

Under the auspices of the St. Louis Garden Club, a big public flower show will be held at Shaw's Garden, May 21 and 22, and there will be a long list of prizes for amateurs, and money premiums for commercial displays. The use of the big horticultural hall has been given to the club, and the show also will be open at night. Entries of back-yard plants and flowers are desired, as the show is given to demonstrate the possibilities of home gardening in St. Louis. The Garden Club is composed of persons who have demonstrated the practicability of gardening, and who wish to give the benefit of their experiences and success to other amateurs.

The first annual show was held by the club last year at Shaw's Garden, resulting in a notable display of flowers, shrubs, kitchen herbs, vegetables, mushrooms and flowering trees. A number of prizes have already been offered for this year's show, both in the amateur and commercial classes. An annual prize of $75 for special bulbs has been offered by a firm of bulb specialists of New York City.

Dr. B. M. Duggar is president of the Garden Club, Mrs. W. J. Polk is vice president, W. N. Matthews is secretary and treasurer. Mrs. E. H. Simmons is general chairman of the garden show; Mrs. James Drummond, entries chairman; Mrs. Fidelio Sharp, prizes for amateurs; E. H. Angert, commercial prizes; Mrs. Robert Terry, exhibits; Mrs. Clinton Whittemore, arrangements of exhibits; E. H. Simmons, finances, and R. H. Switzler, publicity.

CATHOLIC WOMEN HOLD ELECTION

Mrs. A. A. O'Halloran Named Treasurer of Local Council.

Mrs. A. A. O'Halloran of 5875 Enright avenue was chosen treasurer of the St. Louis Diocesan Council of the National Welfare Council of Catholic Women at the first meeting of the Administration Committee of the organization yesterday at Hotel Statler. Mrs. Charles P. Cote, 6025 Waterman avenue, was made secretary. The committee voted to issue an invitation to all the Catholic women's organizations in the archdiocese to join the National Welfare Council.

Arrangements were also made to hold a mass meeting of Catholic women at the Odeon in the near future. Invitations were sent to the Rev. John J. Burke, Washington, D. C., director of the welfare work of the national organization, and Mrs. Michael Gavin of New York, president of the National Women's Council, to speak.

CAPT. SKINKER BURIAL HERE

Body of St. Louisan Killed in France Is Being Brought Home.

The body of Capt. Alexander R. Skinker of the 138th (St. Louis) Infantry, who was killed in action in the Argonne, is being brought home for reburial in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Capt. Skinker was one of the two St. Louisans who won congressional medals of honor, and was a graduate of Washington University. Public funeral will be held here, in which uniformed members of the legion will participate. A local post of the American Legion is named in his honor.

Every Woman Can Afford to Be Well Dressed When These

Spring Suits Are Moderately Priced

At $39.75 and $59.75

HIGH-GRADE tailoring is a notable characteristic of these Suits. They have good lines, which will not depart in sun or shower because they are the result of fine workmanship. The materials are tricotine, twills, cheviots, Scotch mixtures and wool velours.

They are developed in a variety of styles which range from the practical Suit of simple cut to that made dressy by intricate lines and much hand embroidery.

There are many different models to select from, which means that every woman can buy the most becoming style at a very low price.

A Group of Model Suits Are Very Special Values at $79.50

A TOUCH of originality that every Suit in this group possesses will tempt the woman who longs to be different. She must, like all her sisters, wear a Suit. The mode has decreed it. But here she has a chance to buy one with individuality, as well as style and finish. These Suits are decidedly unusual at the price.

ART MUSEUM OBTAINS STUDY BY DUVENECK

Painting of Head of Man Is a Characteristic Example of the Artist's Work.

The city Art Museum acquired at the February meeting of the Board of Control a characteristic work by the well-known American painter, Frank Duveneck, who died early in 1919. The painting is a study of the head of a man, 20x15 inches in size. It was painted at Munich in 1881 and presented at that time by the artist to Walter McEwen, another prominent painter. The picture is that of a man of rugged features, with sturdy bared neck and unshaven face, turned slightly to the left, the shaded portions of the features melting imperceptibly into the dark background. It exhibits the facile handling of the brush and the rich coloring characteristic of Duveneck's work.

Has a Dark Background.

The painting bears the appearance of having been executed at a single sitting, the artist working upon a dark background, as was his custom, and manipulating the color and drawing while the entire canvas was still wet. In Duveneck's hands, this treatment resulted in a remarkable freshness of effect which led no less an authority than John Singer Sargent to declare that "Frank Duveneck is the greatest talent of the brush of this generation."

Duveneck was born in 1848 at Covington, Ky. He entered the Royal Academy at Munich in 1870, where his career was a brilliant one. His work soon became popular and pupils flocked to his studio. He was for many years a highly successful teacher of painting in Munich, Florence, Venice, and more recently at the Cincinnati Art Academy. He numbered among his pupils many artists who afterwards became prominent, including John W. Alexander, John H. Twachtman, Joseph De Camp, Oliver D. Grover and Julian Story, all of whom are represented in the museum's permanent collection of paintings.

The attendance at the Art Museum during January was 17,764, this being the largest number of visitors ever recorded for that month. The largest previous January attendance was in 1919, when there were 12,143 visitors.

Prize Painting on Exhibition.

The painting, "Torn Lingerie," by Frederick C. Frieseke, which was the recipient of unusual honors at the American Art Exhibition of the Chicago Art Institute last fall, has been returned to the St. Louis Museum and may now be seen by visitors. This painting, which was purchased by the Museum in 1915, was awarded the Potter Palmer gold medal, carrying with it a cash prize of $1000; the William M. R. French gold medal, and the Edward B. Butler prize of $100, voted by visitors to the most popular picture in the Chicago show.

TRIES TO CATCH ANOTHER THIEF AND LOSES ONE HE HAD

Volunteer Policeman, Tricked by Negro Roost Robber, Fires at Him and Kills a Chicken.

Wilfred Jones, City Attorney of Maplewood, yesterday was telling a story at the expense of one of the six volunteer policemen who have been aiding Marshal Brown in law enforcement. This volunteer policeman was on duty Thursday night, Jones said, when Marshal Brown turned over to him a negro chicken thief whom he had captured and told him to take him to the police station. The negro carried a sack of stolen chickens.

On the way to the station the negro told the volunteer policeman he was employed by a white man who was in an automobile a short distance away. He said he would take the policeman to the white man.

The volunteer policeman saw a chance for another capture and permitted the negro to guide him. When they got into a clump of woods the negro tripped him and fled, dropping the sack of chickens. The volunteer fired a shot at the negro. Then he picked up the sack and found his bullet had killed one of the chickens.

CATHOLIC WOMEN TO AID FUND

Committee Appointed to Work for St. Louis University Endowment.

A special committee of the Catholic Women's Association, numbering nearly 500 workers and representing every parish and sodality organization in the city, has been appointed to assist in the raising of the $3,000,000 centennial endowment fund for St. Louis University.

A call for a meeting of the committee, to be held at the university at 8 p. m., Tuesday, has been issued by the chairman, Miss Bertha H. Bruening, and her associates, Mrs. James J. Connell and the Misses Frances Clesse, Elizabeth J. Doyle and Mary Seiler. The Rev. William F. Robison, president of the university, will address the meeting and explain the necessity for the immediate co-operation of the women of the city.

CEDAR CHEST MAKERS TO MEET

National Body of Manufacturers Will Be Here for Two Days.

The National Association of Cedar Chest Manufacturers will begin a two-day convention Tuesday at the Claridge Hotel, Eighteenth and Locust streets. The delegates will discuss a proposed advertising campaign against the idea that a cedar chest is a luxury. The protective qualities of cedar against moths and other destroying insects will be discussed, using Government reports.

Local plants will be inspected during the convention.

No Bust Pads

NOW Use the National "Bust developed 5 inches," Says Mrs. Allendorf.

"The first three weeks bust developed 3½ in.," reports Dr. Allendorf.

Only Real Bust Developer

The National is the special Bust Developed Dr. C. S. Carr formerly recommended in the Physical Culture Magazine as the only safe, reliable method known for enlarging the bust in a natural way. Of this method, Dr. Carr said: "Indeed, it will bring about a development of the busts quite astonishing." This has been proven over and over by those using The National. In reports sent us some have obtained as much as five inches development by following Dr. Carr's instructions.

VALUABLE BOOK FREE

If you want a beautiful, plump, full bust, write for our valuable book on bust development, containing the article by Dr. Carr, in which he tells specifically the causes of non-development and how the bust may be developed harmlessly to its most perfect proportions. Sent free to every woman in need of development. If you wish book sent sealed, inclose 6c postage.

CALL FOR MEETING OF WOMEN VOTERS

Second Annual Convention of National League to Open in Cleveland, April 11.

A call to Missouri women from Mrs. Maud Wood Park, chairman of the National League of Women Voters, to attend the second annual convention of the league, to be held at Cleveland, O., April 11 to 16, inclusive, has been received by Mrs. George Gellhorn, chairman of the Missouri League of Women Voters. The text of the call follows:

"A dream has come true. Equality of suffrage is a fact. It is the result of a crusade, an exalting and holy crusade. The world has seen none more wonderful. We shall have need again and again to draw on this example of tireless effort and high courage bequeathed to us.

"Hear the call to the second convention of a functioning League of Women Voters. We meet to celebrate the close of our first and successful year, and to plan with broad vision and renewed energy for the months ahead.

"We have not wasted our year. The league now stands organized in every State in the Union. The woman voter has already proved herself an earnest and selfless worker.

"By faith we have won the fight for suffrage. By belief in the efficacy of the ballot and the value of good citizenship, we have come thus far. Let us know no pause. From the whole stock of our several experiences and combined wisdom, let us lay our plans more effectively for the future.

"Heed the call. The league is established. The league has power. How best shall we use this power to become a vital and helpful force in our country? How best continue in the work of educating a conscientious, well-informed electorate?

"Answer the call! Send a delegate from every congressional district in the United States of America."

The first annual convention was held in St. Louis last year.

TAXPAYER WANTS TO KNOW WHY $53,851 BRIDGE IS NOT OPENED

Two Efforts at Legislation to Build Roadway to Structure Have Failed, City Officials Say.

F. S. Loftin of 8612 South Broadway, a taxpayer, asked the Post-Dispatch to learn why the concrete bridge which carries King's highway southeast across Broadway into Bellerive Park has never been opened to travel. The bridge was completed a little over two years ago, with the exception of the roadway, at a cost of $53,851. The roadway was filled with earth, which was allowed to settle, and which is now overgrown with weeds.

It was learned in the Department of Public Service that two efforts to complete legislation for the making of the roadway have failed. Two years ago an appropriation bill died with the ending of the session of the Board of Aldermen and a year ago a similar bill failed of necessary approval by the Comptroller. Lack of funds is the reason ascribed for the failure to appropriate the money. It is known that the city generally finds itself short of funds as each fiscal year draws to a close, the December tax collections, however, relieving the stringency.

The estimated cost of the roadway and of ornamental lights for the bridge is $12,000. King's highway Southeast is 5600 south at Broadway and the entrance into Bellerive Park by means of the bridge is the southern terminus of the King's highway project as a belt boulevard in the city. The highway requires a bridge at this point because of the descent of Broadway from the bluffs.

COURT OF DOMESTIC RELATIONS RECOMMENDED BY JUDGES

A special committee of Circuit Judges consisting of Judges Hartmann, Killoren and Miller yesterday recommended to the Judges in general session that a domestic relations court be established. The plan is to have such tribunal handle divorce suits, cases involving children and all matters dealing with the family which are brought to court. The committee reported that there are two vacant rooms in the Municipal Courts Building which could be used for a court of this kind.

After hearing the report the Judges directed that the committee confer with the Rules Committee to devise a method of revising the rule so that a domestic court could be established. When this has been done a vote will be taken on the special committee's recommendation.

A movement for a domestic relations court was started by a committee of the Board of Religious Organizations, of which Mrs. Charles L. Passmore is chairman. Similar courts in other cities have proved helpful in healing breaches in the family relation, according to reports submitted to the Judges.

SULPHUR IS BEST TO CLEAR UP UGLY, BROKEN OUT SKIN

Any breaking out or skin irritation on face, neck or body is overcome quickest by applying Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation that instantly brings ease from the itching, burning and irritation.

Mentho-Sulphur heals eczema right up, leaving the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the torment or disfigurement. A little jar of Mentho-Sulphur may be obtained at any drug store. It is used like cold cream

BIG ULCER ALL HEALED

"Now I Can Walk," Says Mrs. Southcott of Medina.

Here is another letter that makes me happy," says Peterson of Buffalo. "One that I would rather have than a thousand dollars."

"Money isn't everything in this world. There is many a big-hearted, rich man who would give all he has on earth to be able to produce a remedy with such mighty healing power as Peterson's Ointment, to sell at all druggists for 60 cents a large box."

Read this letter, written February 14, 1918, by Mrs. Albert Southcott of Medina, N. Y. It seems like a miracle, but it is true, every word of it.

I know it because I get similar letters almost every day from people who have used my ointment for old sores, eczema and piles.

Is it any wonder I am happy!

Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.

Dear Sirs:—

"I was an untold sufferer from an old running sore and ulcers. I had tried most everything without any relief from pain. A friend told me of your wonderful ointment and the first box took away the pain that had not left me before in years, and after using just nine dollars worth of the salve I am cured. The ulcer was 9 inches by 6½ inches, is all healed and I can walk. Never, never will I be without Peterson's again.

"You may use this to recommend your ointment if you wish. I cannot say enough to praise it." Yours truly, Mrs. Albert Southcott, Medina, N. Y. Mail orders filled by Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y. Judge & Dolph, E. A. Medder, Enderle Drug Co. and Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. will supply you.

POOR GIVE FREELY TO FUND TO SAVE STARVING CHILDREN

10 CENTS FEEDS CHILD FOR ONE DAY

Largest Donation Is From W. P. Harsh Who Took Ten Guests to $100-a-Plate Dinner.

Contributions which have come in to the fund to prevent European children from starving are coming largely from the poor rather than the rich people of the city, according to the St. Louis committee of the European Relief Council.

The largest donation reported is from P. W. Harsh, who took 10 guests to the "invisible guest dinner" Tuesday evening. Another donation of $100 came from a woman who desires her name withheld and was payment for a $1.25 ticket to the relief fund card party Thursday.

A scrub woman brought in a quarter Wednesday and said she wanted to do what she could. She was delighted to hear that her 25 cents would feed a child two days and a half. A foreigner who refused to give his name, took $1 into the relief headquarters Friday. He said that he had been out of work, but had found a job and his first pay had come in the previous day. When he went home and saw his own children and realized that they would not go hungry, he took out $1 to help feed the children of Europe. Many similar gifts have been received.

Beginning to Realize Danger.

Murray Carleton, chairman of the Missouri division of the European Relief Council, said that the public is just beginning to realize what it means if these children for whom the committee is working are not saved. Conditions are such in the stricken countries, he said, that no children are being born. Thousands of those now living have never tasted milk, and thousands more have never had a full meal in all their lives. A little more privation would mean their death, he said, and that would spell ruin for their countries. Unless the children now living are saved the population of those countries will die out. Aside from the humantarian view of the matter, this would be an economic catastrophe comparable only to that which all Europe has sustained as a result of the war.

Carleton points out that $10 in America means $30 in the countries to be benefited because European relief agencies and the Governments involved supply the additional $20. This is administered under the American committee known as the European Relief Council. Every $10 given in America is spent in America, and the supplies bought with that $10 are forwarded immediately to the countries needing them. Food kitchens and medical stations have been established throughout the famine-stricken area and are operated by native workers under the supervision of American executives. As fast as one section of the country finds itself able to take care of its destitute population, the American workers turn that section over to its own people and go on to another station where help is needed more urgently. It is estimated that 7,000,000 children in the countries of Central and Eastern Europe are starving, and are in urgent need of medical care. Half of them are virtually at the point of death from starvation. It is to these 3,500,000 that the American committee is directing immediate attention, in the hope of saving them at least until their own food supply is increased by the next harvest.

$10 Adopts a Child.

The plan that the European Relief Council has worked out in all the states and city divisions throughout the United States, is that every gift of $10, carries with it a theoretical adoption of one destitute child until the next harvest. If St. Louis raises its $500,000 it will have adopted 50,000 starving children for whom it will provide both medical care and shelter until next harvest in their own country.

The St. Louis campaign will continue until Wednesday morning. A general city-wide canvas is under way. The children especially have been appealed to and every one of the more than 100,000 children in the schools of the city is asked to donate at least 10 cents and help feed some little hungry European child for one day. Many children have responded to this appeal and have sent in notes that are both touching and amusing. All sorts of methods have been used to collect sums from other children, according to these letters, and considerable money has come in in this way. One little girl, daughter of Charles P. Capen, went around the neighborhood in which she lived and induced all her little neighbors to give her a dollar. She got $10 in this house-to-house canvass and the children have formed a club because the $10 has adopted a child. Children in many of the schools have collected pennies, nickels and dimes from their schoolmates and one little girl was much disappointed when she found she was not permitted to take up a collection at the entrance of a moving picture theater.

Today will be relief Sunday in all the churches. Pastors will speak of the dire need of the sufferers and special collections will be taken up. Some churches which already have taken collections for the Relief Committee work decided to make the movement universal by taking a second special collection today.

ST. LOUIS ARTISTS WELL REPRESENTED IN EASTERN SALON

Four Paintings and Three Sculptures From This City Displayed at Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts.

TOM BARNETT SHOWS RIVER WHARF SCENE

Kathryn Cherry, Frank Nuderscher, R. P. Bringhurst, Nancy Coonsman and Adele Schulenburgh Contributors.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12.—St. Louis is well represented in the art exhibit which opened this week in Philadelphia—the 116th annual exhibition of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts for oil paintings and sculpture.

There are four paintings and three pieces of sculpture representing the work of St. Louis painters and sculptors. The best artists and sculptors from all parts of the country competed for a showing in this Philadelphia exhibit, which is admitted to be the American Salon.

St. Louis painters are Tom P. Barnett of 3832 Lindell boulevard, Kathryn Cherry, whose studio is in the Marina Building, and Frank Nuderscher of 3120 South Compton avenue. The three St. Louis sculptors are R. P. Bringhurst of 21 Yale avenue, University City, Nancy Coonsman, 6171 Delmar boulevard, and Adele Schulenburgh of the same address.

Miss Coonsman's Offering.

Miss Coonsman's exhibit is a pleasing figure of a baby done in plaster. The figure is life size. This piece of work has attracted considerable attention and favorable comment and was so highly regarded by the academy that a picture of it was printed in the catalogue, which includes reproductions of only the best painting and sculpture in the exhibition. Miss Coonsman's exhibit is entitled "Baby Fountain," indicating that it was evidently made as a model for a fountain.

"The Refugees," by Miss Schulenburgh, is the title of a considerably smaller piece of work, but it is a powerful study. It is done in clay with a bronze finish which gives it an atmosphere of grimness quite in keeping with the theme. "The Refugees" consists of a group of four adults and a child, herded together, their backs bent under the weight of the things which they are trying to save, and the little group is fleeing with very evident terror. There is a strong suggestion about the piece that carries one back to the early days of the great war when the cables and cameras were bringing to America those vivid, heartrending pictures of the peasants of Belgium and France fleeing before the German army. R. P. Bringhurst has contributed a bronze head which he called "Sappho."

Among the paintings, Miss Cherry has two exhibits, one, a colorful study of dahlias and crysanthemums and the other a sort of semi-marine—a picturesque landing wharf at a waterside village. Tom P. Barnett has also made an interesting study of a scene at a river wharf which he calls "Old Coal Pocket." Frank Nuderscher has drawn his inspiration from Provincetown, the quaint little village out at the tip end of Cape Cod, which is a favorite haunt of all artists. The title of his canvas is "The Old Wharf at Provincetown."

In this Philadelphia exhibit, all told, there are 501 canvases and 129 pieces of sculpture, representing the best work of many of the foremost American painters and sculptors.

Notables Among Sculptors.

The sculptors represented include such notables as A. Stirling Calder, Samuel Murray, Gertrude V. Whitney, Bessie Potter Vonnoh, Paul Manship, A. de Francesci and Evelyn Longman.

Co-operating with the regular academy juries, in the matter of interesting St. Louis artists in entering their pictures and sculpture in the exhibition, was what is known as the St. Louis jury, composed of T. B. Barnett, R. P. Bringhurst, C. F. Galt, T. Kajiwara and F. B. Nuderscher.

The prize awards thus far made by the academy juries are as follows:

Temple gold medal to Leopold Seyffert of Philadelphia, for his study in the nude, entitled "The Model."

Walter Lippencott award of $300 to Irving Couse of New York, for his study of Indian life entitled "chant to the Rain God."

Sesnan gold medal to Charles Morris Young of Philadelphia for his marine entitled "Wind on the Sound."

Beck gold medal to George Bellows of New York for his portrait study entitled "Eleanor, Joan and Ann," which, by the way, was purchased recently by the Metropolitan Museum of Art of New York City for the museum's permanent exhibit.

Mary Smith award of $100 to Katherine Patton of Philadelphia for her futuristic landscape entitled "Deep in the Wood."

Widener Memorial gold medal to Evelyn Beatrice Longman of Windsor, Connecticut, for her bronze figure entitled "The Future," adjudged the most meritorious work in sculpture in the exhibition.

Prizes to Be Awarded.

Two important prizes yet to be awarded are the Edward T. Stotesbury prize of $1000 which will be given to the artist whose painting or group of paintings, never before publicly exhibited, is, in the opinion of the committee on exhibition, the most important contribution to the success of the exhibition; and, the Philadelphia prize of $250 given by Edward Bok.

This latter prize is divided—$150 to be given to the artist whose picture receives the largest poplar vote of visitors to the exhibition during the week beginning March 7, each visitor being enttled to vote. The remaining $100 is to be used by the academy in paying the tuition of a deserving student at the academy.

Washington U. Festivities March 17.

Students in the engineering school of Washington University will have their customary festivities in celebration of St. Patrick's day, March 17, for which a holiday has been granted by the University authorities. These include knighting ceremonies on the campus, "open house," and a ball masque in the evening, at Francis Gymnasium, when a queen will be crowned. Last year the students had a downtown parade, but this will be omitted this year.

Cliff Dwellings of 1000 Rooms Found in Pecos, an Ancient New Mexico City

Town Founded 2000 Years Ago Apparently the Longest Continually Occupied City of American Continent.

By the Associated Press.

SANTA FE, N. M., Feb. 12.—Europe was plunging through the terrors of the Middle Ages and along about the time Attilla, the Hun, was ravaging the civilization of Rome, another civilization of a different type was in a fairly well-perfected state in western North America. The center of this civilization as well as center of trade and commerce was Pecos, N. M., about 25 miles east of Santa Fe.

This was determined definitely, according to Dr. A. V. Kidder, by excavations conducted by himself and assistants last sumer. Dr. Kidder was aided by Dr. E. A. Hooton, a specialist in physical anthropology, and Dr. Carl E. Guthe, who had just returned from his exploration among the Mayos in Central America.

The scientists opened more than 300 graves and examined some 1000 skeletons. Homes had been built upon ruins of previous habitations and the bodies of the dead buried in the ruins had increased to such an extent that the Indians of Pecos, some 80 years ago, deserted their thousand-year-old city and moved to Jemez because the waters had become contaminated.

1000-Room Cliff Dwellings.

Cliff dwellings of 1000 rooms, well preserved specimens of the past civilization and unusual examples of early-day pottery and household utensils were recovered, according to the report on the excavations recently made public.

Castenada, the chronicler of Coronado's explorations 380 years ago, mentions but one pueblo at Pecos, obviously the north house. Excavations last summer showed that there had been a pueblo at an early period, on the site of the south house, which had been abandoned and reduced to a mere heap of ruins before the coming of the Spaniards. In the interior of the mount there was uncovered one ground-floor chamber in excellent preservation. Its roof was almost intact; from the beams still hung the bark loops that had been used to suspend goods of the owners and on one smoke-blackened log are a series of hand-prints, large and small, slapped on in whitewash.

To explore the extensive north house, which originally must have had more than a thousand rooms, and walls of which still stand almost three stories high, trenches were started simultaneously at the east entrance and the west edge of the mesa. The western trench was run along bed rock and after passing through burials four feet deep, encountered the foundation walls of an early building, the presence of which had not been suspected. That was cut through and the trench struck a large oval pit, which proved to be a treasure house 15 feet deep, 10 feet wide and 20 feet long, built in a natural crevice in the mesa. About its edge was a neatly made coping wall two feet high, and it resembled somewhat the cenotes at Chichen Itza and elsewhere in the Maya field in Yucatan. The cistern yielded an unusually full and unmixed collection of artifacts and pottery from the earliest times to the Pajaritan or Fourth Glaze period. When the cistern was cleared it was bridged over and the trench was continued. Another zone of skeletons was discovered and some of the best pottery thus far found was taken from the graves.

Walls Found in Ruins.

In another trench ruins were encountered similar to those of the prehistoric walls of the palace of governors at Santa Fe, built long before the coming of the Spaniards. [illegible] similarity was traced to the ruins upon which the Santa Fe structure had been constructed and which had been built by Ornate or his successor in 1608.

Other trenches revealed a large series of cooking jars, painted oilas and one nest of ceremonial pots wedged between rocks and yet quite undamaged. With these were many handsome shell ornaments, two sets of bone flutes, two very large tobacco pipes, one of them elaborately carved, 36 buffalo horns, part of a wooden dance head dress and many other specimens.

In one place were found two underground kivas or ceremonial chambers. Both were built in the earliest time, about the beginning of the Christian era, one of them later serving as a burial place.

By careful observation of the stratified fillings in the lower part of the rooms, co-ordinated with an intensive study of the successive increments of masonry that had gone into their construction, Dr. Guthe had been able to work out and record by plans and elevations the exact history of the growth of this section of the pueblo from the foundation of the town, perhaps 2000 years ago down to the time of its abandonment, about 80 years ago. Pecos apparently is the longest continuously inhabited city of the American continent.

JEWISH AMERICANIZATION CLASSES HAVE 150 PUPILS

Officers of the Conference of Jewish Organizations on Americanization Work report that eight English classes with an enrollment of 150 are now meeting regularly. The Carr and Glasgow schools are open on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evening for these classes. Afternoon classes are meeting four afternoons a week at the Hebrew Free School at Fifteenth and Carr streets and at the Glasgow School. Out of 150 enrolled the average attendance is 120.

Heretofore, the work of the Conference has been exclusively with groups organized to meet in centers. The officers are now ready to undertake the teaching of the Jewish women who cannot leave their homes and are beginning tthe organization of home-group classes which will be taught by experienced volunteers.

Through the classes, through the Yiddish press, through posters and dodgers, and also through the aid of a group of speakers ready to address foreign-born Jews at their lodges and clubs, American aims and ideals and American laws and government are being taught. All who can are being urged to seek citizenship and the office of the conference at 3645 Delmar boulevard is open for assistance and advice at all times.

Mother! Look at Child's Tongue

Give "California Syrup of Figs" only—Say "California"

When your child is pale, listless, feverish, full of cold, and doesn't eat, sleep, or act naturally, don't wait; the little stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. Give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs" and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food, and sour bile gently pass and you have a well, playful child again. Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless laxative because it never fails. Children love its delicious "fruity" taste. Full directions for babies and for children of all ages printed on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits. Mother, you must say "California." If you don't say "California" you may get an imitation fig syrup.

VALUE OF ST. LOUIS U. TO MERCHANTS SHOWN

Committee on $3,000,000 Endowment Fund Cites Total of Expenditures.

In an endeavor to present the St. Louis University endowment fund of $3,000,000 as a business investment to the citizens of St. Louis, the committee in charge of the work of raising the money has prepared figures showing that the institution, through its students and faculty, directly is responsible for an expenditure in the city of more than $1,000,000 annually. This is estimated on a basis of the bare necessities alone, and represents to the merchants a 5 per cent income on a fund of $20,000,000. No allowance is made in this schedule for amusements or other "luxury spending" by the young men who come from distant points to attend the university.

The basis of calculation used is the fact that out of the 2618 students enrolled at the university, representing 30 states and 16 foreign countries, fully 1000 are from outside of St. Louis. The expenditufes of these students for their living and education, all of which money circulates in St. Louis, cannot be figured at an average of less than $750 a year, making $750,000. Added to this is the expense of maintaining, in bare necessities, the religious workers who act as instructors, and who would not be in St. Louis save for the presence of the university, which aggregates $254,000 a year, making a total of $1,004,000, which the institution causes to be spent for fundamentals.

Other Expenditures of Students.

What the students spend for the theater, for their dances, banquets, sporting events and similar entertainments, as well as apparel, etc., all is in addition to the foregoing. What their fathers, mothers, relatives and friends spend, while on visits here, swells the total. Conventions of various kinds, attracted to St. Louis because the university is here, add more thousands. Two gatherings in recent years of the Catholic Education Institution are mentioned, St. Louis being chosen because it is the home of the university.

A further point brought out by the committee is the fact that St. Louis University, being the house of the Jesuits of Missouri, with authority from the Allegheny to the Rocky Mountains and in foreign mission fields, constantly buys, in St. Louis, supplies for other institutions. Thus materials for St. John's College at Belize, British Honduras, the Indian agencies of the Northwest, and smaller colleges conducted by the Jesuit order, are purchased here and shipped away.

A further argument is the advertising value of the university. It bears the name of the city, the students write of St. Louis enterprises and activities in every letter to their homes; scattered over this country and in foreign countries are about 11,000 men who either graduated from the university or attended it for a time.

School Kept Many Youths Here.

While bringing young men here from other sections, it also has kept thousands of young men in St. Louis during the college period by providing them with the educational facilities they would have sought elsewhere. During the present session there are more than 1600 local students. Added to this group is the faculty of lay teachers, whose salaries were not included in the estimate given above.

Three times the university has built up large premises, using St. Louis labor and materials. The present group of buildings erpresents an estimated value of $3,000,000.

According to the committee's estimate, $25,000,000 would not be too large a figure to place upon the university's value to the city, and it will ask the business men of St. Louis to look upon their subscriptions to the $3,000,000 endowment fund, not as a gift, but as a 33 1-3 per cent investment.

LEGION POST OF 138TH MEETS

Temporary Officers Elected—Next Meeting to Be Feb. 25.

The new 138th Infantry Post of the American Legion held its first meeting at the Armory Friday night. Many of those present had not seen each other since being demobilized, and the entire war was fought over again from Doniphan to the Argonne.

A temporary organization was perfected, the following being elected to hold office until the permanent body is completed: Commander, Capt. William J. McMahon; vice comander, Albert J. Haemerle; adjutant, Joseph B. Dutton; treasurer, Joseph A. McNicholas. A Committee on Organization was appointed to consider the permanent constitution and by-laws, as follows: Capt. James J. McMahon, chairman; Capt. John R. Hundley, Lieut. Sidney S. Bartels and Sergts. Alfred B. Haley and P. S. Bowen.

The next meeting of this post will be at the First Regiment Armory, Friday night, Feb 25. All former members of the 138th are invited.

WOMAN DENIED SHARE IN ESTATE OF LOUIS SCHMIDT

Lydia Mertens Failed to Prove Common Law Marriage to Candy Merchant, County Probate Judge Holds.

DECISION IN SUIT FOR AN ALLOWANCE

Property Valued at $200,000 to Go to Six Children by First Wife—Claimant Not Mentioned in Will.

Lydia Mertens' appeal for legal recognition as the widow of Louis Schmidt, president until his death of the Blanke-Wenneker Candy Co., and for a share in his $200,000 estate, was denied yesterday by Probate Judge Hodgdon of St. Louis County, who held that she had failed to prove her claim that a common-law marriage existed between them. She is 48 years old, and a shoeworker.

Schmidt, who was 71 years old, lived at the time of his death with the Mertens family on Newport avenue, Webster Groves, in a house which Schmidt owned. Previously, he had lived with them at 4221 Shenandoah avenue, where, it was testified, the "marriage ceremony" took place on Oct. 20, 1916. Schmidt died last April 27, leaving a will in which he made no mention of a wife, and left his property to his six children by his first wife.

Testimony of Claimant.

Lydia Mertens testified at a hearing in Clayton, Dec. 17, that Schmidt, in the presence of her mother, brother, sister and a woman friend, took her hand, and declared that they were man and wife. Thereafter she considered herself legally married to him, she said, and acted accordingly, continuing, however, to work in a shoe factory. The others corroborated this testimony.

In the decree, which Judge Hodgdon has been considering since he took the case under advisement, he states the evidence showed that Louis Schmidt paid board throughout his sojourn at the Mertens home, and that the executors of his will even paid his last month's board after his death. Moreover, he points out, Lydia Mertens vacated the house in Webster Groves upon demand of the executors that she pay rent, whereas, if she had been a lawful widow, she would have had a homestead right to the place.

"At no time did they attend theater, church, or places of amusement together," continues the opinion. "At no time during the life of Louis Schmidt were they publicly known to be, nor did they hold themselves out to be, husband and wife.

"The will of Louis Schmidt was executed March 6, 1920, and he died April 27, about six weeks later. Yet he made no reference in the will to Lydia Mertens as being his common-law wife. Neither did he make any provisions for her therein.

"Immediately following his death, she called upon Judge Holtcamp (of the St. Louis Probate Court), introducing herself as Lydia Mertens, and seeking information about a gratuity which she thought Louis Schmidt had left in a safe deposit box for her.

Conclusions of Hodgdon.

"The theory that there was a common-law marriage was developed after his death. No claim was made by her during the lifetime of Louis Schmidt that she was his wife, and now that his lips are sealed by death, the marriage relations can only be established by the testimony of creditable witnesses, showing a common-law marriage by publicly holding themselves out to be husband and wife.

"As no such evidence was offered in this case, the conclusion must follow that Lydia Mertens was not the wife of Louis Schmidt, and, therefore, that she is not his widow; wherefore it is ordered, adjudged and decreed that the petition filed by Lydie Mertens under the name of Lydia M. Schmidt for an allowance be, and hereby is, denied."

Lydia Mertens had asked for an allowance of $2500 from the estate, as is sometimes customary for widows during the course of probating estates.

Printers Did Not Reduce Pay.

GADSDEN, Ala., Feb. 12.—An error whereby the word "painters" was rendered "printers" was responsible for press dispatches under date of Feb. 10 that Gadsden union printers had voluntarily reduced their wage scale from 75 cents an hour to 65 cents. The painters announced the reduction and the printers were in no way involved.

Keep Your Nose Clean

Common colds are infectious and dangerous—check them at once by using Mayr's Pine Needle Balm. A pure, natural product of the northern pines. The many flu and pneumonia cases in the last few years should be a warning to take precaution against colds. Cold germs will not thrive in a nose that is kept clean and wholesome. Mayr's Pine Needle Balm is as soothing and refreshing as a breath of pine forest mountain air. Catarrh, which is usually the result of neglected colds, clears up quickly when this beneficial pine fragrance is used. Sold in two sizes—30c and 60c tubes. Free trial by writing Geo. H. Mayr, 219 W. Austin Ave., Chicago. Mayr's Pine Needle Balm is for sale by Enderle Drug Co.'s 5 stores, Judge & Dolph's 3 stores, Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co., and druggists everywhere.

The JACOBITES

By J. J. BELL

© 1920

ON an afternoon in July two young men, clad in rough but smartly cut homespun, lay at ease on mountain heather and looked down on as wild a scene as nature provides in all the wild West Highlands of Scotland. A heat haze veiled the Isle of Skye and its lesser neighbors, but the sound and loch lying immediately beneath shimmered in the sunshine. It was a still world save for the hum of honey bees and the occasional screech of a sea bird down yonder on the frightful inhospitable shore.

One of the young men had spread a map in front of him; the other, face almost touching the heather, eyes half closed, smoked his pipe in drowsy fashion. Said he of the map, lifting a lean, brown countenance:

"Cameron, its exactly 175 years since it all happened!"

"Since what happened?" muttered the smoker.

"Your Bonnie Prince Charlie. . . . Wasn't it right down there that he made his landing?"

"And a year later, his departure—yes. But, my dear American, what do you suppose, or care, about Bonnie Prince Charlies?"

"I'm as interested as I'm ignorant. I suppose the craving has been aroused by the action of this scenery on my drop of Scottish blood."

"First time I've heard you boast of that, though of course, the Murray in your name"——

"I'm not boasting now. I don't even suspect where the Murray originally came from. As for Prince Charlie, I'll be frank and confess that since my school days, when I read a story in which he figured, I had forgotten all about him till, on the ship coming over, I read a novel"——

"Oh, novels! If you want the truth read history."

"By truth you mean facts?"

"Well, aren't facts the truth?"

"Never the whole truth. History chills me. It's only the shaking of dry bones. . . However, I was going to say that the man who owned the novel—his name was Cameron, by the way—assured me that romance, so far as Scotland was concerned, died out with the last Jacobite rebellion"——

"Romance! It wasn't the sort of romance that bears looking into—if any romance does. Once more, my dear Murray Wilder, read history!"

Murray Wilder began to fold up the map, remarking: "You rather surprise me. For years, ever since you gave me the invitation just before we parted in France, you have been writing about our proposed walk through the Prince Charlie country"——

"A convenient name for these parts. And isn't the scenery up to your expectations?"

"Scenery's all right. But somehow I thought of your making a sort of pious pilgrimage, and of myself listening all the time to 'tales of far-off, old, unhappy things and battles long ago'—I don't guarantee my quotations."

The Scotsman laughed. "Without that map of yours, I should not know at this moment where I was. It had merely seemed an ideal route for a tramp, though the roads are rotten. . . . Yes, yes, I'm a Cameron, and my forbears fought and bled lots for Charlie, saw their homes burned, their women and children starved, murdered—and, worse; and went more or less blithely to the scaffold for Charlie's sake; none, indeed, suffered more than the Camerons. But the clan blood lost the fever long since. You can't combine that sort of thing with successful commerce, as an American, of all peoples, must know."

"Of course, you have lived all your life in a city, Cameron"——

"True. Yet I should be seriously astonished to learn that any person in these parts would mildly resent your referring to the late Charles Edward Stuart as the Pretender, and not as the Prince. In fact, I should doubt whether he is ever referred to except by tourists with guidebooks. There used to be a Jacobite society, or something of the sort, but I should say it has petered out. . . . Well, shall we be getting along? It will take us all our time to reach our night's lodgings with less than savage appetite. Pity the mist has come down on the islands."

"Mist has come down on more things than them," murmured Wilder, getting up. "I haven't a powerful imagination, but to me these glens and mountains are already peopled by ghosts."

"Day after tomorrow," said his companion, "we shall go through Glenfinnan, and you will find a monument on the spot where the Jacobite standard was raised in 1745. It was there that Charles waited almost alone, doubtful of receiving support, till he heard the skirl of the pipes and saw Lochiel come over the hill with his 800 Camerons—the first of the clans to gather."

"Come!" cried Wilder, "you're proud of that, anyway!"

"It was a great adventure," Cameron grudgingly allowed, "but"——

"A rotten business proposition," finished the other dryly. "Oh, you Scots! And yet, I believe you would do it again!"

"I'm afraid the Prince would wait awhile if he came again to Glenfinnan."

They crossed a stretch of moor and regained the road—a wearing one for the pedestrian, a test for the motorist and his car. Its surface was of loose gravel and treacherous little cobbles; it wound inland in tortuous fashion, rising and falling steeply.

They had covered a couple of miles or so when, briskly descending, Cameron staggered, stumbled and all but fell, then drew himself up on one foot, supported by his stick.

"Hell!" he muttered between his teeth, "that was a wrench! Wilder, old man, I've got to sit down."

Wilder helped him to the roadside, and he sank upon a clump of heather, pale, sweating with pain.

After a while he attempted to hobble with his arm 'round his friend's shoulders; but the agony conquered determination, and he returned to the roadside.

"This is devilish awkward. It's a lonely road. We're miles from anywhere. I'm sorrier than I can say, Wilder," he said, apologetically.

"Don't worry about me, my friend. My job is to find something on wheels—but, first, the nearest habitation." They had passed no dwelling since leaving the moor. "Wait a moment!"

Wilder scrambled up the hillside and scanned the glen, which now seemed singularly desolate. But he came down looking hopeful.

"There's a house—a good-sized one—in the hollow yonder. Shouldn't think it's more than a mile away. Sure to get help there. Shan't be long."

"Go cannily," said Cameron, "or you may repeat my folly. No need to take your knapsack."

A moment later Wilder was racing downhill. Cameron took out his knife and whetted it on a stone, preparatory to cutting off his boot.

Wilder was breathing hard when he reached the house, a square one of gray stone, with a look of age, especially about the small-paned windows. It stood near the road, its gardens were behind, and a glimpse informed Wilder that they were not neglected.

To his knock a housemaid opened the heavy door—a pretty creature, all shyness and native hospitality.

"Be pleased to come in," she said, while he was recovering his breath.

"Thank you," he said, "but"—and proceeded to explain his errand.

Before long it became apparent that she did not understand half his words. Possibly she had not sufficient English, also his speech may have puzzled her.

"Be pleased to come in," she said again, rosy, and just then, to Wilder's relief, the mistress of the house came upon the scene.

A very old lady she was, yet with health on the lined countenance under the white hair; and though walking with a stout ebony staff, she carried herself erect. Her greeting was dignified, but her voice had all the kindliness of the Highland born.

"Did I hear that there had been an accident, sir?"

Briefly he informed her. Without comment she turned and called, "Marjorie!"

A girl, tall, dark, and, as Wilder noted, of proud bearing, stepped into the hall and joined them.

"This gentleman," said the old lady—and Wilder and the girl exchanged bows—"seeks assistance for his friend, who has sprained, or perhaps broken, his ankle, on the road up yonder. Tell Ranald to bring round the carriage at once, and Flora to prepare a room. And now, sir," as the girl retired, "be pleased to enter and accept of some refreshment till the carriage is ready. It will take you to your friend sooner than you could go on foot."

Gently waving aside his apologies, she conducted him through a narrow hall into a handsome dining room, paneled with dark wood to the ceiling, the rather somber effect being scarcely mitigated by the gilt frames inclosing portraits of the eighteenth-century ladies and gentlemen, all wearing the tartan. A note of cheerfulness was supplied, however, by the coal-and-peat fire in the ancient grate.

She invited him to sit by the hearth in an armchair of Jacobean design, and passed to the sideboard. A similar chair stood opposite, and Wilder, with a sudden feeling of curiosity, noticed that its seat was closed by a cord of crimson silk stretching between the arms. And while he wondered, his hostess came back to offer him, from a lovely old salver, cake and wine.

Wilder's sense of chivalry rebelled at such service being accorded by so old a lady to a complete stranger, but he had the wit to accept the situation. When he had helped himself, she set the salver on the table, drew out a chair, and seated herself. A second glass of wine had been poured, and with a courteous look at her guest she raised and touched it to her lips.

Presently it dawned on Wilder that she was not going to ask any questions, and he proceeded to tell something of the walking tour which had

Wealth, Integrity, Capacity, Permanence

Your estate represents a lifetime of labor on your part, and when you are gone it will stand between your family and hardship. It must be left in strong hands.

Strength in an executor and trustee depends on wealth, integrity, capacity and permanence.

The Mississippi Valley Trust Company is worth eight and one-half million dollars of capital, surplus and undivided profits. It has handled large and small estates for thirty years. It operates a carefully organized Trust Department capable of handling an estate, however large or complicated, and ready to handle moderate estates with the same care it gives to larger ones.

Its present position as the logical executor and trustee for your estate will continue unchanged.

Its officers will be glad to assist you and your attorney in your plans for the future of your family.

RECOUNT ORDERED IN JONES-KILLOREN CASE

Canvass, However, Not to Be Made Until After City Election in April.

An order for recount of the ballots in the Jones-Killoren election contest for Circuit Judge was made yesterday on application of the contestant.

The order was entered by Circuit Judge McElhinney of St. Louis County, sitting in St. Louis Circuit Court, Division No. 13. Although the case is pending in this city it was necessary, under the law, to call in Judge McElhinney to try it, he being one of the Judges of the nearest judicial circuit to the city. All of the St. Louis Judges are disqualified because one of their number, William H. Killoren, is defendant in the contest.

The petitioner, Richard A. Jones, a Democrat, alleges that a correct count of the ballots polled in the election last November would show that he was elected over Killoren, Republican, who, on the face of the returns, was elected by 1700 votes. Judge Killoren is holding the office. His attorney, George B. Webster, made no opposition to the granting of the order of recount, which is directed against the Board of Election Commissioners. Chilton Atkinson appeared as attorney for Jones, who made formal proof of his qualifications for the office.

It was stated that the recount probably would take 40 days, but because of press of business in the Election Commissioners' office occasioned by the approaching mayoralty contest the recount will not begin until after the spring election. Judge McElhinney will handle all the court matters connected with the Jones-Killoren case .

MAN, WHO WAS CARRIER OF POST-DISPATCH IN 1879, DIES

August R. Hoffmann, Delivery Contractor, Came to Use 20 Motor Trucks in Business.

August R. Hoffmann, 60 years old, 1905 Sidney street, proprietor of a moving and storage establishment at 1903 Sidney street and delivery contractor for the Post-Dispatch, died of gastritis Friday night at his home. He became ill Friday morning. The funeral will be at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow from the home to Bellefontaine Cemtery.

Hoffmann was born in St. Louis. In 1879, soon after the Post-Dispatch was founded, he became one of the 13 original carriers of the paper, making house-to-house deliveries in South St. Louis. He took the contract for delivery of the paper in 1895, employing four horse-drawn vehicles. Several motor cycles and 20 motor trucks are used now. In addition he built up a comfortable fortune in his moving and storage business, which he recently incorporated, and in oil interests in California.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Caroline L. Hoffmann, a daughter, Miss Estelle Hoffmann, and a son, Edwin Hoffmann.

THE JACOBITES

By J. J. BELL

been interrupted, if not ended, in so unfortunate a fashion. While he was speaking, the girl came in and, making a sign that he should not stop, seated herself near the window.

"Well, well," said the old lady, when he paused, "it is a great pity, indeed, but a good thing it happened so near to my home."

"You are too kind," stammered Wilder. "Cameron will be distressed at making so much disturbance in your house. If you would allow the carriage to take us back to"——

"Mr. Wilder," she said, warmly, "I should have told you, my name sooner. It is that of your friend, and a Cameron is ever welcome at the house of a Cameron." And raising her eyes to the large portrait above the fireplace, she touched once more the glass to her lips.

The girl spoke quietly:

"My grandmother meant to add that a Cameron's friend is welcome also."

"Surely, surely!" cried the hostess, turning back quickly to the guest. "Forgive an old woman's wandering wits. I have some very good friends in America.

Wilder had almost found courage to mention his Scottish blood, when the sound of wheels on gravel brought them to their feet.

"And you will take this in case your friend should feel faint," said Mrs. Cameron, putting a flask in his hand. "Ranald, my coachman, is a Red Cross man; he learned much in the war; you can trust to his skill." At the outer door she added: "Assure your friend that he will be welcome and no trouble whatever." In her eagerness she pronounced it "whateffer."

There was something in her voice, in her eyes, that caused Wilder to stumble in his thanks.

"All young men," she said, softly; "all young men." . . . Her voice seemed to fail her. Her granddaughter gently took her arm and nodded to Wilder to get on board the carriage.

He was driven away, still wondering.

• • • • •

A room on the ground floor had been made ready for the sufferer. A wheeled chair—the late Mr. Cameron had been an invalid in his old age—awaited him at the door. It was Cameron's turn to wonder and marvel.

His hostess refused to let him talk till his injury had received attention. Her reception of him could not have been kinder; nevertheless, her glance had been shrewd as he was borne up from the carriage. When he had been wheeled to his room she gave a little sigh of satisfaction and whispered to Marjorie: "Both gentlemen!"

Ranald, middle-aged and bearded, with the hand of a giant and the touch of a woman, diagnosed the injury as a severe sprain, and treated it accordingly.

Cameron refused to lie down and inquired as to the motor cars in the neighborhood.

Ranald smiled soothingly, saying, softly: "Surely you will not be so hard, sir, on my leddy's Highland hospitality. But I will ask her."

He returned as one who, if he liked, could have said: "I told you so!"

"My leddy's compliments, sir, and it would not be possible to get a car tonight; but if you have any messages to send, they can easily be sent; and if you are feeling able, my leddy will be glad to see you, and Mr. Wilder, now in the drawing room. Dinner will be served in five minutes."

The drawing room, as Wilder immediately noticed, was in direct contrast to the room in which he had already sat. White enamel, old Sheraton, gay chintz and flowers were its prominent features. The hostess introduced Cameron to her granddaughter, remembered in time, and, with some amusement, introduced Wilder also.

Without delay she entered into conversation, and before dinner was announced had discovered a connection—a very remote one, indeed—between her family and Cameron's. But it sufficed to dispel the last feeling of awkwardness on Cameron's part an don Wilder's, too.

On moving to the dining room Mrs. Cameron requested that the invalid chair should be placed at the head of the table, and took pains to see that the injured limb was properly supported. Consequently Wilder found himself facing the girl, and also the portrait over the fireplace. At first the portrait merely supplied a refuge for his gaze when he realized, as he did, often enough, that it had lingered overlong on the features of Miss Marjorie Cameron, but later it began to attract him for its own sake. It represented a young man, tall, lithe, debonair, with chestnut hair and dark eyes, garbed elegantly in full Highland costume, with rapier and dirk. More than once Wilder was tempted to inquire concerning the original, but remembrance of the solemnity with which his hostess had raised her eyes to the picture deterred him.

The repast was simple, though the table appointments were exquisite. There was some wonderful old silver, intriguing to Wilder, who was something of a connoisseur. A broad, shallow bowl, filled with water and floating pansies occupied the center. Mrs. Cameron related the histories of several pieces, but her conversation was mainly of those parts of America which she had visited in her younger days.

The hour passed pleasantly. Doubtless it had its moments wherein the oddness of the situation occurred to one or other of the four people; but in such an atmosphere of unaffected hospitality was no growth for embarrassment. Only towards the close of the meal did Cameron, who, naturally had appeared more at home than his friend, seem at a loss—and it was but momentarily.

To Be Continued Tomorrow and Concluded Tuesday.

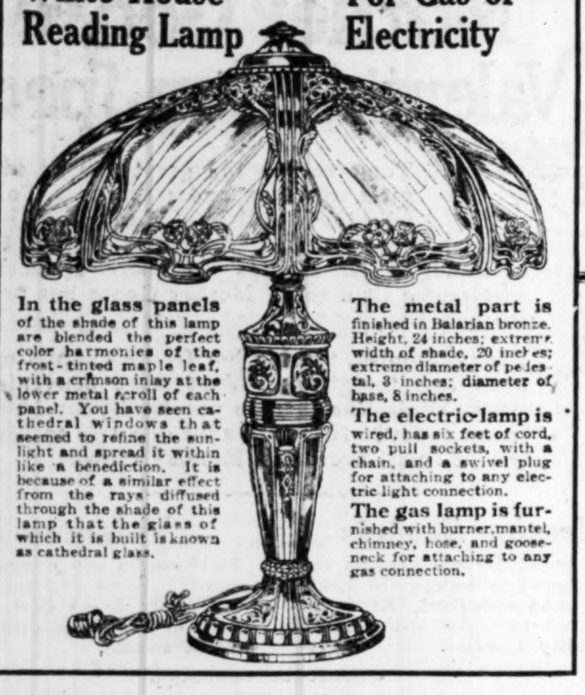
Lecture on "Truth About Mexico."

What is announced as "The Truth About Mexico" will be told in a lecture by Dr. Frederick Monsen at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, in the auditorium of Washington University Medical School building, Euclid and Scott avenues, under auspices of Washington University Association. Colored lantern slides will be used. Dr. Monsen has spent many years in Mexico.

White House Reading Lamp — For Gas or Electricity



In the glass panels of the shade of this lamp are blended the perfect color harmonies of the frost-tinted maple leaf, with a crimson inlay at the lower metal scroll of each panel. You have seen cathedral windows that seemed to refine the sunlight and spread it within like a benediction. It is because of a similar effect from the rays diffused through the shade of this lamp that the glass of which it is built is known as cathedral glass.

The metal part is finished in Balarian bronze. Height, 24 inches; extreme width of shade, 20 inches; extreme diameter of pedestal, 3 inches; diameter of base, 8 inches.

The electric-lamp is wired, has six feet of cord, two pull sockets, with a chain, and a swivel plug for attaching to any electric light connection.

The gas lamp is furnished with burner, mantel, chimney, hose, and gooseneck for attaching to any gas connection.

Save money, a little every month, and invest it in beautiful things for your home. You can't make a finer or a safer investment.

Our triumphant plan of direct dealing offers you a double advantage. You pay only the rock-bottom price, based on cost of production and shipment direct from the factory to you; and you may, if you choose, have the goods at once and remit little amounts by the month as you would put away money in a savings account.

And indeed there can be no better investment for your savings than that which makes home more home-like: none which pays larger dividends in contentment and happiness—for you and for your family.

We offer this exquisitely beautiful White House Reading Lamp on this basis: NOT A CENT OF THE PRICE NOW! Just ask to see the Lamp. It will be shipped forthwith direct to your home. If you don't find it all and more than you expect, send it back within ten days at our expense; but if, on the other hand, you feel the assurance that it is just about the wisest, most satisfying investment, both to yourself and your family, that you ever made in your life, remit $2.76 in ten days, and then $5 a month for only four months.

To open this sensible savings account sign the following coupon and mail it to QUAKER VALLEY MFG. CO., Mill and River streets, Aurora, Illinois. Do it NOW!

"THE ROSE GIRL," NEW MUSICAL PLAY, DULL

Presented at Opening of Ambassador Theater in New York, Elaborate Triangular Playhouse.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—A record of the gala proceedings in West Forty-ninth street last night should give precedence to the new Ambassador Theater. There was also a new musical play, "The Rose Girl," and in the play there was a ballet by Michel Fokine, in which that volatile little creature, Lydia Lopokova, danced charmingly; still it was the theater itself that chiefly arrested attention at the celebration.

The Shuberts, who sprinkle theaters carelessly all over the central district, have this time dropped one of the best of the lot on Forty-ninth street, just west of Broadway. Curiously, it is a theater "on the bias"—that is to say, it stands triangularly on its site. Incidentally four or five more are being erected in the neighborhood. This one—the Ambassador—is rich in its decorations and upholsteries of red and gold, and it is generous in the conveniences it provides. A promenade extends around the orchestra, separated from the seats by marble railings. There is one balcony and two boxes on either side. It has the advantage of not looking just like all the other recent new theaters. It also does not suggest that it can be quickly converted into a garage when the prevailing play-going mania in New York reaches its end.

With such a sightly edifice to exhibit, the Shuberts might have been expected to provide a musical entertainment of more distinction, more real humor and more melody than "The Rose Girl," the production of which is credited to Anselm Goethe, who also composed the score. Musical comedy, which once was not much better than a first cousin of vaudeville, has been making serious artistic pretensions of late, and this one lags a bit. Its chief defect is a very commonplace book by William Cary Duncan; in this respect it not only lags but limps.

A Rose Girl had fallen in love with a young Marquis, who had lost all his money by gambling. She ran away to Paris to escape a distasteful marriage. The Marquis followed her, claimed her for his own and was forgiven by his father. That was the plot.

Mabel Withee was the Rose Girl and Charles Purcell was the Marquis. To this extent the cast was pretty fair and when the pair sang "There Comes a Some Day," the audience had a legitimate reason to applaud. Marjorie Gateson as a flower girl was also attractive, though her opportunities to impress herself upon the audience were limited. As a whole it was very dull.

CIRCUIT JUDGES FAVOR BILL INCREASING NUMBER TO 18

Edward G. Davidson, a member of the Legislature from this city, appeared before the Circuit Judges here yesterday to learn their opinion as to the need of more Judges here. The Judges went on record as favoring the pending bill providing for four additional Circuit Judges, increasing the number to 18. Davidson said that the members of the Legislature were eager to learn what the Judges thought about the matter.

The salary of a Circuit Judge here is $8000 a year. The city, through its legislative agent, H. A. Rosskopf, is opposed to any increase in Judges. He contends that there are enough now to do all the work in the courts and that the measure, if adopted, would mean an additional expense of $90,000 a year to the taxpayers.

Girls' Industrial Farm Indorsed.

The Patrons' Association and the Mothers' Club of the Charless School, at a joint meeting Friday night, unanimously adopted resolutions indorsing the proposed ordinance to establish an industrial farm for delinquent girls. Judge Hartmann spoke on "The Life of Abraham Lincoln," and on the need of such a farm.

Mine Owner Foils Racing Swindlers and Gets $1000 of "Bait" Laid for Him

Wealthy Pittsburg Man, by Coolness, Escapes From Gang After Refusing to Pledge Credit to Collect Big Winnings.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 11.—This story is told for the warning it carries, which, probably, will go unheeded. The swindle described, based on horse racing, is as old as the hills, but there are new victims of it every day.

John C. Graham, who relates his experience, is a man of substance and veracity, an attorney and a miner and shipper of bituminous coal. He has coal interests in Allegheny and Clarion Counties, Pa., and offices in the Frick Building here and in the Odd Fellows Building at Butler, Pa.

The horses that Graham names ran on Monday, Oct. 4, 1920, during the Metropolitan Jockey Club's fall meeting at Jamaica, L. I. The racing charts show that the closing prices against these horses winning were: Flambette, 5—1; Dorcas, 11—20; Natural Bridge 4—5, and Vibrate, 8—5. It will be observed further on that the swindlers pretended to lay, and paid, whatever prices they pleased—after they knew the winners.

Graham's Story.

Graham was persuaded to tell this story of the elaborate net spread for him only in the hope that, having read it, other men of affairs may not be ensnared by the tempting bait.

"Some time ago there appeared in the Pittsburg morning papers the following ad:

> "A million to invest in coal lands. Owners only. Reply to K-253.

"Having a coal operation embracing 500 or more acres of land in Clarion County, Pa., which I was anxious to dispose of, I answered that ad. About 10 days later, I received a telephone message from a man who called himself Mr. Allen. He said that he was at the Fort Pitt Hotel in Pittsburg and had received my letter about selling my mine. He said he would like me to meet him, so I went to the hotel on the following morning, and was invited up to his room.

"After going over the merits of the coal operation I owned, he wanted to know positively whether I was the owner in fee of the property, with no associates. He was very emphatic on this point, saying that he and his associates had received numerous propositions from brokers, but were dealing only with owners.

"Being assured that I owned the mine, he said he represented a gentleman by the name of Daily of Dallas, Tex., who had made a killing in oil and had disposed of his interests for $1,500,000 cash. Allen said Mr. Daily was a bachelor and he wished to invest a portion of this million and a half for his nephew, a Harvard graduate, who was his sole heir. Allen stated, too, that he would arrange later to have Mr. Daily come from Asbury Park, where he was stopping at the Coleman House, that he might examine the mine with a view to buying it.

Meets Alleged Principal.

"After the lapse of a week, I received the following telegram: 'Cleveland, O. Here today. Going to William Penn Hotel, your city, Monday morning; will telephone on arrival. Allen.

By appointment, I met the two gentlemen. Daily was about 6 feet tall, with gray eyes and mustache, and had a double chin. I brought them to Butler, and on to Sligo (Butler County) by automobile. There they inspected the mine thoroughly, going into all the merits of the proposition.

Returning to the hotel to dinner, we agreed upon a fair price for the mine, $207,500 in cash. Daily was imperative that I should accept the money in one payment, for, he said, he did not want to carry it in banks. He added that he would return East on the following day and would go to Boston to consult others interested in the deal. He would wire me later when he was ready to close the negotiations. He said he felt that as he was 73 years old and did not care to travel, I should go East to close the matter up.

On the next Saturday I got a telegram from Allen: "Meet me Monday morning, Coleman House, Asbury Park. Wire me Pennsylvania Hotel, New York, at once."

Goes to Asbury Park.

Having an agreement with the gentleman to sell my mine, I reached Asbury Park at 10.30 on Monday morning. Allen met me at the station, and at once apologized for Mr. Daily's absence, saying that he had been called suddenly to Texas, where he would be for two weeks, having an important income tax matter to settle. Allen said that Mr. Daily before leaving had wired his nephew, for whom the mine was to be bought, to come to Asbury Park and pay me $20,000 on the deal and close it up. Allen said the nephew was awaiting us at the Coleman House, and that we would meet him there.

Upon our arrival at the hotel I produced my papers and Allen and I talked over the matter generally with the nephew, who was apparently about 26 years old. After some talk this young man stated that because his uncle had been called away and because he personally had not visited the mine he did not care to take the responsibility of closing the deal. He said, too, that he would not have time to visit the mine, for he was going hunting and fishing with a party of friends to Canada and would leave at 7 p. m. that day from Asbury Park. I said that was all right and that when his uncle returned I would be glad to have him visit the mine.

Allen, however, insisted that he close up the deal at once, whereupon young Mr. Daily said he was going to the Country Club that afternoon, that he would consider the matter and give us a definite answer when he returned, about 5 o'clock.

Afternoon of Nothing to Do.

Leaving the affair in this way, Allen and I had about four or five hours on our hands. After luncheon I proposed to go on the Boardwalk and then drive around and look at the city. He agreed to this and, leaving the hotel, we walked toward the Boardwalk. Suddenly he exclaimed:

"Here comes a man I think I know. I saw him in St. Louis some time ago with Judge ——. This man approaching made a killing of $125,000 on the ponies. I'm going to stop him, and see if he will admit it."

The man walking toward us was about 5 feet 6 inches in height, weighed about 135 pounds, and had a dark complexion, black hair and eyes, a parrot nose and a Frenchy looking mustache. Allen accosted him and said he had seen him at various other places. The other man resented this, exclaiming:

"I have never seen you before, sir. I am in a hurry."

Allen said they had met, and told him he "might as well come across."

"I know you were in St. Louis and made a killing on the ponies," said Allen emphatically.

Admits His Identity.

At this the newcomer, who later said his name was Martin, asked us to sit down on a bench.

"I believe I can trust you," said Martin agreeably and insinuatingly. "I admit I am interested in horse racing; to tell you the truth, I am a betting commissioner. I've been sent out by race-horse owners to place large bets at such places as Palm Beach, Atlantic City and Asbury Park, where rich men can wager large sums and nothing is thought of it."

Hearing this, Allen suggested that Martin place some money for us and, pulling out a roll of bills, gave him two $20 bills. Martin agreed to do this and produced a list of the horses racing that day. He also produced telegrams which he said named the horses he was to bet on. Then he said he had to hurry off to place his money on the first race. After an absence of about 20 minutes he returned.

"Flambette won," he exclaimed, and he turned over $120 to Allen and myself.

Martin said carelessly that he was going to a clubhouse near the Country Club, where the millionaire residents of Asbury Park who played the races were in the habit of going. "If you care to go with me," said Martin, "I should be glad to introduce you."

Is Admitted to Club.

Allen answered that he would go, and, of course, I went along. Getting into a car we drove about four miles from Asbury Park and beyond the Country Club to a residence that evidently had been closed for the summer. Going to the door, Martin rapped and a doorman answered. Martin produced his "card of admittance," as he called it, and told the doorman we were friends of his and he wished to introduce us for the afternoon. We were admitted promptly.

There was very little furniture in the hall, parlor or dining room of the house. There was a bay window in the library and a rail was rigged up across the bay. By the rail sat a slender man of about 35 years, who was operating a telegraph instrument. To his left sat a big, smooth-faced, square-jawed man of about 45, who weighed about 200 pounds. He was in his shirt sleeves, a bale of money lay on the table by him. On the wall was a blackboard with a list of horses entered in the six races at Jamaica, L. I., that day. Three or four other men were in the room placing bets. There was liquor on the sideboard. I was invited to drink, but refused.

Martin suggested that we go upstairs to a room to give him a chance to look over his code and learn what the next horse was to bet on. After consulting the code, Martin said: "Dorcas will be the next horse to win." He said he, as a commissioner, was placing $3000 on Dorcas, and if we wanted to bet we could. I gave him $100—we had won $80 of it on Flambette—and going downstairs we bet it on Dorcas. After a few minutes Dorcas was declared the winner. We got the money we had won, and went upstairs again, where he looked up the horse to bet on for the third race.

Borrows Money to Bet.

"Natural Bridge, this time," he said. "Unfortunately, I have no money of my own with me, and I would thank Mr. Allen and you, Mr. Graham, to put down $500 for me. It will be even money."

We bet $500 for Martin and $200 for myself, and to my amazement Natural Bridge won. They asked me to "cash in," and I was paid $1400, of which I gave Martin $1000.

We went upstairs again and Martin said: "Now, gentlemen, I feel that I can trust you absolutely. I have been a bank clerk in New York, and I have a wife and three children, so I want to make a little killing myself before the season closes.

"I had intended to have my brother-in-law come down here and lay my money for me. But as you are here and as I know I can trust you, I feel if I give you the names of the winning horses you will be able to divide part of the killings.

"But we must hurry," he went on hurriedly and excitedly. "I'm going to bet $25,000 on Vibrate to win the next race. He will be a 2-to-1 shot. I know that you, Mr. Allen, or you, Mr. Graham, have not that amount of money with you, but I am a member of this club and I can get credit for you."

Then, fast and furiously, he passed what seemed to be $25,000 to Allen, who signed a credit slip for the same amount. Before I realized what was going on Martin said:

"I'll sign a credit slip for you, Mr. Graham, and send it down."

So he did.

Huge Stake Is Placed.

Allen started downstairs with the bet, which was then $75,000 on Vibrate to win, $25,000 for each of us, and in addition $500 cash which I had put in, making a total of $75,500 on Vibrate. This was all done in such great haste that it was only after Allen had started downstairs that it flashed on me that I was in the hands of criminals. Without more ado I ran downstairs where the ticker and telephone were. I tried to grab from the hand of the man who was receiving the bets the paper to which Martin had signed my name.

"I did not make that bet, and I want this," I exclaimed.

"Your bet is down and the horses are off," said the big fellow at the telephone.

"This, of course, excited and agitated me. I was certain that this horse Vibrate was chosen to lose. I remembered that I was a prisoner in their hands and that they could torture me or deal with me in any way to compel me to convey my coal mine to them or give them notes or checks for large amounts. To my amazement the man at the telephone exclaimed: "Vibrate wins."

Is Urged to Cash In.

This was such a staggering announcement that I could scarcely believe it until Allen and Martin put a red ticket in my hand and pushed me to the desk urging me to "cash in." The big cashier counted out $49,000 in thousand dollar bills and $26,500 in other large bills. He paid me $1000, $500 I had paid on Vibrate and $500 he said I had won.

"I did not make this bet, and this is not my money," said I. "Besides, I want to know something about that credit slip that was signed, for I did not sign it."

"By the way, Mr. Graham," said the cashier suavely, "before allowing you to take all this money we will have to be satisfied that had you lost the bet you would have been able to pay."

This apparently threw Allen and Martin into the greatest alarm and they persuaded me to go upstairs and talk over the matter. Allen was very emphatic:

"You are a blanked fool," said he. "Here we have made $50,000 apiece, more than we could make in our coal deal."

"Twenty-five thousand dollars cash of mine is tied up," Martin lamented. "I'm in a bady way now with my firm and I do not know what I shall do."

At this juncture there was a slight rap on the door and in came the

ST. LOUIS WORKS IN CONCERT

An unusual concert will be given the evening of Feb. 24 under auspices of the St. Louis Art League for the purpose of displaying to the public St. Louis talent in composition.

Among the numbers on the program are songs by Jessie L. Gaynor, sung by her daughter, Mrs. Rose Gaynor Faeth. Mrs. Bernice C. Wyer will play a group of her piano compositions. Max Gottschalk will play two movements from his own violin concerto in which he uses negro themes. Samuel Bollinger will be represented by three new songs to be sung by Miss Mabel Ann Porter Kraus. E. R. Kroeger will play a group of piano solos by Miss Marion Ralston, Arthur Lieber, Alfred C. Robyn, Louis Conrath and William H. Pomer. He will also play the piano part in his Sonata in C minor for violoncello and piano. The violincello part will be played by P. Gottlieb Anton.

50 DEGREES AVERAGE ANNUAL TEMPERATURE IN MISSOURI

34 Below Zero Lowest Ever Recorded in State and 113 Highest; 30 Is Average for Winter.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 11.—Temperature averages for Missouri are 30 degrees in winter and 76 degrees in summer with an annual average of 50 degrees, according to figures compiled at the local branch of the U. S. weather bureau. "But average temperatures are of general significance only," an accompanying statement says, "and they give no notion of the actual temperature ranges."

"The lowest temperature recorded in Missouri was 34 degrees below zero and the highest was 113 degrees, a range of 147 degrees. As a general rule, however, the range betwen summer and winter is about 50 degrees.

The report details the causes and results of varying temperatures and makes it clear throughout that the outstanding feature about Missouri's climate is that it is variable and generally "different."

Average annual rainfall in the State is about 40 inches distributed throughout the year as follows:

January	2.3
February	2.0
March	2.9
April	3.9
May	4.6
June	4.6
July	3.5
August	3.7
September	4.4
October	2.2
November	2.1
December	1.7

BRITISH "BIG BUSINESS" WANTS RESUMPTION OF RUSSIAN TRADE

Industrial Crisis Makes Manufacturers Line Up With Liberals and Labor Elements.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Big business in Britain is now strongly behind the movement for the opening of trade relations with soviet Russia, which, it is said, may be expected to result from Leonid Krassin's return to London within a fortnight. The growing seriousness of the industrial and economic crisis here has finally forced the big manufacturing interests into line with the Liberal and Labor elements of the country and it is significant that one of the biggest plans in the labor program for meeting the unemployment problem is trade with Russia.

In addition, the still increasing competition of German manufactured goods in foreign fields has made British manufacturers anxious to tap the Russian markets. A fresh example of the menace of German competition was given out by the Federation of British Industries which learned that two big groups of German locomotive firms had just offered Russia a thousand locomotives at $65,000 apiece, which is $35,000 less than British firms are said to be willing to bid. This is a considerable offset to the tentative British contract to repair Russia's locomotives if a trade agreement is signed.

This contract, it is said, is the only one of any size with Russia which has assumed such a definite form, but several British firms already have been in negotiation with Krassin and as soon as trade is reopened many more formal contracts will be made.

$500,000 CAMPAIGN CONFERENCE

A conference of the minute men of St. Louis Presbytery of the Southern Presbyterian Church, who are engaged in the united education campaign, will be held tomorrow night at the University Club, Grand and Washington avenues. Dr. John M. Vander Meulen, president of the Louisville Theological Seminary, will be the principal speaker. The conference will assemble at 5:15 p. m., with dinner scheduled for 7.

The campaign seeks to raise $500,000 for four of the church's institutions, Westminster and Synodical College, Fulton, Mo.; the School of the Ozarks, Hollister, Mo., and the theological seminary at Louisville, Ky.

MINE OWNER FOILS RACING SWINDLERS AND GETS $1000 "BAIT"

cashier. "It was even money against Vibrate," said he. And he handed me a statement showing a balance of $75,500 due. He said if I would call up somebody in Asbury Park, or call my local bank, and prove that I was good for $25,000, he would turn all the winnings over to me, or, if I cared to, I could let the matter go until later. Martin insisted that I call up the bank. I refused emphatically. Allen, returning to the original coal deal, said:

"Young Daily will pay you $25,000 in a check. Or I have $15,000 in a bank in New York and you can easily fix up the other $10,000 and we will get our winnings."

I agreed to this proposition at once because it gave me an opportunity to get out of the house. We went downstairs; Allen and I got into the automobile and started for Asbury Park.

Martin left us with the understanding that he would see us later. I told Allen that I was leaving at once, and that if he wished to close up the deal he could meet me in Pittsburg. This dumfounded him; he insisted that I not take the 7 o'clock train, but wait until 8 o'clock. But, although I was rejoicing in my freedom, I wanted to verify young Daily's statement that he was going to Canada; I wanted to go on the same train that he said he was going to take.

Thought His Money Gone.

After earnestly remonstrating because I was leaving, Allen left me. His last words to me were that he would telegraph my share of the money to me. I never expected to see a cent of it, so I told him half jestingly to put it in a letter, and I gave my address in New York. I entered the 7 o'clock train, and young Daily came running up and asked where Allen was. Later I went through the entire train; Allen was not on it.

The next morning in New York I picked up a newspaper and to my amazement read the headlines: "Vibrate runs off with the money at Aqueduct in the fourth race; easily beats Wilson's Dry Moon."

Thinking that I might have made a fool of myself in running away from a good tip when I had one, I determined to learn if Allen and Martin were still at Asbury Park. So I wired Allen at the Coleman House:

Sends Wire to Allen.

"Can make necessary arrangements to suit Martin and Vibrate Monday without notifying my bank. You can reach me care of Hotel Astor until noon Thursday. Will then go to Princeton. Will be in Philadelphia on Saturday on coal matter."

Subsequently I learned that this message was never delivered. I remained in New York for three days and, realizing how narrow my escape had been, I took the matter up with the front office force of the New York City detectives. A detective told me I had been "up against one of the biggest bunches of crooks in the country."

"If you had not held your temper and played them," said the detective, "you never would have got out of that house with money. And if you had played another horse and given them your I. O. U. you would not have had any of your own money left."

I returned to Butler and attended to my affairs for two days. Thinking over the affair, I decided I would be uncertain all the rest of my life whether these men were scoundrels and swindlers, so I went to Asbury Park on the following Thursday. In an automobile I searched for three hours for the house to which I had been taken, but I could not find it. I learned that Daily, who Allen said had been a guest at the Coleman House for three weeks, had never been there. I learned, too, that Allen and young Daily had left Asbury Park the morning after I did, saying they were going to New York.

Betting House Is Denied.

I made myself acquainted with some of the sporting men of Asbury Park, who said there never was a betting house near the Country Club. Their idea was that the whole affair was a "frame-up." Some time has elapsed, and I have not heard directly or indirectly from Allen, Daily or Martin, relative to the coal deal.

I am now quite certain that they expected after the fourth race was won, and I had established my credit and taken their money, that I would make a tremendous bet on the fifth race. Then the horse they gave me would lose and I would have been forced to sign the paper which I had brought conveying the coal mine or to sign checks for great amounts. If I had not done this I am sure they would have killed me. I've learned since that the name of the winner was telephoned to them immediately after each race. So it was easy for Martin to "pick" the winner.

I've learned since of other responsible men who have had the same experience. Thinking the whole affair over calmly, I have come to the conclusion that I was in the hands of nine of the most adroit scoundrels in the country. But I have the satisfaction of knowing that it cost them $1000 and more to make their attempt to swindle me.

Just two big sales a year—that's the Hellrung and Grimm policy. And because we do hold only two sales a year, we can make them mighty big sales. They are big in the quantity of Furniture involved, big in the values offered. We're selling Furniture now at less—actually—than its replacement cost in the present market. Everything in stock is included except a very few items on which the manufacturers set the retail price. And you can tell just how much you save on the Furniture you buy here, for the original price tag, as well as a new one, is attached to every piece.

PRIMARY BILL ANALYZED BY THE BAR ASSOCIATION

SPECIAL CLAUSE CONCERNING RECOUNT

Nomination of Candidates for Judicial Offices Is Provided for at Convention of Elected Delegates.

A committee of the St. Louis Bar Association, consisting of George C. Hitchcock, Daniel N. Kirby and Joseph W. Jamison, together with Fred W. Lehmann, president of the association, and Marion C. Early, former president, has prepared a synopsis of the two bills now pending in the Legislature for the amending of the primary election statute.

One of the pending measures was prepared by the Bar Association Committee. The other bears the name of Senator Proctor of Kansas City. The Bar Association measure has received the indorsement of the Chamber of Commerce, of business organizations in some other cities of the State, and of 19 women's organizations in the city.

The most important feature of difference in the Bar Association and Proctor measures, it is held, is that relating to the nomination of Judges of the Circuit, State Supreme and Appellate Courts. The Proctor measure provides that Judges shall be nominated by conventions, which shall be called by party committees. The Bar Association measure provides that judicial nominees shall be named at conventions, the delegates to which shall be chosen by the voters at the primary.

Difference Between Measures.

The synopsis of differences between the two measures, prepared by the Bar Associationn Committee, is as follows:

"The Proctor bills propose to amend the existing defective primary election law, without repealing it, so as to place the nomination for all judicial offices outside of the primary law or any other law under the control of political committees and political organizations.

"The Proctor bills do not propose any amendments whereby the ballots cast in the primaries for the nomination of candidates for other than judicial office may be used in evidence in criminal prosecutions for election frauds; neither do the Proctor bills authorize courts to compel the production of primary ballots for inspection by grand juries.

"The Bar Association bill confers express authority on the courts to compel the production of ballots cast in primary elections for use in evidence in criminal prosecutions of persons charged with election frauds; also confers authority on the courts to compel the production of ballots for inspection by grand juries while engaged in investigating frauds committed at elections; also authorizes any two electors who voted in any precinct to file a contest in court whereby the ballots may be opened and recounted in the presence of prosecuting officials.

"The Proctor bills contain no like provision.

"The Bar Association primary bill provides for the nomination of candidates for judicial offices by delegate conventions, the delegates thereto, however, to be elected at the official primary election at which other candidates are nominated by direct vote. The names of the delegates to delegate conventions must be printed on the official ballot. The ballots cast in electing delegates are canvassed, counted and returned in like manner as provided by law for the canvass and return of ballots for the general elections; certificates of election are issued to the delegates who have received a plurality of the votes cast; the delegates are prohibited from giving proxies; numerous other regulations are provided for the organization of the State judicial conventions so as to insure that the representatives of the electors chosen as delegates in the primary will make the nominations.

New Primary Provisions.

"The Bar Association bill also provides a system for the registration of voters preceding the August primary. The present primary law contains no such provision and it was the opinion of the committee, consisting of Judge George C. Hitchcock, Daniel N. Kirby and J. W. Jamison, who made a report at a meeting of the St. Louis Bar Association on Feb. 9, 1920—a year ago yesterday—at the meeting that was addressed by Gov. Lowden, the committee having been previously appointed by Marion C. Early, the then president of the St. Louis Bar Association, that the present primary law is invalid because of its failure to provide a means whereby qualified electors under the Constitution would be permitted to register so as to afford them an opportunity to vote in the primary.

"The Bar Association bill proposes to enact a valid statute by making all needful regulations for a registration.

"If the Proctor program goes through, all judicial candidates will be nominated under committee rules and regulations free from any and all restraints of the law; but if the existing primary bill shall be held invalid, as it is believed it will be if the matter is tested in the courts, then all candidates must of necessity be nominated under party rules and regulations, the same as before the enactment of any primary law."

JUDGE DYER 83 YEARS OLD

Birthday Is Celebrated With Family Gathering at Home.

Federal Judge David P. Dyer yesterday celebrated his eighty-third birthday with a family gathering at his home, 1 North Taylor avenue. With him were his children, David P. Dyer Jr., Horace L. Dyer, Miss Elizabeth Dyer and Mrs. A. F. Fay Jr., all of St. Louis; E. H. Dyer of New Orleans, and Mrs. Edgar W. Hunter of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Judge Dyer came to Missouri with his parents in 1841. He was reared in Lincoln County and was admitted to the bar in Pike County. He served as Prosecuting Attorney in Pike County and as a Representative in Congress before coming to St. Louis.

A Man's Pie

Fresh—Delicious—Try it now

Just phone to your grocer or bake shop and say, "Send a Sun-Maid Raisin Pie," or make one at home according to the recipe below. You'll get the pie that men like best because of its flavor and nourishment.

The raisins are Sun-Maids, plump and tender. The pie is baked so the juice forms a luscious sauce.

It's a man's pie—and a woman's, too, because it is delicious and easy to prepare. Healthful, too, for raisins are nutritious. Rich in assimilable organic iron, which brings the tint of roses to women's and children's cheeks. Eat raisins daily in some delicious form and you'll get all the iron you need.

Recipe for Real Raisin Pie

Cut This Out and Keep It

2 cups Sun-Maid Raisins
1½ cups boiling water
1 cup sugar
4 tablespoons cornstarch
Juice 2 lemons
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
Juice 1 orange
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1 cup chopped walnuts

Cook raisins in boiling water for five minutes; pour into sugar and cornstarch which have been mixed. Cook until thick; remove from fire and add other ingredients. Bake between two crusts. Walnuts may be omitted if desired.

SUN-MAID RAISINS

Always use Sun-Maids for your every cooking need.

Made from California's tenderest, sweetest, juiciest table grapes, noted for their fragile skins.

Packed in a great sun-lighted, glass-walled plant. Sweet, clean, wholesome American raisins—the kind you know are good.

Three varieties: Sun-Maid Seeded (seeds removed), Sun-Maid Seedless (grown without seeds), Sun-Maid Clusters (on the stem). All dealers. Insist upon the Sun-Maid Brand.

ASSOCIATED PRESS MANAGER DENIES VILLARD CHARGES

MEN NOT WITHDRAWN FROM RUSSIAN FIELD

Says Correspondents Were Ejected by Soviet Government When They Would Not "Color" Dispatches.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Frederick Roy Martin, acting general manager of the Associated Press, was somewhat taken aback when shown the Post-Dispatch of Tuesday last containing the speech delivered in St. Louis by Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of the Nation, taking the American newspapers to task especially for their handling of foreign news, as evidenced by what he calls their utter misrepresentation of affairs in Russia.

Declaring that the only remedy is the establishment by the Associated Press and other American news agencies of "competent and fearless" correspondents in Europe, Villard's implication seemed to be that the present staff is either incompetent, or is influenced by fear in a policy of misrepresentation.

Displeased at Implication.

Martin was not at all pleased at this implication, which was also made to apply in domestic matters, especially the reporting of the steel strike, which Villard seemed to think was done by the Pittsburg papers, their news being distributed by the Associated Press.

"As every news editor in the country knows, and as Mr. Villard should known, we covered the steel strike with our own men and did not call upon any of the papers in the district for our information," said Martin.

After reading the report over carefully, Martin said:

"I see only two direct references here to the Associated Press. In one Mr. Villard speaks of our withdrawing our men from Russia because the British censorship made it useless to try to maintain them there; the other is where he speaks of his 'remedy' for the situation he envisages. These I will answer."

Whereupon, he dictated the following statement:

"I do not know what Mr. Villard means by saying that there was complete complaisance in the withdrawal of all the Associated Press correspondents from Russia a couple of years ago because of the British Government's interference with their dispatches. The Associated Press did not withdraw its correspondents from Russia at all. They were thrown out and their withdrawal had no connection in any way with the British or any other censorship but that of the soviet government, which has intimated to us indirectly that we could send correspondents into Russia if they would write news favorable to the soviet government.

Russia Is Sole Exception.

"As to Mr. Villard's statement that Americans cannot reasonably expect to be truthfully informed of world events until the Associated Press and its American agencies are thoroughly established throughout the world, particularly in Europe, with competent and fearless correspondents, I can only say that the Associated Press is thus established in every country in Europe except in Russia, where its correspondents are barred.

"So far as I am aware Mexico is the only other country which in times of peace has barred American newspaper correspondents. In all the other important countries of Europe, even Turkey, we have our staff men trained in this country. They are men in whom we have implicit confidence. Mr. Villard knows many of them and I am very confident that he did not intend to intimate that they are either incompetent or fearful."

SALVATION ARMY AIDED 8360 INDIVIDUALS HERE LAST YEAR

Majority Who Sought Help Said That Unemployment or Sickness Caused Their Need.

The Salvation Army reports that during 1920 it gave aid to 8360 individuals and 1402 families in St. Louis. These persons were given food, clothing and medicines. In some instances their rents were paid and fuel furnished.

At present 411 families are being cared for by the relief department. They include 2025 individuals. At Christmas, the Salvation Army gave away 425 baskets and aided 2125 individuals. Mrs. Brigadier Dunham, in charge of the relief department, said the reasons usually given by persons who sought air were unemployment and sickness, which figured in 75 per cent and 20 per cent of the cases, respectively.

The relief department is conducted at 520 Odd Fellows' Building.

ARE "THUMBS DOWN" ON YOUR SUCCESS?

Are "Hard Times" Causing You Worry or Distress?

How you may make money and "get ahead" in spite of "hard times" and business depression

In the days of the old Roman Arena "THUMBS DOWN" from the audience meant death to the wounded and fallen gladiator; Thumbs up was the signal to let him live.

Today "THUMBS DOWN" on your BODILY and MENTAL VIGOR may mean FAILURE AND FINANCIAL RUIN to you. It is the strong keen red blooded man who is the most certain to win and come home with the "CASH"—many of the others are going to fall under the terrible spell of "thumbs down" just like the weak, unnerved man in this picture. This poor man is trying hard to get up but he hasn't the bodily and mental vigor and the necessary iron in his blood to give him the strength, force and "will power" to overcome the obstacles caused by "HARD TIMES."

YOUR BRAIN CANNOT WORK RIGHT—think the thoughts that are most certain to bring success—when you lack bodily and mental vigor—A great business man has said that genius is nothing but a capacity for hard work—A wizard is generally a man who thinks longer and harder than the other fellow—That "INDEFINABLE SOMETHING" that wins is often nothing more than an "iron-will" supported by IRON BLOOD—With these two things nothing can stop you—without them, everything is uncertain.

IRON IS THE MASTER PRINCIPLE OF THE BLOOD and BLOOD IS LIFE. It is the iron in your blood that carries oxygen to your brain. Without iron your brain gets no oxygen. Without oxygen and plenty of rich red blood, your brain becomes dull and heavy; YOUR INTELLECT IS POOR; YOU MAKE BAD DECISIONS; DO FOOLISH THINGS; your memory often fails—no matter how smart you may be by nature, in your weakened physical and mental condition, you are certainly no match for the strong, keen, clear headed man with plenty of iron in his blood. Although you may give two men the same firearms or swords in a battle, the strong vigorous fellow always has a decided advantage over a weak tired-out opponent.

WITHOUT IRON YOUR BLOOD ALSO LOSES ITS POWER TO CHANGE FOOD INTO LIVING CELLS AND TISSUE and nothing you eat does you the proper amount of good—you do not get the full strength out of it. In fact sometimes the more you eat the more you starve, as your digestive organs are unable to handle much food when your blood lacks iron and you often think you have stomach trouble, when it isn't that at all. Simply eat less and take iron.

There are 30,000,000,000,000 Red Blood Corpuscles in your blood and each one must have iron. DON'T TRY TO "FOOL YOURSELF" into thinking you are a man of "blood and iron when" you have good reason to suspect that you are not—CONSIDER THE SIZE OF YOUR BANK BALANCE what success you have had in life—A MAN IS ONLY PART OF A MAN WHEN HIS BLOOD LACKS IRON.

When you get up feeling tired in the morning, when you find yourself nervous, irritable and easily upset when you can no longer do your day's work without being all fagged out at night; or have pains across the back and your face looks pale and drawn, do not wait until you go all to pieces and collapse in a state of nervous prostration or until in your weakened condition you contract some serious disease, but take some organic iron like Nuxated Iron at once to help enrich your blood and revitalize your wornout exhausted nerves. Organic Nuxated Iron often increases the bodily and mental vigor of weak, tired, wornout, nervous people in two weeks. It's like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. You can even eat it if you wish. It will not blacken or injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. It is entirely different from ordinary metallic iron which people usually take, and which is made merely by the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron. Beware of substitutes. Look for the word "NUXATED" on every package and the letters N. I. on every tablet. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactor sults. At all druggists.

NUXATED IRON ENRICHES THE BLOOD-GIVES YOU NEW STRENGTH AND ENERGY

MARKETS RECORD ERRATIC CHANGES IN WEEK'S TRADE

Held That Revival of Business Depends in Large Measure Upon Restoration of Normal Trading Relations With Outsiders.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"Early January rallies having been pretty thoroughly wiped out, our financial markets have during the past week shown a tendency to display rather sharp and erratic fluctuations. March cotton, for example, sold at a new low of 12.10 cents on Friday, Feb. 4. By the following Monday it had climbed as high as 13.96c, but on the very next day it slumped back to 13.10c. Yet, before another day had passed it had jumped up again to 13.86c. Thus we have this commodity jumping back and forth over a range of approximately 1 cent almost on successive days. The appearance is, of course, that of an extremely speculative market, and the appearance is fully justified by the facts in the case. British textile manufacturers have large supplies of the raw material, but a dearth of orders for cloth. Until such orders come in these manufacturers are hardly likely to be interested in the staple. Consequently, the Liverpool spot market is lifeless, and as a result speculative rallies on this side get nowhere.

Awaiting Real Revival.

"In wheat the fluctuations have been even more extreme. In less than a week the price of the March delivery has varied over a range of 20 cents. Last Tuesday it sold for $1.52½; on Thursday it commanded as much as $1.68½, or 16 cents more. Plainly this was a case of the short interest being driven to cover. While speculative trading is the immediate cause of such fluctuations, their magnitude is accentuated by the absence of any steady pressure of demand. Under normal conditions, with a steady turnover of business, prices may vary and may show the influence of speculative buying, but they do have trend. Business is going somewhere and prices indicate how fast it is going and how far it has progressed along that way. In the case of the commodities under discussion, and particularly in the case of cotton, there is no trend; the market has no momentum. The situation may be compared to that of a ship lying in the doldrums. Very little is needed to move its sails; vagrant gusts will throw them from one side to the other; but the ship must wait for a real wind. So in the financial markets we are waiting for a real revival or demand, and until this occurs we must be prepared to put up with a good deal of purposeless movement.

"So far as the immediate future is concerned, no marked change appears to be in sight. The second of the monthly reviews of world trade conditions to be issued by the Department of Commerce, which was given out last Tuesday, stated that little improvement had been shown since the first of the year. Cables from the department's representatives report a continuation of high money rates, financial embarrassments, and increasing unemployment. News dispatches from London, meanwhile, have told of sporadic renewals of forced liquidation, dear money, and that the Far Eastern situation is still distinctly unsatisfactory. At the same time it is pointed out that the rise in the exchange value of the franc has lowered the domestic price level in France and so created additional business uncertainty while in our own country a good deal is still heard of receiverships protective committee, and loans for hard pressed companies.

"These circumstances do not, however, justify gloomy conclusions. On the contrary, the probability is that we have seen the worst. No reasonable man expects a trade revival to start in early February. If with the advent of spring something better does not appear there will be more cause for disappointment. Meanwhile the natural processes of readjustment are working out cures for our economic ills.

Normal World Trade Needed.

"It should be apparent to all by this time, however, that the revival of our own business depends in large measure upon the restoration of normal relations with other countries. If the rest of the world does not need, or cannot take our cotton, grain, meats and manufactures, this country cannot expect to enter into the full swing of prosperity itself. For this reason we should look at our business problems, not merely from the standpoint of what immediate advantage we can obtain for ourselves, but should seek for a solution of the present economic situation which will restore and stabilize international trade relationships and so start the whole world moving ahead once more. The attitude which the incoming administration takes toward this fundamental question will be a crucial factor in determining the time and magnitude of our business revival."

Terms of Loan to Chileans.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Feb. 12.—General improvements on the Chilean State railways and purchase of new equipment and the liquidation of the deficit accumulated during the past two years will be carried out by means of the loan of $24,000,000 negotiated by the Bank of Chile and a group of North American bankers.

The loan, which was made through the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York City, will mature in 20 years, but may be repaid before that time at the option of the Chilean Government. Fifteen per cent of the gross earnings of the State lines will be set aside for the payment of this loan, and the refunding of the money will be in accordance with the provision of the law authorizing the President to contract the debt. The interest rate was fixed at 8 per cent.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—All that has happened this week filled in the view that the country is passing through the familiar resting spell which follows a violent upheaval like that of last autumn. Business conditions are variable, in some lines like woolen and cotton goods a decided recovery is under way, in other lines, notably iron and steel prices are still falling and production, along with new orders, is on the decline. This unevenness, however, is quite normal under circumstances like the present and has been forecast very generally ever since the first of the year. The earliest date which has even been set for a new forward movement to begin is some time in the spring. Meanwhile, readjustment while it has been completed in most quarters, has not been finished in all.

The Wall Street market, reflecting the trade position outside, is also in a waiting mood. Trading has sunk to a minimum and prices have been swinging back and forward in an extremely narrow range. It is precisely the sort of market which was witnessed in the early part of 1904 following the so-called "rich men's panic" and the more or less acute trade depression of the preceding year. Likewise it is very much like the market which we had for a few months following the crisis of 1907. It is a market which is not responsive to developments either favorable or adverse. Still it is of more consequence that bad news has ceased to count than that good news has not yet begun to count. The performance of the oil shares in the face of the cutting of crude oil prices all the way from 25 to 50 per cent has certainly been remarkable. At no time during this price cutting campaign have these stocks been weak and they even had, during the recent trading, their moments of very decided strength. The same is true of the steels. Open war, it seems to some has been declared between the independents and the steel corporation. Some of the former companies have reduced prices sharply in an effort to stimulate business. Yet the steel stocks gained ground on the week.

Foreign Exchange.

Renewal of the recovery in the foreign exchanges may be set down first of all to the improvement in international trade from the standpoint of most of these countries. Following the estimate of a $1,000,000,000 credit for Gerat Britain last year taking the invisible as well as the visible items into account, the January figures showed British exports and imports even closer together than for any month of 1920. In part, the fresh upward turn in exchange rates is a reflection of confidence in the settlement of the German reparation question, and still again it is influenced by the prospect of easier money on this side.

But there is undoubtedly an increasing connection between the recovery in sterling, francs and lire and the plans under way for financing the American export trade. The $40,000,000 note issue by the copper export association is the first great step along this line. There is no doubt of the success of this operation. The 8 per cent rate is attractively high and the security of 400,000,000 pounds of copper metal valued at 10 cents a pound is unquestionably simple because no commodity can for long stay below cost of production and 10 cents for copper is way below cost. When this copper financing is out of the way a similar scheme will be worked out for coffee, where there is also a troublesome surplus waiting to be taken care of and it would be surprising if other commodities such as cotton tobacco and perhaps sugar were taken in hand the same way.

Foreign Finance Corporation.

All this will lead up to and awaken a more general public interest in the great $100,000,000 foreign finance corporation with its charter providing for a debenture bond issue of $1,000,000,000 to be used for long term credits to buyers of American goods. The banks and investing public have responded well to the copper note offering which, in a way is a unique experiment in American finance. They should be equally responsive to the offer of securities by the new foreign trade financing company because the loans of this concern will be secured by collateral that must receive the approval of the Federal Reserve Board and will therefore be of the highest investment rank.

The first aspect of these undertakings is, of course, the stimulus they will give the export trade. The second aspect is the relief they will afford the credit situation at home. The sale, for instance, of the $40,000,000 copper notes means just so much of a load taken off the banks and passed on to the investment community. It means the change of so much credit from a temporary form, where it helps along inflation, to a more permanent form where it ceases to be a strain upon bank resources. While this copper and other similar financing that may follow is of the first importance for foreign commerce and for the banking position in this country, it is also bound to be a permanent factor in domestic business recovery. The copper transaction has lifted a vast surplus from the market which has long been overhanging, discouraging fresh buying because of the threat of still lower prices. With the assurance that this surplus is not being pressed for sale, but will be held over a period of from one to four years, giving plenty of time for its sale abroad, the whole outlook in the copper trade is changed and so it will be in every other industry which tries the same experiment.

CREDITS CALLED NECESSARY FOR EXPORT TRADE

Restoration of Pound Sterling Lies Partly Through the Revival of Receptive and Productive Power of Continent, Declared.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—If it is not intruding upon the diplomatic delicacies may I give in a few words financial London's views concerning Anglo-American relations? The idea of even strained relations is unthinkable, but as I have frequently cabled, our financial community ever since the armistice has taken the view that because of the extraordinary complexity of international political, financial and social problems, the situation demanded abnormally close, warm and sympathetic friendliness on the part of the two great English speaking races. This is more especially important because a few of the problems involve questions between the two nations themselves. Consequently this closeness of touch is desirable to prevent even temporary misunderstandings.

Sterner Problems Ahead.

All points at issue, however, will dissolve before frank and friendly discussion, and just as America and England saved civilization in war, so, because they have common ideals they will unitedly maintain the world's peace and finally restore general prosperity. Starting with your present advantages you will be the richest nation, but the union ultimately will be just as complete and real as when our positions were reversed.

Meanwhile, indications suggest that both countries probably will have to face sterner problems than has yet been realized. Europe's economic difficulties, for example, may be increased by the growing needs for capital of your own industries and productive activities, yet both with you and us the necessity of fostering export trade through credits cannot be overlooked.

Must Help Others Pay.

Lord Inchcape at the meeting of the national provincial bank on Thursday said: "Restoration of the pound sterling lies through the revival of the receptive and productive power of the continent and the procurement of conditions that will enable all European nations to pay their way." The London view might even make stabilization of the American dollar depend on a similar proposition. Lord Inchcape also emphasized another point which is somewhat common to America and Britain; namely: the necessity, in view of the magnitude of existing capital requirements, for getting prices and cost of production lower. Otherwise the latter will outrun the dimensions of legitimate credit and banking resources.

Foreign Exchange and Domestic Money

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—There was a sustained improvement in the foreign exchange situation, although the tone was variable with business decreasing to extremely small volume at intervals, and recessions quickly following movements to higher levels. When strength was shown in sterling and in exchange to leading Continental centers, there was a hopeless searching for reasons for advances, but the explanations offered were vague and without definite basis. The belief is growing that the foreign exchange situation has permanently changed from conditions which prevailed a year ago and that the advances since the beginning of winter are due to gradual betterment of the foreign situation and not to the various developments which have occurred in the course of the upward movement. This improvement may become more pronounced as a result of the allied conference in London which may be followed by harmony and a return to industrial activity in many sections. Sterling naturally is regarded with the greatest interest. Demand sterling during the past week ranged from $3.82¾ to $3.89 and material advances were made in France and German exchange. Late in the week there was a special movement in Norwegian exchange and on Thursday the transactions in exchange on Christiania were the feature of the market, crown checks then advancing from 17.80 to 18.20. This movement followed heavy trading on the Continent. Yesterday, while demand sterling moved up to a new high for the week, there was a sudden collapse in Norwegian exchange which was thought by some to be connected with announcement of bankruptcy of a leading Scandinavian firm announced some time after the usual closing period. Chinese exchange was comparatively steady after the declines previously established. The first two days of the week were observed as holidays in South America, interrupting business to South American points.

REPORTS OF DAMAGE TO WHEAT SEND PRICES UP

Some Hold Export Situation No Longer to Be Chief Factor in Trend of Values.

Apprehension expressed regarding threatened impairment of the winter wheat crops was largely responsible for notable upturns in the wheat market during the past week.

Compared with a week ago, wheat prices Friday night showed 9¾c to 13c advance, corn was up 2⅜c to 3c, and oats 2⅛c to 2¾@2⅞c. On the other hand, provisions were down 85c to $1.50.

Reports that an unusually widespread area in the Southwest had been more or less affected by the insect pest known as the green bug formed the basis for misgivings about crop damage. Competent authorities said the progress of winter wheat would depend on weather conditions during the next six weeks, with maximum injury probable if temperatures in the Southwest were low—only a little above freezing.

Much talk was likewise current that from this time onward the chief factor in establishing values would be domestic conditions instead of foreign. Unwillingness which growers displayed toward selling was the subject of particular comment. Bears, Friday, however, made much of predictions of a larger crop movement coming, especially in North Dakota. Considerable notice was taken also of proceedings to restrain any more United States Treasury credits to foreign Governments.

Corn and oats sympathized with the wheat bulge.

Big receipts of hogs weakened provisions.

HOG DEMAND LIGHTER AS LENTEN SEASON OPENS

Cattle Receipts Fall Off and Beef Steers Sell on Higher Basis.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last week.	Prev. week.	Year ago.
Cattle and calves	12,220	19,013	20,539
Hogs	78,770	96,176	77,506
Sheep	10,600	6,999	8,445
Horses and mules	2,898	2,420	5,709
Totals	104,488	124,608	112,199

Following the bad break in the cattle market two weeks ago, receipts at St. Louis and other livestock markets throughout the West fell off sharply the past week. Local run at 12,000 head for the six days was only about one-half of normal.

With only approximately 6000 cattle here Monday and Tuesday, market ruled substantially higher those two days. Demand was exceedingly narrow after Tuesday, however, and following days the week experienced an unfavorable reaction in the trade, with the result that much of the early gains in values have been lost on the close.

As compared with a week ago, beef steers are 25c and in spots 50c higher, most strength centering on the good, weighty material, of which there were comparatively few here. Top beeves scored at $8.25 and bulk of sales covered a spread of $6.60@7.60. Stocker and feeder steers advanced 25c early in the week, though a large part of this was eliminated later.

Best light yearlings were in good call throughout and are 50@75c up for the period. Others are only about 25c up. Top heifers, $9; bulk, $5.25@6.75.

Weakness was characteristic of the cow trade late. For the week the market is steady to 25c higher. Butcher cows sold from $5@5.75 largely, cutters $3.75@4.75, and canners $3.15@3.50. The bull market was slow throughout the week and no better than steady. Bulk sold from $4.50@5.50. Veal calves at best time sold up to $11.50@12, though the bulk Friday sold from $10.50@11, or little better than a week ago.

Hog Demand Falls.

The spirited competition that marked the trade at the hog house for the past several weeks has disappeared, due partially, no doubt, to the opening of the Lenten season and the resulting curtailment of consumption. The falling off was partially offset by a drop in receipts, but not entirely, as was shown by the fact that liberal carry-overs were made on several days.

The run totaled 78,770, as against 96,176 the preceding week and 77,506 the corresponding period of last year. Receipts for the year are running heavier, showing a gain of 14,0000 up to this time. Declines of early in the week were largely made up for in the late sessions of the market, and the close was not over 15c to 25c under a week previous. The top for the week was recorded on Monday, when prices went to $10.35. Later they fell below $10, but worked back up to $10.25, on which basis the market finished. This compared with $10.40 the preceding Saturday. The spread between well-finished heavy hogs and choice light shippers was as wide as it has ever been in the history of this market, amounting to $1.50 at times. Bulk of sales for the week extended from $9.40@10, as against a spread of $10@10.25 the preceding week. Pigs were active and strong and sold around the top. In the closing session most of the light hogs and pigs were bringing $10@10.25, medium and heavy weight butchers $9.75@10, strong weights $9.25@9.60, and heavies $8.75@9.10.

Sheep Market Demoralized.

The marekt for sheep and lambs closed for the week in a practically demoralized condition, after an unstaisfactory trade all week. The run was considerably heavier than for a week previous, totaling 10,600, as against 6999. Packers did not seem to want the lambs at any price and many went unsold from day to day, while prices were as irregular as they have been in years. The advent of the Lenten season, unseasonable weather conditions and glutted Eastern livestock markets were factors which tended to demoralize the market. The quality of lambs was good, but weights were heavier than buyers like them on account of the stock being held on feed past the customary marekting time. Prices for the week are 50c to $1 lower than last week's mean close. Choice fed Western lambs would not sell over $9 at this time, if that high. Fat sheep are about a quarter lower for the week, with a top of $4.25 late. Fat yearlings are quotable for $6.50@7, cull lambs $4@6.50, canner sheep $1.50 and choppers and bucks $3.

Horses Steady for Week.

On a moderate supply of about 450 head, the market for horses at St. Louis maintained a generally steady level. There was a rather good representation of buyers on the yards, including some of the larger southern and eastern operators, and a ready outlet prevailed for virtually all classes.

Good material in particular enlisted an active demand. Some of the good chunks and draft horses sold upwards of $150@200, and good southern material sold upwards of $100@125. Plainer southern stock sold downwards of $30.

Mules Steady to Lower.

Offering of mules was large, over 2000 head, and though many sales held steady, others showed a lower tendency, most weakness being manifest on the smaller stock. Mules were sold out of commission alleys and through auctions, the bulk being disposed of through the latter means of outlet.

OFFERS REWARD FOR ARREST OF EMPLOYE'S ASSAILANTS

American Steel Co. Seeks Conviction of Men Who Dragged Man From Car Feb. 4.

The American Steel Co. has offered a reward of $200 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the men who dragged Michael Paul, a molder at the Granite City plant, from a street car the evening of Feb. 4 and beat him. The reward is announced in newspaper advertisements.

Paul is in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Granite City, and is in a critical condition as a result of pneumonia caused by his injuries. The beating was said to be the result of labor troubles, as the molders at the plant are on strike for an increase from 90 cents to $1 an hour. Information for the reward is to be reported at any police station.

Dried Fruits and Beans.

DRIED FRUIT—Evaporated rings; apples, 5c to 7c; quarters 6c to 6½c; chops, 2c, and waste, 1½c. Sundried—Apples, quarters, 8c (Southern, 7c); chops and waste, 1½c; sundried peaches, 10c.

BEANS AND PEAS—Choice hand-picked Michigan white beans, $5; prime machine-picked, $4.80 per 100 lbs.; nearby country beans, $3; pinto beans, $4.75 per 100 lbs. Scotch peas (from store) 5c per lb.; split peas, green, 8c, and yellow 7½c per lb. Choice lima beans, $8. California pink beans, $7, and large white, $5.50 per 100 lbs.

Pop Corn and Nuts.

POPCORN—White rice on the cob, $1.75, and mixed, $1.50 per 100 pounds.

PEANUTS—Tennessee farmers' stock, 3¼c; No. 1 Spanish, 7½c per pound; cleaned jumbo, 12c.

PECANS—New crop good average Texas or Western salable at 23c per pound; old nuts less.

HICKORY NUTS—Shellbarks, 5c; large, 4c; bull nuts, ½c per pound.

BLACK WALNUTS—1½c per pound.

HAZELNUTS—New, 5c per pound.

PEOPLE OF CHINESE PROVINCE OPPRESSED

Soldiers on Upper Reaches of Yangtsze River Reduce Inhabitants to Direst Straits.

By the Associated Press.

HANKOW, China, Jan. 12.—Appalling stories of a populace oppressed to the point of extermination by an uncontrolled soldiery have been coming to Hankow for weeks from the upper reaches of the Yangtsze River. The reports are principally from missionary sources. The people in the western part of Hupeh province, these advices say, have been reduced to the direst straits by troops who demand tribute, levy taxes, seize and occupy homes and shops and live on the land without restraint, and those under the yoke have no possible channel open to them to voice their grievances.

Shihnan and adjoining districts in the western part of the province are said to be wholly under domination of the soldiers. The area is not far distant from the Yangtsze transshipment port of Ichang, which was seized and looted by mutinous troops in December. In ordinary times it is secluded from the rest of China with little or no communication with the other provinces, due to the utter lack of routes of transportation over the rugged heights.

It was in the early months of 1918 as a development in the strife between North and South that the soldiers appeared here under the name of the "Pacifying Nation Troops" of Hupeh. These troops brought disaster.

Recently, by reason of differences these forces have had with the Szechuen troops, the source of salt supply for the district has been cut. For weeks, say the reports, it was impossible to obtain salt at any price, with the result that the plague appeared among soldiers and people alike. Here is a quotation from one letter to the Ameican Church Mission at Hankow.

"In one home the soldiers became enraged at the family's lack of respect for them. One day the soldiers, who board without paying, threw the food of the household to their horses. The needy family could not smother its protests, for starvation was then upon them. The soldiers then promptly called out the eldest son and hanged him. His wife immediately committed suicide and the old mother then killed herself."

$200.00 REWARD

A reward of $200.00 is hereby offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of strikers or their sympathizers who forcibly dragged Michael Paul from McKinley System Street Car No. 900 about 5:00 a. m., February 4, 1921, at Venice Junction, Ill., and brutally assaulted him.

Michael Paul is in a critical condition at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Granite City, Ill., and may not recover.

Report any information received to any Police Headquarters.

Why People Die Too Young

Will you devote 4 minutes of your time to a plan that may add twenty years to your life?

Why is it that even though you are apparently in good health there are times when you have all sorts of aches and pains—a depressed feeling and off days?

Have you ever stopped to question—why?

It is simply a warning from nature. Perhaps you have unknowingly broken some of nature's laws.

It is possible by following certain simple little rules not only to enjoy a vigorous health but to prolong one's youthfulness 10 to 20 years and instead of dying at 60 or 70 you may live to a ripe old age of 85 or 90 years.

There Is No Sudden Death

Nature goes far in her desire to protect us. There are certain signs, which when we understand them, give us warning of serious trouble to come. By knowing what they are we can head off illness and be healthy and vigorous.

Used by Big Business Men

Among the thousands who use this simple plan are the officials of many of the country's largest institutions—such as American Tel. & Tel. Co., Armour & Co., Standard Oil Company, Sears, Roebuck and Co., William Wrigley, Jr. Co. The members of the bureau are literally insuring active, vigorous health, with the practical certainty of adding twenty years to their lives. It's all in a simple little plan that requires only four minutes of your time a year—and the cost is so small it is within the reach of every one.

FAILS TO HAVE BILL HE INTRODUCED HELD UP

Bittner Says Spite Work Is Behind Measure Directed at Prosecutor, but It Will Be Reported.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 12.—The bill to prohibit Prosecuting Attorneys and their assistants from taking private practice, introduced in the House by Representative Frank O. Bittner of St. Louis, will be reported out of committee without recommendation by the Committee on Civil and Criminal Procedure over Bittner's protest.

Bittner appeared before the committee Friday night to ask that the bill be held and said that the bill was actuated by spite work, that some Democratic lawyers in St. Louis are aggrieved at Ernest Oakley, Prosecuting Attorney of St. Louis, against whom the bill is directed.

Members of the committee were inclined to feel that the bill, however, is a good one, and that members of the House are entitled to vote on it.

Bittner told a Post-Dispatch reporter that the bill had been given to him by Jack Sweeney, a Democratic lawyer of St. Louis, who told him that Oakley had broken a promise to appoint him as an assistant. Bittner said that after introducing the bill he had had a talk with Oakley, who told him there "was nothing to it."

Sweeney appeared before the Senate Judiciary Committee early in the week to argue for favorable report on the bill. He said that Oakley "had his whole law firm in the Prosecuting Attorney's office in effect," and that St. Louis attorneys felt a limit should be put upon his activities.

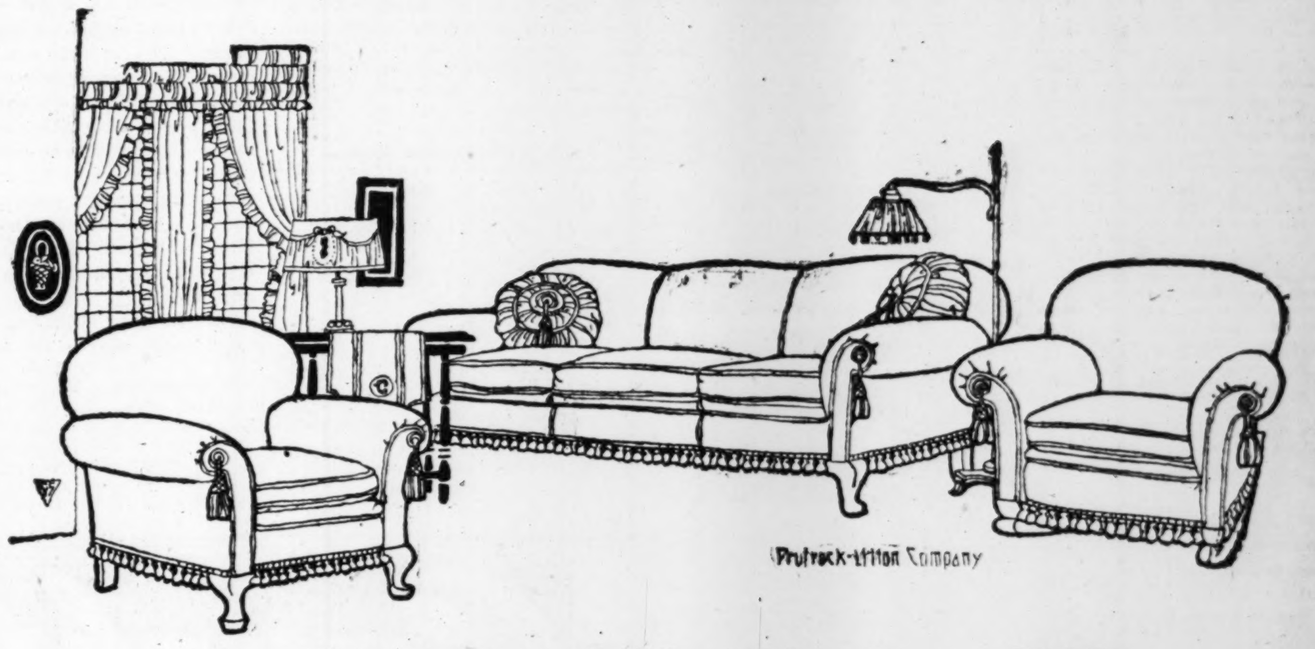
Furniture Problems Solved
In Our Midwinter Sale



These Three Pieces for the Living Room, $295

An unusually attractive three-piece overstuffed suite, warranted to create a charming interior, is sketched above.

The loose cushion seats are spring filled and deep yielding backs and arms lend supreme comfort. Rich silk rosette tassels on the arms and tassel edging at the base, in harmonious tones, complete this conspicuous value.

The suite, including 78-inch davenport, may be upholstered to order in OUR FACTORY in your choice of tapestry or velour costing up to $7.00 per yard. Formerly priced $450.00. Readjustment price $295.00

20% to 50% Off

"Furniture prices have reached their lowest level and will rebound and furniture will be higher in July than it is now," the President of the National Furniture Dealers' Association told the 1400 dealers met in a recent convention.

There is a great saving of worry and confusion, as well as actual economy, in intrusting all the varied details of your furniture problems to this one establishment, specially equipped to solve and carry them out in their entirety.

Dining Furniture

"I find it easy to select because your store is so well arranged," said a customer recently.

This applies with especial emphasis to dining furniture, for we show an entire floor of complete matched suites in all the period styles and in all the desired finishes—at discounts that speak for themselves.

The Pleasing Simplicity

together with the unusual overlay panels, shaping of the frames and dainty turnings bring immediate recognition and popularity to this three-piece Tudor design bed suite pictured below.

An interesting dresser, roomy chifforobe and graceful bow-foot bed in figured American walnut or brown mahogany, comprise the suite which sold for $350.00. Readjustment price $195.00

Study Abraham Lincoln's Life and Follow His Teachings.

Mr. Lincoln was a self-made man and has become the idol of all civilization.

He was born in Harden County, Kentucky, on February 12, 1809, just one hundred and twelve years ago.

St. Louis was then a sleepy little French village on the Mississippi River, and where the Prufrock-Litton Furniture Store now stands was a part of a broken-down farm which was owned by Judge J. B. C. Lucas.

The road passing our store on the north was called Rue d' Roi, later changed to St. Charles street.

Fourth Street, now the western boundary of our building, was in 1809 on the outskirts of the little village of St. Louis.

President Lincoln was shot and killed in Washington, D. C., in 1865.

His ceaseless diligence and unflagging determination have inspired me and million of others.

Mrs. Asquith Tells of Some Suitors She Didn't Marry

ALSO ADDS BITING WORDS ABOUT ROYAL SET

By Margot Asquith,
Wife of the Former English Premier.

IN the middle '80s, in England, the fashionable, or what was called "smart set," centered round the Prince of Wales, afterwards King Edward VII, and Newmarket was its headquarters. As far as I could see, there was much more exclusiveness in the racing world than I had ever observed among the Souls. The only times I went to Newmarket, the welcome extended to me by the small, shrewd and select coterie there made me feel exactly like an alien.

The Souls, that much-talked-of and criticised group of my friends, did not play bridge or baccarat; and our rather intellectual and literary after-dinner games were looked upon as pretentious. Arthur Balfour—the most distinguished of the Souls and idolized by every set in society—was the person who drew the enemy's heaviest fire.

(Editor's note: Margot Tennant was once wrongly reported engaged to Arthur Balfour. The next time they met, Balfour openly sought her company and sat through two dances with her, in order to remove any embarrassment on her part. To a friend who said to him: "I hear you are to marry Margot Tennant," he replied: "It is not so. I rather think I shall have a career of my own." The same rumor once arose with Lord Rosebery mentioned as the fiance. He became indignant, and when asked about it he replied, sharply: "Do you take me for a fool?" Margot characterizes him as too thin-skinned. In some quarters it was whispered that the rumors originated with her, but she herself says the first she heard of the Rosebery story was when a Paris house wrote to ask her to have them make her chemises for the trousseau.)

All the young men in my circle were clever and became famous; and the women mostly good to be with and distinguished to look at, although not more intelligent, were less worldly than their fashionable contemporaries.

What strikes me most on looking back at those 10 years is the amazing loyalty, devotion and fidelity which we showed to one another and the enormous pleasure which we derived from friendships that could not have survived a week had they been accompanied by gossip, mocking or any personal pettiness. We had a depth of feeling and moral and religious ambition that I miss in the clever young men and women of today. Our after-dinner games were healthier and more inspiring than theirs.

"Breaking the news," for instance, was an entertainment—entre autres—that had a certain vogue before the war. It consisted of two people acting together and conveying to their audience various ways in which they would receive the news of the sudden death of a friend or near relation, and was considered extraordinarily funny, but it would never have amused us.

The modern habit of pursuing, detecting and exposing what was ridiculous in simple people and the unkind and irrelevant manner in which slips were made material for epigram was unbearable to me. The school of thought which the young group called "anti-cant"—encouraged hard sayings and light doing which would have profoundly shocked the most frivolous of the Souls.

Brilliance of this kind may bring people together for amusement, but it will not keep them together for long, and the young, pre-war group that I am thinking of was scattered and short-lived.

George Curzon also drew the enemy's fire and was perhaps more directly responsible for the name of the Souls than anyone. He was a conspicuous young fellow of fashion and ability, with a ready pen, a ready tongue, an excellent sense of humor—in private life—and intrepid social boldness. He had appearance more than looks, a keen, lively face and a sanguine self-confidence that was almost vulgar. Like every young man of exceptional promise, he was called a prig. The word was so misapplied in those days that, had I been a clever young man, I should not have felt any self-confidence till I had been called a prig. He was a remarkably brilliant person in an exceptional generation. He was not so deliberately coarse in his humor as Harry Cust, their editor of the Pall Mall Gazette, and not so naturally fine; he had real ambition and what he claimed for himself—"middle-class method."

Some of my friends thought George Wyndham more original, just as Cust was a better scholar. But I myself always said—and have a record of it in my early diaries—that George Curzon would easily outstrip his rivals. He had two enormous and incalculable advantages over them: he was chronically industrious and self-sufficing. Although he was almost Oriental in his ideas of pomp and ceremony, and had a childish love of grandeur and fine people, and a poor sense of values and proportion, he was never self-indulgent, but took infinite trouble about everything, leaving nothing to chance. He was a first-rate host and boon companion; he neither ate, drank nor smoked too much.

No one could turn with more elasticity from work to play than George Curzon, and no one showed me and mine a more steady and sympathetic affection over a long period of years—even now, if I died, though he belongs to the socially conventional and does not mix with people of opposite political parties—he would write my obituary notice.

She Details Some Conversational Scraps With Hostesses in London Drawing Rooms, and Declares She Never Went to Newmarket Race Course, Where Edward VII's Set Flocked, Without Being Made to Feel Like an Alien—Preferred Her Women Associates in the Souls Because They Were More Human and Less Worldly.

(Editor's note: Lord Curzon of Kedleston is one of those who is willing to have his identification with the Souls forgotten. He is at present Minister of Foreign Affairs, was once Viceroy of India and leader of the ultra conservative party in England. He was a member of the war Cabinet in the first coalition government with Asquith.)

I remember dining with Sir Stanley and Lady Clarke to meet King Edward—then Prince of Wales—when my hostess said to me, in a loud voice, across the table:

"There were some clever people in the world before you were born, Miss Tennant!"

Feeling rather nettled, I replied:

"Please don't pick me out, Lady Clarke, as if I alone am responsible for the stupid ones among whom we find ourselves today."

I was young and intolerant and could not understand what all the jabber was about.

I had another little conversational scrap which caused some talk. Lady Londonderry, the mother of the present Marquis, was a beautiful woman a little before my day; she was happy and violent, with a firm grip on the obvious. She said to me once, with energy:

"I am a good friend and a good hater; no kiss-and-make-friends about me, my dear!"

She was not so well endowed intellectually as her rival and enemy, Lady de Grey, but she had a stronger will and sounder temptations.

There was nothing wistful, reflective or retiring about Lady Londonderry; she was kind and vivid, but persistently arrogant, unforgiving and impenitent.

I mentioned Lady Londonderry—who was not of the Souls—because it was with her that I crossed swords.

We were accused entre autres of being conceited, and of talking about books which we had not read—a habit which I have never had the temerity to acquire. John Addington Symonds, an intimate friend of mine, had brought out a book of essays. They were not very good and caused no sensation.

One night, after dinner, I was sitting in a circle of able men and women—none of them particularly intimate with me—when Lady Londonderry opened the talk about books. Hardly knowing her, I entered with an innocent zest into the conversation. I was taken in by her mention of Symond's "Studies in Italy." Launching out upon style, I said that there was a good deal of rubbish written about it, but it was essential that you should write simply.

At this, someone twitted me with our pencil-game of Styles, and asked me if I thought I should know the author from hearing a casual passage read out loud from one of his books. I said that some writers would be easy to recognize—such as Meredith, Carlyle, De Quincey or Browning—but that, when it came to others—men like Scott or Froude, for instance—I should not be so sure of myself.

At this there was an outcry: Froude, having the finest style in the world, ought surely to be easily recognized by everyone!

Lady Londonderry then asked me if I admired Symonds' writing. I told her I did not, although I liked some of his books. She seemed to think this was a piece of swagger on my part, and, after disagreeing, with a lofty shake of the head, she said, in a challenging manner:

"I should be curious to know what you have read by Symonds!"

Feeling I was being taken on, I replied, rather chillily:

"Oh, the usual sort of thing!"

Lady Londonderry, visibly irritated and with the confident air of one who has a little surprise in store for the company, said:

"Have you by any chance, looked at "Essays Suggestative and Speculative,' Miss Tennant?"

Margot: Yes, I've read them all.

Lady Londonderry: Really! Do you not approve of them?

Margot: Approve? I don't know what you mean.

Lady Londonderry: Do you not think the writing beautiful—the style, I mean?

Margot: I think they are all very bad, but then I don't admire Symonds' style.

Lady Londonderry: I am afraid you have not read the book.

This annoyed me. I saw the company were delighted with their spokeswoman. I thought it unnecessarily rude and more than foolish.

I looked at her calmly and said:

"I am afraid, Lady Londonderry, you have not read the preface. The book is dedicated to me. Symonds was a friend of mine; I was staying at Davos at the time he was writing these essays; he was rash enough to ask me to read one of them in manuscript and write whatever I thought upon the margin. This I did; he was rather offended by something I scribbled; I was so surprised at his minding that I told him he was never to show me any of his work before publication again, at which he forgave me and dedicated the book to me."

After this, I was not taken on again by fashionable ladies about books.

It was in 1885, at Davos, when I was nursing my sister, Posie Gordon Duff, that I first met John Addington Symonds.

I climbed up to Am Hof, Symonds' house at Davos, one afternoon with a letter of introduction, which was taken to the family while I was shown into a wooden room full of books and charming things. As no one came near me, I presumed everyone was out, so I settled down peacefully among the books, prepared to wait. In a little time I heard a shuffle of slippered feet and someone pausing at the open door.

"Has she gone?" was the querulous question that came from behind the screen; and in a moment the thin curious face of John Addington Symonds was peering at me round the corner.

There was nothing for it but to answer:

"No, I am afraid she is still here!"

Being the most courteous of men, he smiled and took my hand and we went up to his library together and had a long talk. He smoked a very small cigar, the size of a cigarette, and we discussed his friend, Robert Louis Stevenson.

Symonds and I became great friends.

After putting my sister to bed at 9:30 I climbed up every night by starlight to Am Hof, where we talked and read out loud till 1 and often 2 in the morning.

I learnt more with Symonds in those winter nights at Davos than I had ever learnt in my life. We read "Plato's Dialogues" and "The Republic" together; Swift, Voltaire, Browning, Walt Whitman, Edgar Allan Poe and his own "Renaisance," besides many passages from every author and poet, which he turned up feverishly to illustrate what he wanted me to understand.

I shall always think John Morley the best talker I ever heard, and after him Symonds and Birrell. George Meredith was too much of a prima donna and was very deaf and uninterruptable when I knew him—although he was amazingly good. Apropos of Meredith: Alfred Austin being a friend of his and having been made Poet Laureate, I said to the old novelist, feeling more than usually stupid one afternoon:

"Well, Mr. Meredith, I wonder what your friend Alfred Austin thinks of his appointment?"

Shaking his beautiful head, he replied:

"It is very hard to say what a bantam is thinking of when it is crowing."

Symonds' conversation is described in Stevensons' essay on "Talks and Talkers," but no one could ever really give the fancy, the pace, the epigram and earnestness with which he not only expressed himself, but engaged you in conversation. This and his personal affection combined to make him an enchanting companion.

In Am Hof the Swiss postmen and foresters joined us at midnight and drank Italian wines out of beautiful glass, which our host had brought from Venice. These were our only visitors when Mrs. Symonds and the handsome daughters had gone to bed. We would see our peasants off from the front door and, standing side by side in the dark, listen as they cracked their whips and yelled their yodels far down the snow roads into the starry nights.

When I first left him and returned to England, Mrs. Symonds told me he sat up all night filling a blank book with his own poems and translations, which he posted to me in the early morning. We corresponded till he died, and I kept every letter that he ever wrote to me.

He was the first person who besought me to write:

"You have L'oreille juste," he would say, "and I value your literary judgment."

If only he were alive now, I would show him this manuscript; and if one could make anything of it by his counsel, appreciation, sympathy and encouragement, my autobiography would become famous.

I have suffered all my life from telling my friends the truth about themselves. Some people do not tell lies, but they have no truth to tell. Others lie; and the majority are those who have little or no sense of responsibility towards their neighbor; but as long as we are not responsible for our actions only to the police, so long must I believe in helping those we love and thus fulfilling the law of Christ.

The young man that I have alluded to, and with whom I was in love, asked me to marry him, but I did not want to marry anyone, and being much fonder of him than he was of me, I felt it would be a bad opening for my career.

He wrote a poem to me which began:

"MARGOT.
"To turn the dark to light, the gloom to gay,

LADY BENTINCK VIVIDLY DESCRIBES SCENE WHEN THE KAISER ABDICATED

Mysterious Visitors Witnessed Fallen War Lord's Act in Attaching Signature to History-Making Document—Ex-Kaiserin Collapsed on Arrival to Join Her Husband in Exile Through Fear That English Planned to Kidnap Him.

International Complexion of the Ancient Bentinck Family

In explanation of the present international complexion of the ancient Bentinck family, Lady Norah Bentinck, author of this series of articles, writes:

In the family today are mingled a most unusual number of English, Dutch and German titles. Let me explain the family connections a little more fully.

The Bentincks, Dutch in origin, were knights of Guelderland in the twelfth century, became barons in the Middle Ages, and until the middle of the seventeenth century remained in Holland, possessing much land and many castles.

When William of Orange (afterwards King William III of England) was Stadthalter, a younger son of Baron Bentinck, one Hans William Bentinck, became a page in the royal household, and rose to be an intimate friend of the future King. He is was, who, on accompanying his master to England in 1688, became an English earl and the father of the boy later created Duke of Portland. The wife by whom he had this son died; he married again, and a boy named William was born to him at Whitehall.

This boy, when he grew up, returned to Holland, and eventually married Charlotte Sophie, of Aldenburg, a German reigning countess in her own right; to enable him to marry her (his position of younger son of an English earl and a Dutch baron not being considered sufficiently elevated), he was created by the then Emperor a Count of the Empire. His grandson and successor to the titles married Lady Jemima de Reede (granddaugher of the Earl of Athlone, of Battle of Boyne fame), and through her Amerongen came to the Bentinck family. Count Godard is the fourth child and youngest son, his mother having been a cousin of the Queen Dowager of Holland.

EDITOR'S NOTE.—The first installment of Lady Norah Bentinck's story of the life of the ex-Kaiser in exile at the castle of Lady Bentinck's uncle, Count Godard Bentinck, at Amerongen, in Holland, was published in this newspaper last Sunday. It told of the flight of the Kaiser across the German frontier into Holland, where he was reluctantly received by the Dutch; of his bitter reproaches, blaming Prince Max of Baden, the Imperial Chancellor, who, as he said, "struck me behind my back;" of his angry denunciation of President Wilson, who, he remarked to Count Bentinck, "is a greater autocrat than I or the Czar of Russia ever was. I call him Kaiser Wilson." In this instalment, Lady Bentinck tells of the Kaiser's abdication and of his life at Amerongen during the early months of his imprisonment in her uncle's castle.

THREE or four strangers—agitated strangers in somber black overcoats—crossed the moat of Amerongen Castle late in the afternoon of Nov. 28, 1918, a few days after the arrival of the Kaiser. They had been preceded to Amerongen by secret advices. The fugitive war lord knew they were coming. He knew their errand. He was prepared.

The three or four mysterious visitors were met at the train by Count Bentinck's motor car and driven at high speed over the 20-odd miles of road to the castle.

They alighted silently and crossed the moat and were accorded prompt admittance to the castle.

They were the first visitors who had been admitted since the Kaiser and his suite had entered the gates several days before.

The strangers did not even return the perfunctory greeting of the servants who lighted their way to the great staircase. They mounted the staircase hurriedly, but in an orderly, composed way. At the top of the staircase another servant waited them. He ushered the men to the door of the suite of four rooms occupied by the Kaiser. The strangers were admitted without parley . . .

. Twenty minutes later the Emperor of Germany, the overlord of Prussia, the war lord of Central Europe, the individual who was fond of describing himself as one annointed of God, had affixed, with a flourish, his signature to his abdication.

Ironically enough, this document, the formal abdication of the throne of the German empire, bears the seal of the Emperor.

It was the last time the seal was ever used.

There was scant formality about the proceedings.

There were no genuflections to the imperial "presence," nor kissing of the hand, nor bending of the knee, of the three or four men in the black coats.

Indeed, the whole proceeding was very informal.

The signature dried, the three or four strangers withdrew.

They were whirled back to the railway station.

Ex-Kaiser Informs Bentinck.

They had been gone from the castle less than 10 minutes before the ex-Kaiser walked moodily down in the great staircase and sought Count Bentinck in the great library, a room directly beneath the suite occupied by the fugitive.

"I am your guest and I ought to tell you," said the ex-Kaiser, addressing Count Bentinck, who was naturally agitated, having a pretty close idea of what had transpired in the rooms above his head. "I ought to tell you that a few moments ago I signed my abdication."

A photograph of the document has since been made, and the translation into English is indicative of the simplicity yet sweeping scope of this historic paper.

"I hereby for all the future renounce my rights to the Crown of Prussia and my consequential rights to the German imperial crown.

"At the same time, I release all officials of the German empire and Prussia, as well as all the officers, noncommissioned officers and men of the navy, of the Prussian army, and of the federal contingents, from the oath of fealty, which they have made to me as their Emperor, King and supreme commander. I expect of them that until the reorganization of the German empire they will help those in possession of actual power in Germany to protect the German people against the threatening dangers of anarchy, famine and foreign domination. "WILHELM."

"Amerongen, Nov. 28, 1918."

While I was at Amerongen Castle I inspected the room in which this dramatic history-making event occurred.

The room in which the Kaiser received the mysterious strangers and in which the abdication was typewritten and signed, led off the main gallery from whose walls dead makers of history, clad in robes picturesque and grandiose, looked down upon the living history makers, garbed so modestly, who came to the Kaiser's apartments.

Within the room into which the visitors were ushered, a narrow four-poster bed, its slender posts hung with beautiful blue-gray silk brocade, catches the eye. It has given rest to two of the most talked-of monarchs in history; for it was that used by Louis XIV in three out of the six weeks, beginning in May, 1672, in which, with the great Conde and Turenne, he conquered half the Netherlands. That was in the earilier days of his splendor, and, no doubt, taking into account the official bedroom receptions of those days, it figured in many a gay and glittering gathering, as well as grave and urgent councils. If furniture could speak—but we will allow each one who looks upon it to make his own reflections on this link between the two "L'etat c'est moi" rulers, one in the heyday of his pride, the other in the most mortifying moment of his decline.

Three windows face you as you enter. In the recess of one of them stands a fine Buhl writing table, also faintly reminiscent of Louis Quatorze, for, of course, the type of furniture derives its name from Charles Andre Boule, a cabinet maker in the service of the Grand Monarque. Anyone seated here looks out across the moats to pleasant fields, and then, farther away, to ships on the Rhine.

Here it was, within view of the river that runs through all German history, that the Kaiser definitely became ex-Kaiser by signing a simple typewritten sheet.

His "Three-Day" Stay.

"Three days" had been the period suggested off-hand and very hurriedly, for the ex-Kaiser's stay at Amerongen; but it was almost at once recognized that provisional arrangement would have to be extended.

The truth was that no one in high authority knew quite what to do with the fugitive; the outcome of the chaos in Germany, where minor thrones were collapsing and old institutions being uprooted daily, could not be foreseen, and the revolutionary ferment even in staid Holland was causing considerable disquietude; and no better solution of the embarrassment which the ex-Kaiser's arrival had thrust upon the Dutch could be found than that he should remain as quietly as possible in the isolated and peaceful residence of Count Godard Bentinck until the situation cleared.

Perhaps the "three days" was originally suggested by the fugitive himelf; for, some time later, he remarked musingly to his host, "How strange it is! I have until now never stayed in any man's house for more than three days, and with you I have been for months!"

But "peaceful" was a term that ceased to apply to Amerongen for the rest of November. Within the grounds the suite brought day-long bustle; without, in the village, every available room was filled, and the innkeeper did a splendid trade. Motor cars dashed backwards and forwards, airplanes whirled overhead.

On Nov. 28, the swirl of excitement was intensified by the sudden, unheralded arrival of the ex-Kaiserin, a few hours after her husband had signed the formal waiver of his imperial rights.

Nothing impressed me when I was at Amerongen Castle more than the story of how the terrified, broken-hearted, dazed and unhappy ex-Kaiserin arrived there.

Ex-Kaiserin's Arrival.

She had parted from her husband some weeks before the final crash—and as she tottered feebly into the castle on the supporting arm of the Countess Keller, her companion on the journey from Germany, she seemed unable, at first, to grasp the full meaning of the fate that had overtaken her.

Neither her spirit nor her material strength seemed equal to sustain the blow.

She was taken at once to the rooms that the Count Bentinck had set aside for her, and she locked herself in, alone with her companion, the Countess Keller, who had come to her as a sort of Mistress of the Robes at her marriage, and had since remained with her. The ex-Kaiserin did not emerge from these rooms for several days.

It was not terror for her own safety that unnerved the ex-Kaiserin in Amerongen.

She feared for the physical safety of her husband, and instead of diminishing as the days went on, this fear increased. I was told that for a long time afterward she started in alarm at any unusual noise. During the night she would lie in a perpetual clutch of dread, and I learned that she had a fixed idea the agents of Great Britain had surrounded Amerongen Castle and were about to seize the ex-Kaiser and take him away to an English prison. That conviction—that is, the conviction that such was the intention of the English—has never been erased from her thoughts, and she bitterly hates the British and blames them for "interference" in the war and for the untiring "persecution" of the ex-Kaiser.

Perhaps the figure in the household at Amerongen that impressed me as being the most powerful, the most cogent in a way, was that of Capt. von Ilsemann, to whose wedding I had been bidden, and which ceremony I shall describe later on in this series of articles.

Capt. von Ilsemann acted as the ex-Kaiser's adjutant. I shall have a great deal to say of him and his relations with the ex-Kaiser, and may as well explain here how, though unknown to the court before the war, he was drawn to his present position.

Capt. von Ilsemann distinguised himself in action against the Russians in East Prussia at the beginning of the war, and was in consequence appointed to the staff of Von Hindenburg. Von Hindenburg thought highly of Von Ilsemann's work in Russia, and in course of time made him the bearer of one of his dispatches to the Crown Prince. Here, again, the young soldier made a favorable impression. The Crown Prince thought he would make a useful counterpoise, in the retinue of his father, to the elderly soldiers, diplomats and politicians by which he was surrounded, and sent him to Main Headquarters with a recommendation.

Von Ilsemann a Clever Aid.

Capt. von Ilsemann is clever and energetic, and I found him to possess a gay, natural and wholly youthful disposition. The Kaiser evidently found in this young officer a sort of tonic effect, for he has kept him in close attendance ever since he first met him. He accompanied the imperial couple to Constantinople; and of this trip, by the way, he tells of his amusement at seeing the Empress trying to stab with a hat-pin certain unpleasant insects that were crawling on the walls of the palace in which they were lodged.

The anecdote is always finished with an ironic reference to "lese majeste"—which does not mean that young Capt. von Ilsemann is at all disrespectful. It is simply that he enjoys a sense of humor that is quite unusual in German military officers.

The day came, though, at Amerongen, when inquiries by curious officials of the Dutch Government made it evident that the suite of the exile must be radically reduced. Already, officers, attached to the ex-Kaiser's military staff were disappearing, one by one. One would see a certain high-ranking officer at the castle today. Tomorrow his boxes and personal belongings would be roughly dumped into a van and whirled away to the railroad, and one would see that particular officer no more. The ex-Kaiser witnessed the departure, I was told, with gloomy resignation. Indeed, from the very beginning

To laugh, to kiss, to cling, then flee away"——

One of the less fashionable Souls was my friend Lionel Tennyson. He was the second son of the poet and was an official in the Indian office. He had an untidy appearance, a black beard and no manners; he sang German beer songs in a lusty voice and wrote good verses.

He sent me many poems, some highly complimentary.

He once asked me what I would like him to give me for a birthday present and I said:

"If you want to give me pleasure, take me down to your father's country house for a Saturday to Monday."

This Lionel arranged; and he and I went down together to Aldworth, Haslemere.

While we were talking in the train a distinguished old lady got in. She wore an ample black satin skirt, small black satin slippers in goloshes, a sable tippet and a large, picturesque lace bonnet. She did not appear to be listening to our conversation, because she was reading with an air of concentration, but, on looking at her suddenly, I observed her eyes fixed on us.

I wore a scarlet cloak, trimmed with cocks' feathers and a black, three-cornered hat. When we arrived at our station the old lady tipped a porter to find out from my luggage who I was, and when she died, several years later, she left me in her will one of my most beautiful jewels. Her name was Lady Margaret Beaumont and I made both her acquaintance and friendship before her death.

Lady Tennyson was more or less an invalid, so we were received by the poet on our arrival. Tennyson was a magnificent creature to look at. He had everything—height, figure, carriage, features and expression.

He greeted me by saying:

"Well, are you as clever and as spurty as your sister, Laura?"

I had never heard the word 'spurty' before, nor, indeed, since.

The Chicago Tribune makes its own newsprint

INTO THE TRIBUNE'S great mill at Thorold, Ontario, go hundreds of thousands of electric horse-power from Niagara Falls, millions of gallons of water from the Welland Canal, train loads of coal, shiploads of logs, cars of sulphur and limestone and clay—and out of the mill streams paper at the rate of 600 to 1000 feet per minute from each of five machines.

The sheets delivered from the various machines range from 150 to 187 inches wide. This means that the product is the equivalent of a strip of paper one foot wide and five miles long every sixty seconds.

To produce the newsprint used in an average issue of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE our paper mill consumes:

54 acres of timber
21 tons of sulphur
665 tons of coal
63,000 electric h.-p.
18,200,000 gallons of water

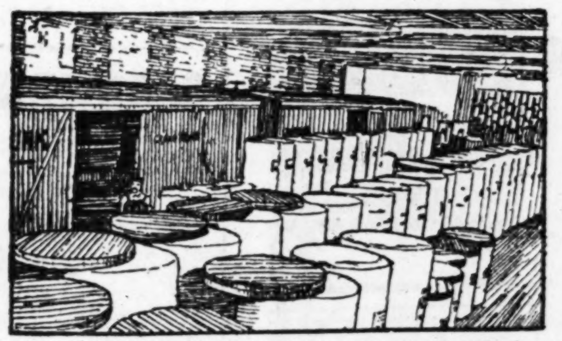
This great mill represents an investment of millions of dollars and employs 650 men. Its output is consumed by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and THE TRIBUNE'S tabloid pictorial innovation—THE DAILY NEWS of New York.

Every operation in the conversion of spruce logs into paper is carried out within the mill in order that the highest standards of quality may be constantly maintained.

Two kinds of wood pulp are used in making TRIBUNE newsprint—chemical pulp and mechanical pulp. Chemical, or sulphite, pulp is obtained by chipping the logs and cooking the chips under heavy steam pressure in bisulphite of soda. This acid solution dissolves everything in the wood but the fine cellulose fibers. It leaves these long and unbroken. Even the bisulphite liquor is manufactured in THE TRIBUNE'S mill by burning raw sulphur and sending the resulting gases up high towers, down which water trickles over masses of limestone.

Mechanical, or ground wood, pulp is obtained by forcing the side of a log against a huge grindstone whirling 250 revolutions per minute. This quickly reduces the log to a hot, mushy "slush." This "slush" must be screened to remove the splinters and washed free of resinous material.

Ordinary newsprint contains 20% of chemical pulp, and 80% mechanical pulp.



Shipping finished rolls. Wrapped in special paper made at THE TRIBUNE mill, the rolls are loaded into freight cars which run inside the mill within a few yards of the paper machine pictured at the top of the page. The traffic department of THE TRIBUNE handles more than 10,000 cars a year, bringing raw materials to the mill and taking away paper.

Reserve wood-pile at THE TRIBUNE mill, now containing almost a million dollars' worth of spruce logs. The crane at the right has just lifted a hammock full of logs from the deck of a steamer in the Welland Canal and is throwing them into the log pond. The logs are floated across the pond and taken up to the top of the pile by chain conveyors, here shown in operation.

The quality of CHICAGO TRIBUNE newsprint is kept above the average by using 30% chemical to 70% mechanical pulp. Not only is the chemical pulp more expensive to manufacture, but a cord of wood makes only 1300 pounds of chemical, as compared with 2300 pounds of mechanical pulp. Thirty per cent is the greatest proportion of chemical pulp that can be used to advantage. A greater amount would produce a paper too fine in texture to absorb the ink from cylinder presses grinding out 72,000 papers an hour.

The chemical and mechanical pulp in proper proportions are mixed with clay, which acts as filling; alum for sizing, aniline dye for bleaching, and then sent to the paper machines. THE TRIBUNE'S new newsprint machine is said to be the fastest in the country. The pulp in a thin milky sheet, 150 inches wide, flows out on its screen and is converted into paper at the rate of 1000 feet per minute. This machine and the four others are driven by three shifts of men, twenty-four hours a day, to keep THE TRIBUNE supplied with paper.

Where wood pulp is turned into TRIBUNE newsprint. Wood pulp greatly diluted with water flows on a wire screen at the right end of this picture. When it reaches the left end the water has been drained out, the fibers matted; it has become a sheet of wet paper—ready to pass through the series of rolls, blankets and driers, which finish the process.

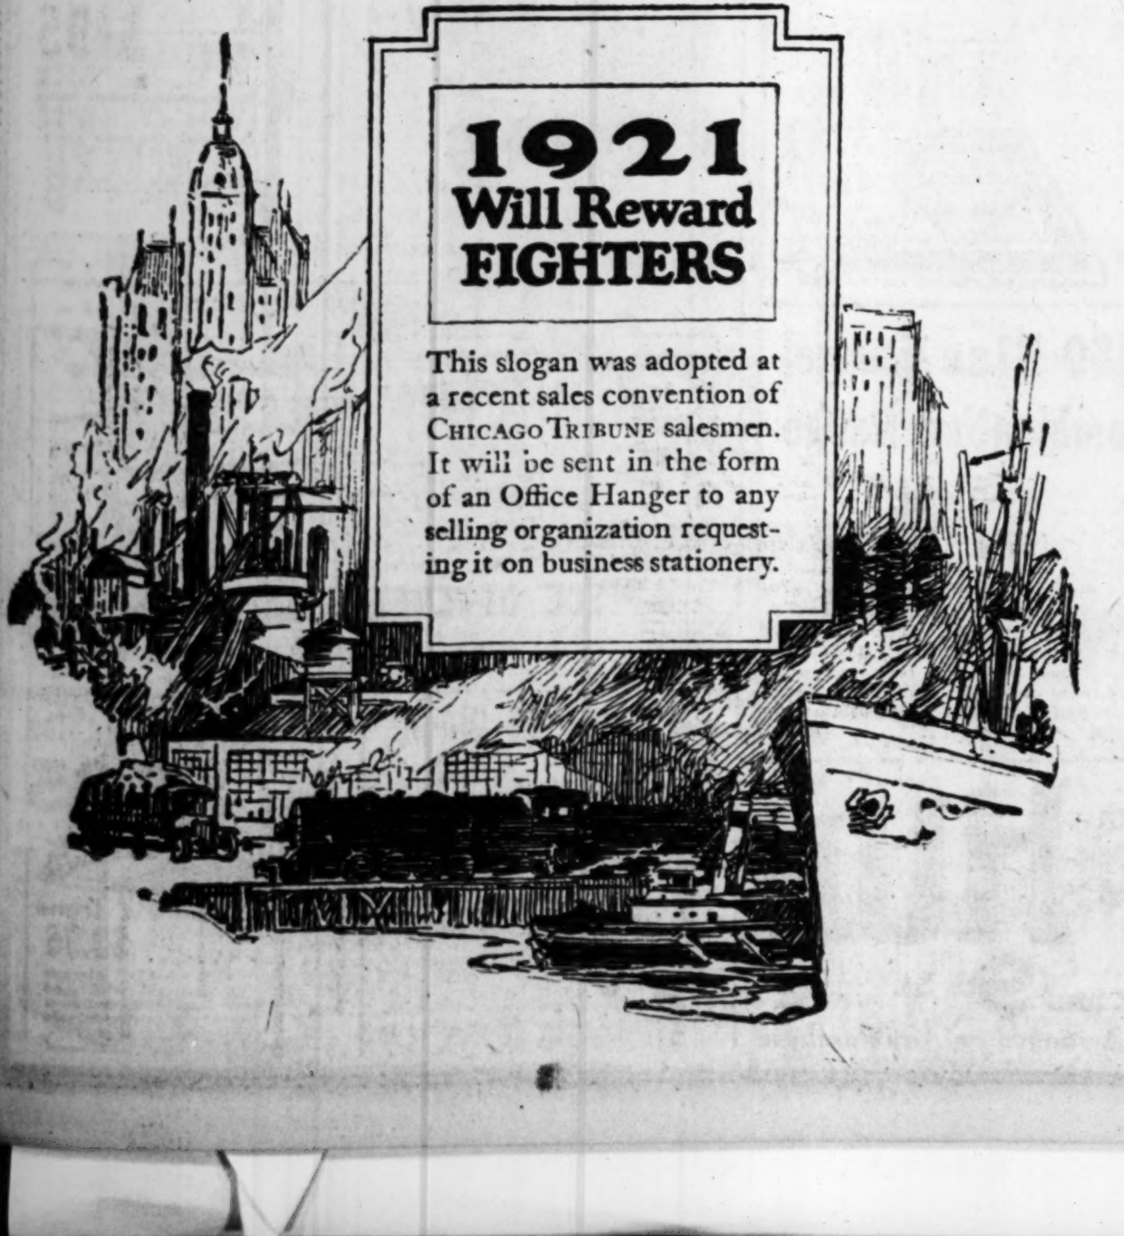
The traffic department of THE TRIBUNE handles more than 10,000 cars a year, bringing raw materials to the mill and taking away paper.

During the past two years THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has labored under great handicaps in giving service to readers and advertisers.

The capacity of this great mill was overtaxed. Shortage of paper limited the amount of news, features and advertising that might have been printed. More than a million dollars' worth of advertising had to be omitted. Circulation growth was arbitrarily halted.

By the investment of millions of dollars in docks, ships, mills, paper-making machinery and a model new publishing plant, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has equipped itself to render both to its readers and to its advertisers better service than ever before. During a period of unparalleled high prices, expense and effort have been subordinated to a determination that TRIBUNE service should be adequate—paper supply assured—press capacity ample.

Production costs have increased rather than decreased. Wages, paper and overhead were never higher. In compensation, THE TRIBUNE of 1921 will establish a new level of journalistic excellence—will be unquestionably the world's greatest newspaper.



1921 Will Reward FIGHTERS

This slogan was adopted at a recent sales convention of CHICAGO TRIBUNE salesmen. It will be sent in the form of an Office Hanger to any selling organization requesting it on business stationery.

ADVERTISING space in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is a commodity which involves the investment of enormous sums of money and the services of great numbers of people. It is an unique commodity in that money cannot duplicate it. Prestige won by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in the homes of The Chicago Territory has more vital bearing on the productiveness of a page advertisement in THE TRIBUNE than the seven tons of raw material that may be used in producing it. The rate "per line per thousand of circulation" charged for CHICAGO TRIBUNE advertising is demonstrably low because it is based on manufacturing costs, but the value of TRIBUNE advertising is immeasurably high because it is the sum of circulation plus prestige. Advertisers need this type of medium today, for 1921 Will Reward Fighters.

Meat Cause of Kidney Trouble

Take Salts to flush Kidneys if Back hurts or Bladder bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is quoted and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acid so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

To answer this kind of frontal attack one has to be either saucy or servile. I rather think I was neither, but just stupid. We sat down to tea. He asked me if he would have to dress for dinner.

"Your sister said of me that I was untidy, if not dirty."

Margot: Did you mind this?

Tennyson: I wondered if it was true. Do you think I'm dirty?

Margot: You are very handsome.

Tennyson: I can see by that remark that you think I am. Very well, then, I will dress for dinner. Have you read Jane Welsh Carlyle's letters?

Margot: Yes, I have; and I think them excellent. It seems a pity that they ever married; with anyone but each other they might have been perfectly happy.

Tennyson: I totally disagree with you. By any other arrangement four people would have been unhappy instead of two.

After this I went up to my room. The hours kept at Aldworth were peculiar. We dined early; then the poet went to bed. At 10 o'clock at night he came downstairs, and, if asked, would read his poetry out loud to the company till quite late.

I dressed with great care that first night and, placing myself next to him when he came down after dinner, I asked him to read aloud to us.

Tennyson: What do you want me to read?

Margot: Maud.

Tennyson: That was the poem that I was cursed for writing. When it came out no word was bad enough for me! I was a blackguard, a ruffian and an atheist! You will live to have as great a contempt for literary critics and the public as I have, my child!

While he was speaking, I found on the floor, among piles of books, a small copy of "Maud," a shilling volume, bound in blue paper. I put it into his hands and, pulling the lamp nearer him, he began to read out loud.

There is only one man—a poet also—who reads as my host did, and that is my beloved friend, Prof. Gilbert Murray. When I first heard him at Oxford, I closed my eyes and felt as if the old poet had been with me again.

Tennyson's reading had the lilt, the tenderness and the rhythm that make music in the soul. It was neither singing nor chanting nor speaking, but a subtle mixture of the three; the effect was one of haunting harmonies that left me profoundly moved.

He began:

"Birds in the high hall garden," and skipping the next five stanzas went on to the end.

When he had finished he pulled me on to his knee and said:

"Many may have written as well as that, but nothing that ever sounded so well."

I could not speak.

He then said that he had had an unfortunate experience with a young lady to whom he had read "Maud."

Tennyson: She was sitting on my knee, as you are doing now, and after reading:

"Birds in the high hall garden,
When twilight was falling,
"Maud, Maud, Maud, Maud,"
They were crying and calling.

"I asked her," Lord Tennyson continued, "what bird she thought I meant. She said, 'A nightingale.' This made me so angry that I nearly flung her onto the ground. I said: "'No, fool! Rook!'"

I felt rather sorry for the young lady, but was so afraid he was going to stop reading that I quickly opened "The Princess" and put it into his hands.

I have got the little "Maud," bound in its blue paper cover, with my name written in it by Tennyson.

I shall have to revert to some of the Souls later on, but will end this chapter of triumphant youth with a note which my friend Lady Frances Balfour sent me from her father, the late Duke of Argyll, the wonderful orator of whom it was said that he was like a canary that fired off a cannon.

Frances asked me to meet him at a small dinner. I sat next to him. The next morning he wrote to his daughter this note, which she sent me:

"Argyll Lodge, Kensington.—"How dare you ask me to meet a syren?

Yrs. A."

Copyright, 1921, by Metropolitan Press Association.

Another fine installment of Margot Asquith's remarkable diary will appear in this paper next Sunday. In it Mrs. Asquith takes us behind the scenes in England in the early days of the war and describes her own experiences under fire. Her comments on the great war figures are as spicy and piquant as usual.

he seemed to sense the inevitable part of it. The ex-Kaiserin was much given to wringing her hands and bemoaning the injustice of her fate, although this was a totally unselfish attitude, I was assured. She thought of her husband only.

Truly, no bourgeoise couple could be more attached than the ex-Kaiser and his wife. And although the world may raise its eyebrows and express surprise, it is a fact that at Amerongen William was as devoted and concerned as to the ex-Kaiserin's health and her state of mind as the most loving husband might be.

When the Dutch officials began to evince a still more persistent curiosity about the future plans of their guest—the ex-Kaiser—and to hint that they could see no reason why a private citizen, such as William Hohenzollern was supposed to be—should enjoy the attendance of a large military staff, a list of the remaining officers was presented to the ex-Kaiser. He was politely, but firmly, informed that he might retain the services of two on the list. The rest must go.

The names were all crossed off except those of Capt. von Ilsemann and Lieutenant-General von Gontard. The latter was retained in a position that is similar to that of chamberlain. He is a man well along in the 60s, and has enjoyed the confidence of his master for a great many years. Capt. von Ilsemann was retained, much to the surprise of the members of the ex-Kaiser's staff who were sent back to Germany. It had been supposed that, as a young man with a career before him, he would be one of those to be sent away to the Fatherland, but it was his own earnest wish that he should stay. Since the abdication he has, in the capacity of private secretary, become more and more closely attached to his royal master. His greatest value, perhaps, is that the ex-Kaiser, who before the debacle never knew whom to believe, now hears the plain facts, whether pleasant or unpleasant.

Reads American Newspapers.

American newspapers, for instance, now sift through Holland, and these are eagerly read by young Von Ilsemann. And for the past two years or so the "anointed one," in his exile in Holland, has learned just exactly what the American people think of him.

He has also learned for the first time that when his political soothsayers in Berlin and in Potsdam informed him that America was "only a part of Germany," that they were—well, exaggerating.

But in this way, perhaps, young Von Ilsemann has been one of the best friends the ex-Kaiser has ever had in his whole lifetime. Certainly, the glint of friendly affection that I saw in the eyes of the ex-Kaiser as he congratulated his faithful adjutant on the latter's wedding day was an indication of the genuine confidence and affection in which the ex-Kaiser holds Von Ilsemann.

Speaking of American newspapers brings to mind the newspaper men—most of them English, American and Dutch—who besieged the gates of Amerongen from the very night that it became known that the royal fugitive had taken refuge with my uncle, Count Bentinck.

They were like wolves, or bloodhounds in their stern, unrelenting pursuit of news.

What was the Kaiser going to do next?

When did he expect to leave Amerongen?

Where would he go?

Would England arrest him?

These were only a few of the questions that were hurled at my luckless relatives in Amerongen at all hours of the day and night, and I was told, while at Amerongen, that the ingenious devices of the newspaper reporters caused my uncle more worry than any other element in his entertainment—at first so unwilling—of his royal guest.

The newspaper reporters lay in wait in every highway and byway about the estate. True, the system of double moats, which dated centuries back, repelled them from the castle itself. It is rather amusing to consider that these ancient devices for the protection of the castle against the invasion of men armed with lances and sheathed in glittering armor now serve the same purpose, but with the invaders armed with the less deadly, but more feared, cameras and notebooks.

But, although the ex-Kaiser would not permit a word of his activities or of his opinions or plans to leak through the castle bulwarks to the outside world, he nevertheless was frank in his expression of his opinions to Count Bentinck, and he often began his daily conversations with comment on the inception of the war and of the forces that he had come in personal contact with.

The ex-Kaiser's views had varied considerably between the beginning and the ending of the war. For in 1914 he was quoted as saying that England could boast only a "contemptible little army." But in Amerongen, as late as 1920, he said: "The English soldiers were magnificent. How we admired them—and how we liked them."

This statement from the ex-Kaiser in his exile is not surprising, for he was forever praising the English and wistfully recalling the good times he had enjoyed on his visits there as I mentioned at some length in my earlier installment of this series of articles.

Denies Contempt for Foe.

But the ex-Kaiser in Amerongen was quick to deny that he meant "contempt" of the English soldier when he used that word in expressing his opinion of the English army in 1914.

What he meant, he told Count Godard Bentinck, was that the British army was very small—contemptibly little—compared with Continental armies. "But," he said, with a slightly rueful smile, "I learned it was not contemptible by any means."

He spoke of the ex-Kaiser's practice during the war of sending for Englishmen who had done notable deeds, but had been captured. One had distinguished himself in the attack upon Zeebrugge. To him the Kaiser (as he then was) said he thought the attack on that base was one of the most brilliant exploits of the war. "Why did you do it?" he asked. "Just for a joke," responded the other. "How English!" was the amused rejoinder.

During my stay at Amerongen last October for the wedding fete, in which Capt. von Ilsemann and the Countess Bentinck were the principal figures, I was regaled by the stories of the ex-Kaiser's concern over his private property, his fortune left behind him in Germany. It may be that some of the mysterious visitors who came to Amerongen, of whom I shall write more fully later on, fetched him private advices concerning the danger to this enormous fortune.

When the great war started, the ex-Kaiser's income amounted to 22,000,000 marks a year. This, at the normal rate of exchange which then prevailed, amounted to about $5,500,000. This income was free of taxes, of course. That is one of the little privileges the Kaiser enjoyed. He had more than 20,000,000 marks ($5,000,000) in gold on deposit in banks throughout the empire. HOW TO MAKE PINE COUGH SYRUP AT HOME

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to prepare, and saves you about $2.

Pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make a full pint—more than you can buy ready-made for three times the money. It is pure, good and tastes very pleasant.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

BLACKHEADS GO QUICK BY THIS SIMPLE METHOD

Blackheads—big ones or little ones—soft ones or hard ones—on any part of the body, go quick by a simple method that just dissolves them. To do this get about two ounces of calonite powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—and wash off. You'll wonder where the blackheads have gone. The calonite powder and the hot water have just dissolved them. Pinching and squeezing blackheads only open the pores of the skin and leave them open and unsightly—and unless the blackheads are big and soft they will not come out, while the simple application of calonite powder and water dissolves them right out, leaving the skin soft and the pores in their natural condition. You can get calonite powder at any drug store, and if you are troubled with these unsightly blemishes you should certainly try this simple method.

palaces in Berlin were owned privately by the Kaiser, and he also owned 13 palaces in Potsdam. In other parts of the empire were scattered 22 palaces, vilas, lodges, etc., which he counted his private property.

In the royal palace in Berlin, which the Emperor did not claim as his own private property, were personal belongings worth 20,000,000 marks.

The Kaiser owned in Germany about 75,000 acres of forest land and more than 47,400 acres of good farm lands, all worked under the leasing method. This property fetched him an income of about $1,000,000 a year. The value of the Kaiser's landed property in Germany was more than $17,000,000, and the total of the Hohenzollern fortune was estimated at 175,000,000 marks, or nearly $44,000,000, which made the Hohenzollerns rank in wealth with the Rockefellers, the Morgans and the Rothschilds.

Christmas came before the ex-Kaiser had settled down to the freer share in the life of the household of my uncle and the closer association with his host that in time became inevitable, and from which followed the conversations and incidents I shall describe later on.

As is usual in Holland and in Germany, great preparations were made for the observance of the festival. There, as in England, carol singing is one of the features of Christmas. The village choir gave a little entertainment, at which one of the chief numbers was the familiar German hymn, "Stille Nacht, Heilige Nacht." Hearing this, the ex-Kaiser spoke of his wish that the choir would sing to him at midnight on Christmas Eve.; but the authorities, whose great care was to avoid any step that might show a disposition to regard him as a guest rather than as a prisoner, prevented this arrangement being made.

The ex-Emperor was greatly chagrined.

The exile went out of doors very infrequently, partly through fear of the newspaper men who still besieged the gates of the castle.

These newspaper men were more or less protected by their passports, and could call upon the Dutch military, a handful stationed in the village of Amerongen, to protect them on the highways that skirted the castle. But newspaper men seem so self-reliant. They never did call upon the Dutch for "protection," and there were many amusing clashes between the reporters and the German guards.

A group of three or four English and American newspaper men would stroll innocently past the castle gates. Their appearance, however, was the signal for three or four German officers to dash madly out into

New Drugless Method Corrects CONSTIPATION

Here is a lifetime prescription that never needs refilling. Several thousand men and women in Southern California, many of whom were sufferers for years, are now depending entirely upon Nature. No longer is it necessary for them to use DRUGS, DIET, EXERCISE, or any ARTIFICIAL means. They accomplished the correction of their condition in the privacy of their own homes.

At first people were skeptical—a few tried it and succeeded. They told others, consequently local advertising is unnecessary.

What they have done you can do. WRITE, and full, explicit information will be sent you. All we ask is for you to investigate this simple yet scientific method discovered by a noted specialist on paralysis. This information is yours for the asking. Write today.

Address Berry's Anatomical Method, 457 Merritt Bldg., Los Angeles, Calif.

All Mothers Will Find Use for This Gentle Laxative

Give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin to a constipated child and note its quick recovery.

IN a growing family the subject of thought with the parents is how to keep the children healthy and happy, and what to do when they become ill. Most illnesses of childhood are the symptoms of constipation, such as headaches, coated tongues, flatulence, dizziness, loss of appetite and sleep, biliousness, etc.

You can surely feel safe in doing what tens of thousands of others do with good results, so give, according to the age of the child, a small quantity of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Eight million bottles were bought last year at drug stores. It is America's favorite family remedy for constipation, indigestion and similar ills, and is especially suitable for children, women and old folks as it is so mild and gentle in action.

There is no secret about Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a combination of Egyptian Senna and other simple laxative herbs with pepsin and pleasant tasting aromatics. Druggists have sold it for thirty years, and a sixty cent bottle will last for months. Experienced mothers are never without it in the house.

TRY IT FREE

Send me your name and address and I will send you a free trial bottle of my Syrup Pepsin. Address me Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 513 Washington Street, Monticello, Illinois. Everybody now and then needs a laxative, and it is well to know the best. Write me today.

Teeth Shine

When the film goes—watch and see

Learn now how teeth look—how they feel—when you combat the film.

Get from your druggist, without cost, this ten-day test. Note the instant results, then look in ten days.

Millions have already done this. Leading dentists everywhere advise it. Now show your home folks what clean teeth really mean.

The war on film

Dental science, the world over, is fighting a war on film. Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. And most tooth troubles are now traced to it.

Those troubles have been constantly increasing. The ordinary tooth paste does not end film, so the tooth brush has proved inadequate. Millions know how well-brushed teeth have discolored and decayed.

It is the film-coat that discolors, not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. And, despite all brushing, few escape these troubles caused by film.

New ways to fight it

Now dental science has found ways to fight film, day by day. Able authorities have proved the methods efficient. Leading dentists everywhere now urge their application.

The methods are combined in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. To millions it has brought a new era in teeth cleaning. And to every home a ten-day test is offered free, so all may quickly know it.

Quick, visible results

Anyone can see and feel what Pepsodent is doing. No old method of brushing ever brought such effects. So we let this test convince you.

One ingredient is pepsin. Another multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva, to digest starch deposits that cling. The alkalinity of the saliva is multiplied also, and at once. That is to neutralize mouth acids which cause tooth decay.

Two factors directly attack the film. One of them keeps teeth so highly polished that film cannot easily adhere.

The effects of Pepsodent come with every application. We constantly combat, in efficient ways, the teeth's great enemies. And millions of teeth are given new protection and new beauty.

Millions now show the effects

In every circle nowadays you see glistening teeth. Ask the owners. You will find, we think, that they are using Pepsodent.

Go get this free tube and try it for yourself. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the visoous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

Then let the children use it. Their teeth need it most. Very few children reach the age of 15 without some tooth decay.

Let the man who smokes see how it takes the stained film from his teeth.

Let all find out how much cleaner teeth feel, how much safer, when brushed in this new way. Then this ten-day test may bring to your home some lifetime effects.

Note the extremely graceful lines of this Queen Anne Bedroom Suite, furnished in the outfit "De Luxe" in beautiful walnut or Adam brown mahogany finish. The Bedroom Suite consists of bed and dresser and chifforette or dressing table. These are all large, beautiful pieces and must be seen to be appreciated.

The Dining-Room Suite

The Dining-Room Suite is a beautiful William and Mary genuine walnut up-to-the-minute design, and this Suite is composed of buffet, massive table and six Colonial-back chairs. Each and every turning matches properly in this Suite, and this Suite will lend a touch of refinement to your dining room.

The Kitchen Outfit

The Kitchen Outfit, exactly as pictured consists of a large kitchen cabinet with metal flour compartment, with sifter and large metal bread and cake box—a large compartment for pots and pans and a linen drawer and a silverware drawer. The coal range, as pictured, is included in this outfit, or a gas range can be substituted for it. The three chairs are wide panel back chairs, as pictured, and this together with the high-grade floorcovering in a selection of beautiful colors, makes this an excellent kitchen outfit.

This actual $700.00 complete three-room home outfit which we are offering at $465.00, consists of kitchen and either of the other two rooms—that is, kitchen, dining room and living room—kitchen, bedroom and living room or kitchen, dining room and bedroom.

This furniture is constructed in such manner as to assure lifelong service, and is of the character that will bring about many favorable comments. By all means come and inspect this wonderful three-room outfit.

KING PETER OF SERBIA DEAF AND VERY FEEBLE

Monarch, 79 Years Old, Spends Time in Bed or Invalid's Chair While Son Rules.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 26.—King Peter of Serbia, 79 years old, is very feeble, according to reports reaching Paris from Belgrade. He is totally deaf and spends his time in bed or in an invalid's wheel-chair. Only the Crown Prince and Princess Helene, his widowed daughter, whose husband was killed by the Bolsheviki, are permitted to see him.

While the paralysis which has affected his right side for two years has improved somewhat, he is unable to walk. He has lost steadily in weight and energy since coming from his retreat in Phaleron, Greece, a year ago, and has ceased to participate in the affairs of state.

He is living in a little stone house outside the city of Belgrade. His only companions are his physicians and a personal servant.

After the liberation of Serbia from the Austrians, in October, 1918, King Peter returned to Belgrade with his army and entered actively into the reorganization and reconstruction of his shattered country. Failing health, however, soon compelled him to seek retirement to private life. The affairs of state and court were turned over to his son, Prince Alexander, who became Prince Regent of the new State of Jugoslavia.

Early in 1919, the King was removed to a quiet retreat near Athens, Greece, where he lived for a year or more in a small 6-room house overlooking the Bay of Phaleron.

To meet his long-cherished wish that he might die on his native soil, the Serbian authorities late last year brought the invalid King back to his beloved Belgrade. He has avoided society and kept aloof from all court and public functions.

the road, where they would brandish bayonets and swords at the "trespassers," who, however, merely grinned pleasantly and audaciously photographed the angry guards.

It is significant, however, that never, on any occasion, did one of the German soldiers draw a pistol.

Later on these German guards were replaced by Dutch soldiers, who were none the less vigilant in their protection of the ex-Kaiser against intruders, but whose methods were considerably less comical than those of the Germans.

Before I close this chapter I think I ought to report a small incident which shows that the ex-Kaiser, even in the early days of his exile, was not quite indifferent to the vanities of the world.

He kept close to his rooms during those first few months, as I have said. But he would stand by the window of the larger room of his suite and stare for hours down upon the frozen moats where members of the family and folks from the village below would spend many gay hours in skating.

The Graceful Skater.

There was one girl—a village girl—who was particularly pretty and graceful. She skated as if she enjoyed every moment of the sport, and occasionally she would glance shyly up at the windows of the ex-Kaiser's suite; for, of course, everyone in Amerongen knew precisely where the fugitive was lodged.

The ex-Kaiser was particularly keen not to miss any appearance of this graceful skater. On several occasions, when she did not appear as was her custom, he sent her messages requesting that she hasten to the frozen moat forthwith and skate for him!

To my mind, this small incident illustrates more than anything else I saw or heard of the ex-Kaiser during my stay in Amerongen, that his autocratic ideas were by no means diminished by his exile.

He still fancied himself the ruler whose slightest whim or desire might be executed by imperial command.

He apparently took such "rights" as a matter of course, in spite of the fortunes of war which had sent him a fugitive across the frontier of his stricken country, and which now held him a virtual prisoner in the rooms of the castle of my uncle in Amerongen.

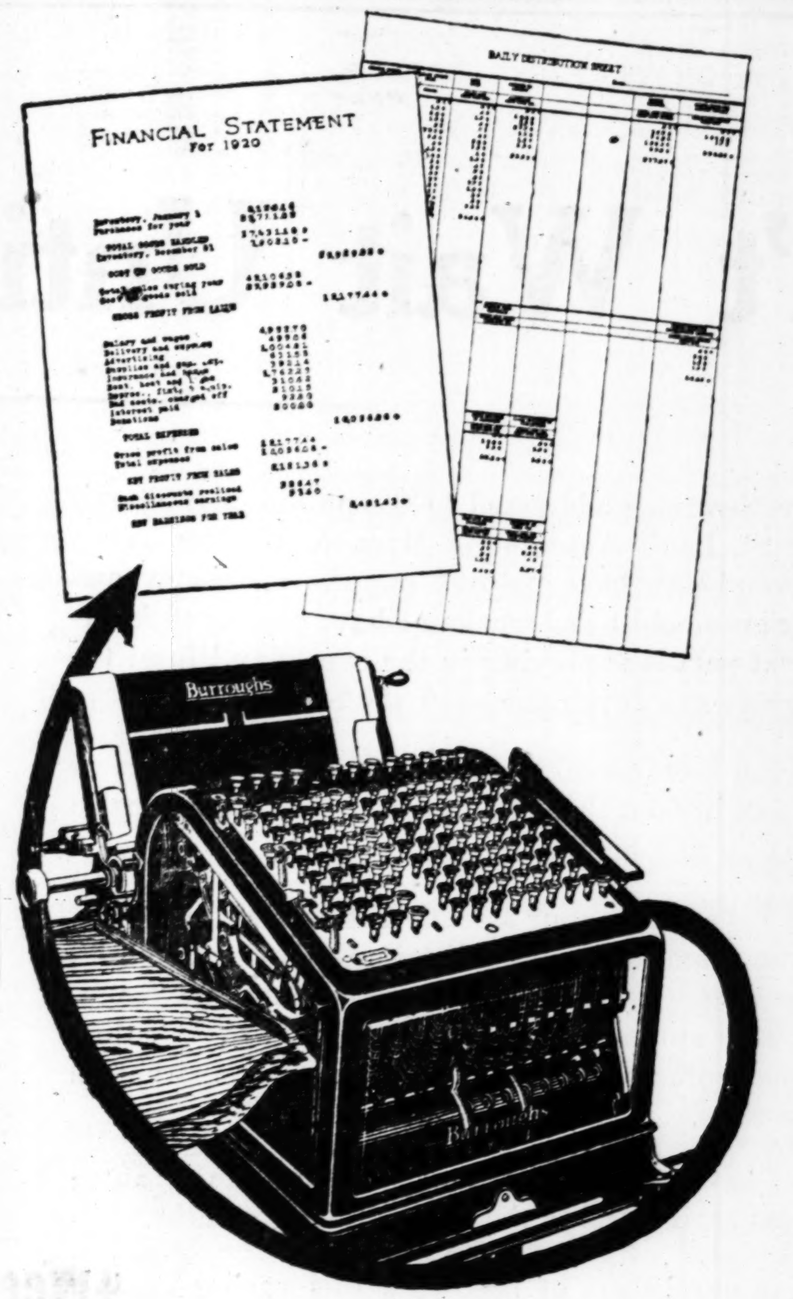
DEANS MENTHOLATED COUGH DROPS

Income Tax?

Here's All You Need



There's one man who is not losing any sleep over the income tax.

He is the treasurer of a small hardware company, and a busy man. He does not employ a bookkeeper and though he works all day on the floor, he posts the books himself in the evening, but—

He has a Burroughs Bookkeeping Machine.

Last year, when it came time to make up the Income Tax Return, a deputy internal revenue tax collector dropped into the store and took a look at the Burroughs-kept ledger.

"Why," the collector exclaimed, "you have everything you need right here in plain sight. Just copy off the figures!"

"Can Figure Mine in Twenty Minutes"

With the aid of the Burroughs, this man keeps accounts up-to-date all through the year, so when the tax return is due it is a simple matter to gather the figures from his clear, accurate records. The machine makes it easy to add purchases and sales, classify expenses, take inventory and figure net profit.

Before the Burroughs was bought, he spent from six to eight hours a day on the books, working late into the night and Sunday. Now, all this work is finished in a short time each evening.

His accounts receivable, accounts payable, and private ledger are kept with the Burroughs. Customers' statements also are inserted in the carriage of the machine along with the ledger sheet, and both are posted up-to-date every day.

If you are having trouble with the Income-Tax-figure Hunt this year, now is the time to take steps that will save you from the work and worry next year, and give you daily and monthly business figures you need in these days of quick changes and uncertain markets. A phone call to the nearest Burroughs office will put you in touch with men who can show you a surprisingly simple method for getting this information.

The A B C of Business

Adding, Bookkeeping and Calculating represent the three great groups of figuring operations that constitute the A B C of business. To handle these operations the Burroughs Adding Machine Company manufacture three types of machines in a wide variety of styles and sizes, among which may be found a machine that will fit the needs of any business, large or small.

A Burroughs representative will be glad to show you the type of machine made to fit the needs of your particular business. A telephone call or a letter will bring him.

Famous in a Day For Her Beautiful Complexion, Oatmeal Combination Does It

A Free Prescription Does Its Work Overnight. You Can Prepare It at Your Home.

New York—It is my own discovery and it takes just one night to get such marvelous results, says Mae Edna Wilder when her friends ask her about her wonderful complexion and the improved appearance of her hands and arms. You can do the same thing if you follow my advice, she says. I feel it my duty to tell every girl and woman what this wonderful prescription did for me. Just think of it. All this change in a single night. I never tire of telling others just what brought about such remarkable results. Here is the identical formula that removed every defect from my face, neck, hands and arms. Until you try it you can form no idea of the marvelous change it will make in just one application. The prescription which you can prepare at your own home is as follows: Go to any grocery and get ten cents worth of ordinary oatmeal, and from any department or drug store a bottle of Derwillo. Prepare the oatmeal as directed in every package of Derwillo. Before applying Derwillo cleanse the skin thoroughly with a good cleansing cream (Liska cold cream I have found to be the best). The first application will astonish you. It makes the skin appear transparent, smooth and velvety. I especially recommend it for dark, sallow skin, freckles, tan, sun spots, coarse pores, rough skin, shiny nose, ruddiness, wrinkles and, in fact, every blemish the face, hands and arms are heir to. If your neck or chest is discolored from exposure, apply this combination there and the objectionable defect will disappear as if by magic. It is absolutely harmless and will not produce or stimulate a growth of hair. Since short sleeves are in vogue it is necessary to have beautiful hands and arms, and no matter how rough and ungainly the hands and arms, or what abuses they have had through hard work and exposure to sun and wind, this combination will work a wonderful transformation. Thousands who are using it have had the same results I have had.

NOTE—To get the best effect, be sure to follow the complete directions contained in every package of Derwillo, and it is so simple that anyone can use it, and so inexpensive that any girl or woman can afford it. Department stores and druggists guarantee that there will be a noticeable improvement after the first application or they will refund the money. It is sold in this city at all toilet counters under a money-refund guarantee, including Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph, Johnson Bros. and the Enderle Drug Co.

PILES CURED

WITHOUT THE KNIFE
By Dr. Henrich's Method,
TO STAY CURED

No Cutting. No Pain. No Chloroform. No Hospital. No Danger. No Loss of Time. Consultation and Examination Free—Tell Your Friends.

Piles can now be cured permanently by

Dr. Henrich's Painless Non-Surgical Method

Yes, absolutely cured, for all time to come—and without pain—without a surgical operation—and without a day's loss of time from your business. Just think of being able to rid yourself of this annoying affliction forever in a few weeks' time and in such an easy manner.

The Henrich Method is not a theory or an experiment. It is a proven success that will stand the most rigid investigation. Dr. Henrich can name you hundreds of the most critical cases, right here in St. Louis and vicinity, that have been entirely cured by this Treatment, any of whom you are at liberty to talk to should you want further proof.

Dr. Henrich's Treatment is diametrically opposed to surgery or any drawing of blood. His method is to heal the diseased Hemorrhoidal Veins, which are the cause of Piles, to relieve pain, inflammation and swelling, so that the Pile tumors disappear within a week. And when this has been accomplished, you are cured forever.

If you suffer from Piles, you should by all means investigate this painless, non-surgical method immediately. Call any day except Sunday.

Read what a Farmer says about the HENRICH (Non-Surgical) METHOD, Suffered 22 years. Other Doctors Failed.

Columbia, Ill., Oct. 30, 1916.

Dr. W. P. Henrich, My Dear Sir—For 22 years I was a sufferer from a bad case of Piles. I tried many kinds of medicines and different doctors but nothing cured me.

I started your wonderful treatment September 6th and am now permanently cured without the knife. It is not painful and I was up and about my work on the farm altho I was 68 years old.

I advise every Pile sufferer to not put off taking your never-failing treatment, but should go at once to see you and be cured for life. Yours truly,

ADAM HARRES, R. F. D. No. 1.

Contractor was cured of Piles by Dr. Henrich's Mild Medical Method Nine Years Ago. Recommends Every Pile Sufferer to Consult Dr. Henrich.

Belleville, Ill., Nov. 23, 1918.

W. P. Henrich, Ph. G., M. D.

Dear Doctor—I suffered many years with the Piles. I tried many kinds of treatment without success, and at times I suffered so much that I could hardly attend to my business.

Since being cured by you, March, 1912, I have not been troubled. I most earnestly recommend those who may be afflicted with Piles to consult you. I am sure they will never have occasion to regret it. Very truly yours,

The Doctor's Advice

by Dr. Lewis Baker

Miss H. writes: "I have such a very severe cough and cold and have not been able to get anything to help me. It is weakening my system."

Answer: Use the following and your cold and cough will vanish and you will soon be strong again: Get a 2½ oz. bottle of Mentho-Laxene and take every hour or two. This can be taken pure or made into a full pint of home-made syrup. Full directions as to use will be found on bottle. This is a mild laxative and will drive the cold from the system.

S. E. asks: "I have tried to cure dandruff, itching scalp, falling hair and baldness with numerous tonics, etc., but in vain. What do you recommend?"

Answer: I have been recommending plain yellow Minyol for the past seven years and scores of my patients are delighted with the quick, pleasant action of this remedy in stopping itching, falling hair, dandruff, etc.

A Rheumatic writes: "For several years have been a rheumatic sufferer. Also I have nervous indigestion. Please advise."

Answer: Impairment of the digestive apparatus over a long period poisons the blood and many ailments follow, including rheumatism. A thorough blood-cleansing medicine should be used for several months. I get best results from elixir Chin-Cea compound. Druggist should supply in 8-oz. sealed bottle package, with full directions.

Mabel writes: "Can you please prescribe medicine which will relieve me of such distressing symptoms of kidney and bladder as the following: Pains in small of back, soreness in region of bladder, puffing of limbs, etc."

Answer: Those seeking relief from kidney and bladder disorders should begin taking Balmwort tablets, a very successful formula sold in sealed tubes with full directions.

"Too Fleshy" writes: "Last winter I was cured of a bad case of bronchitis by using your prescription containing mentho-laxene, and have been very grateful and confident of getting good advice. I wish to know of a good, safe medicine to reduce my abnormal weight about 30 pounds."

Answer: I thank you for your confidence and advise that five-grain Arbolone tablets is the reliable obesity medicine which I always prescribe. In sealed tubes with directions. Any druggist can supply you.

George asks: "For several months I have not been feeling well. My skin is sallow, my tongue is coated, have headache, am sleepless, nervous and bothered with chronic constipation. Please help me."

Answer: You need a laxative blood-cleansing treatment in the form of Sulpherb tablets (not sulphur). Overcome the tendency to constipation and gradually your good health and pure blood will return.

Mrs. L. writes: "I hesitate to ask advice, as my case is so unusual. In a word, I am tired and worn out all the time. Rest does not refresh me. I have been married over a year and formerly did not know what it was to be tired or nervous. Sometimes I feel hysterical. I fear I will become a nuisance to my husband if this continues."

Answer: Your nervous system has been depleted. You need a tonic invigorating medicine that will aid in supplying more food-energy to your nerves. Take Cadomene tablets regularly for several months.

Dr. Lewis Baker gives advice free and offers his valuable book, Health and Beauty, to anyone sending a 2-cent stamp. The medicine he recommends are obtainable from retail and wholesale druggists. Address: Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Elwood Sts., Dayton, Ohio.

AUTO SHOW PASSES ALL FORMER RECORDS

Wholesale and Retail Sales Reported Over Million-Dollar Mark.

The fourteenth annual automobile show closed last night. From every angle it was without question the most successfull exhibition ever staged by St. Louis motor car dealers. This was the universal opinion expressed by all dealers in reviewing the activities of the past week.

In point of attendance, the show was a revelation, demonstrating how important a part the automobile plays in the present day world. Monday night the attendance of approximately 20,000 was the largest ever recorded at an automobile show in the city. Last year the show was considered a big success. Yet this year on every day except one the number of visitors passed last year's mark. Estimating yesterday's attendance, Manager Robert E. Lee stated that the total number of visitors would exceed 75,000 for the five and a half days.

750 Cars Sold.

Every exhibitor reported sales daily, almost from the time the doors opened. An incomplete census of the business consummâted during the week made a total of approximately 750 cars sold at wholesale and retail. Considering $1500 as an average price the total will surpass the million dollars mark.

In this respect the St. Louis show is no different from those held in other cities. Milwaukee reported sales of 480 cars and Cleveland 725 cars. In these cities as well as in Chicago and Philadelphia the total attendance surpassed that of last year.

Because of the unusual interest which the public showed in the exhibits last week, the dealers are predicting that during the spring months there will be a shortage of motor cars. The manufacturers have been predicting this for months, pointing out the fact that production of motor cars during the last few months has been more than 50 per cent below normal, and that it would be impossible to get sufficient material and reorganize their production in time to meet the spring demand.

Few Cars Stored.

On Feb. 1 the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers' and Dealers' Association, in making their regular monthly canvass of the number of unsold motor cars in St. Louis, found that the stock was far below that which is usually carried by the dealers at this time of the year.

This year's show from a standpoint of new models and mechanical innovations was probably the most interesting from a spectator's standpoint of any of the past exhibits. Many dealers have arranged to keep the special show chassis in their show room during the coming week, in order that the public may have additional time for inspection.

TEN-SPEED TRUCK DISTRIBUTORS NAMED

The Schacht 10-speed truck which has aroused wide interest because of its 10-speed transmission, will be distributed in St. Louis by the Busy Bee Motor Car Co., 4455 Manchester avenue, of which Arthur C. Schacht, well-known automobile man, is head. The Schacht truck is made in 2, 2½, 3½ and five-ton sizes.

Schacht has long realized the necessity of providing greater flexibility in motor truck operation. The average truck, with a three or four speed transmission, is not capable of attaining full operating efficiency, due to the limitations of its gearing.

The Schacht truck combines maximum power with maximum vehicle speed at the normal rate of engine speed, which it maintains at all times. More trips per day and more tons hauling are made possible at a much lower operating cost.

The Busy Bee Motor Car Co. has facilities for furnishing the kind of service which the owner of a truck expects.

MAXWELL-CHALMERS ON NEW AND SOLID BASIS

The significance of Walter P. Chrysler's statement regarding the completion of the Maxwell-Chalmers reorganization, recently issued, is apparent to every one directly or indirectly connected with the motor car industry. As chairman of the Reorganization Committee, he issued the following signed statement:

"The reorganization plan of the Maxwell-Chalmers Motor Co., as originally formulated, has been declared operative. This assures an additional $15,000,000 and a powerful management. The new and strong organization, and the large additional capital, forecast manufacturing and sales operations of increased magnitude. The company enters the 1921 selling season with two of the most favored cars on the market."

In effect, this means that, in a financial and organization sense, the Maxwell-Chalmers properties are on a par with the magnificent physical condition to which they have been brought during the last several months.

SPECIAL SHOW FOR NEW DORT MODELS

The immense crowds and great interest manifested at the St. Louis show has dispersed whatever gloom there was on automobile row.

What particular distributer is happiest over results is possibly a matter of debate, but the Kardell Motor Car Co. is certainly a formidable contender.

The new family of Dort cars shown by Kardell attracted so many visitors that there was a constant congestion at this exhibit. So many were there that could not get a glimpse of the car, the Kardell company has decided to continue the exhibit at their salesrooms throughout the coming week. "Open house" will be maintained day and evening.

Among the factory men who came in late in the week was H. S. Daniels, advertising manager of the Dort Motor Car Co., who has been making a round of the shows.

"Much to our surprise, both our retail and wholesale sales records at the shows have as a whole exceeded all past performances," said Mr. Daniels.

"The automobile business, like other lines, has been passing through a period of great stress, but there is an ever-increasing area of blue in the business sky, and after it is all over and readjustments are rightly made, we will all be glad it happened.

"The automobile industry will be one of the first to reach complete revival, for motor cars are today one of the outstanding necessities in the American scheme of life.

"In Flint, Mich., where the Dort, Buick, Chevrolet and Paterson cars are made, all the factories are now running and increasing production each week. Of course, this could not be so unless orders were coming in for the cars."

"They are coming in, and, although no one looks for a 'boom' like that of last spring, we all confidently anticipate a healthy year's business."

Aged Couple Married.

DENISON, Tex.—J. Hogans, 77 years old, and Miss Foster, 70 years old, were married recently at Eastland, the home of the bride. The happy couple went on a honeymoon trip and have arrived at Denison, where they will make their home.

Don't Wait Until It Is Too Late

In this series of advertisements addressed to the public of St. Louis the members of the St. Louis Automobile Mfrs. & Dealers' Assn. whose names are given below have pointed out the efficiency and utility of the passenger automobile and truck and have portrayed faithfully and truly the great part it is playing in the everyday life of the people and in the progress and development of the nation.

We have proved to you how useful and indispensable it has become to mankind, to the extent, in fact, that one in every twelve persons in the United States owns an automobile.

At the same time we have called your attention to the fact that conditions surrounding the manufacture and distribution of automobiles at the present time, due to the liquidating and stabilizing movement now in effect, have brought automobile production down to less than 50 per cent of the normal volume. We have shown that this situation will continue for some time.

Such a condition, we have pointed out, means a shortage of automobiles for delivery next spring and in the early summer months.

To protect prospective purchasers of new cars this spring against the probability of being unable to obtain delivery, we have advised them to arrange for the purchase of their automobiles at once.

We again repeat the advice that we have given you heretofore.

The prospective shortage of passenger automobiles and trucks is even more pronounced now than it was when we first started the publication of this series of announcements. There is far more danger that you will be unable to obtain a new car this spring than there was six weeks ago.

We still have a few cars on hand, however, but the demands of those who have heeded our warning, and who want to make sure of being able to drive a new car this spring by purchasing now, is fast depleting the number of available models on our floors.

When the cars we have in stock are gone we can give absolutely no assurance of our usually prompt delivery. We have comparatively none stored in our warehousing rooms as we have had in the past. There are none held by country dealers throughout our territory. The shortage is more acute and gives evidence of being more lasting than it was in 1919 and in 1917, when transportation congestion prevented them from being shipped to us from the factories.

That it will be more lasting is assured by the fact that it will take weeks for the factories to assemble workmen, buy raw material and begin producing again in normal volume, and the man who wants a new automobile will have to wait until that time comes, and orders in ahead of him are filled before he will secure delivery of his car.

We again emphasize, therefore, the advisability of placing your order at once.

HUGE ORGANIZATION BACK OF STANDARD 8

How one long-established manufacturer, the Standard Steel Car Co of Pittsburg, Pa., entered the automobile business is told by Walter L. Alt of the Standard Automotive Corporation, St. Louis distributor of the Standard eight.

"The Standard Steel Car Co. was organized in 1902," he says. "Its capitalization was $4,000,000 and its monthly capacity approximately 50 steel railroad cars. In these 18 years of activity it has grown to a capitalization of $100,000,000, with a monthly output of 300 freight cars and 150 steam or electric passenger cars.

"The plants it controls and operates are in New Castle, Pa., Hammond, Ind., Middletown, Pa., Elwood City, Pa., Baltimore, Md., Sagamore Mass., Worcester, Mass., as well as the great main works at Butler, Pa., and an assembling plant at Saints, France. The number of employes is about 15,000.

"In 1915 the Standard Steel Car Co. entered the automobile field. As builders of transportation equipment, such as street cars, freight cars and the finest of passenger and dining coaches, the members of this organization felt competent to offer motorists an exceptional motor car. Unfortunately, just as the public had approved the first of these cars, the world war burst upon us. The Standard Steel Car Co. was quickly engaged in 100 per cent war work.

"Since being released from Government work the Standard Steel Car Co. has taken up the perfection of the Standard eight."

GASOLINE GUARANTEE GOES WITH GRANT SIX

So many owners have reported high mileage records on their Grant Six cars that the Southern Motor Co., distributor, are giving to every purchaser a written guarantee that he will average more than 18 miles to every gallon of gasoline used, and agreeing that if any owner does not obtain this mileage it will present him with sufficient gasoline to bring his average to this figure.

President Federspiel of the Southern Motor Co. states that this guarantee is being given even to professional men who are noted for making many stops and short runs.

The Grant Six factory recently sponsored a national economy run, when 37 cars driven by Grant owners in all parts of the country, reported an average of 22.7 miles per gallon of gasoline.

WINTON NEW MODELS TOO LATE FOR AUTO SHOW

The two latest body developments of the Winton factory reached St. Louis yesterday, too late for display at the automobile show. Although one of them is scheduled for immediate delivery to a purchaser, the Von Arx Automobile Co. has made arrangements to keep both cars on the floor this week.

The two new models are a four-passenger sport touring car equipped with disc wheels and the limo-sedan, a combination between the limousine and sedan types.

TO SELL RAY BATTERIES

Announcement was made last week by the Moerschell Company that it had been appointed distributer for the Ray storage battery, a product new to the St. Louis trade. The Ray battery attracted much attention last August, when tests performed by official experts were announced to the trade in the motor publications.

The Lavier formula plates are used and many unusual advantages are claimed for the new process in making the plates. Each battery carries a two-year unconditional contract from the factory.

Remarks Heard at the Show

"Dort has certainly put one over!"

"Most artistically designed cars in the Show."

"Beautiful!"

"More individuality than in any other cars I've seen!"

"Charming!"

"You can't beat those lines!"

"Fine enough to satisfy the pride of the most particular!"

"No competition in your price class, old man!"

"Always knew it was a great car mechanically. Now it's a beautiful one!"

"Just as soon own that roadster as any $2000 car in the market!"

"You've got to hand it to Dort!"

"Don't see how you do it for the money!"

"Was going to pay $3000 for a coupe, but what's the use?"

"No one will be chump enough to expect a price reduction on such cars. You've sure struck rock bottom!"

"Mighty roomy and comfortable, as well as handsome."

"Can't beat those lines for any money!"

The above opinions are but a few of hundreds overheard—many of them from competitors.

Another Week in Which to See the Outstanding Feature of the Show

The popular interest in the new family of Dort cars at the automobile show has admittedly been far greater than was manifested in any other exhibit.

It was a positive triumph—one attended by such congested crowds that it was physically impossible for our force to accommodate all who sought detailed information.

For this reason we have decided to keep "open house" all this week in order that those who could not give these remarkable cars the desired close examination and inquiry, may have a fair opportunity to do so.

Our salesmen will be on duty day and evening ready to go over—point by point—the superiorities of these unprecedented motor car values.

Whether or not you are ready to buy immediately you are cordially invited to come in and look these cars over. The standard of comparison which they will create in your mind will save you a lot of money when you are ready.

Dort sets the pace this year by adding to a famous chassis qualities of great beauty, extra room and solid driving and riding comfort.

These cars will satisfy folks who have paid a lot more in the past for their cars—and it is to this class that we particularly appeal.

"Good enough for anyone" is a strong statement when analyzed, but we do not hesitate to use it in connection with these sturdy, simple, dependable—AND BEAUTIFUL Dort cars.

Do not fail during the next week to add the Dort family to your list of acquaintances.

Y. W. C. A. TO OPEN EASTER COURSE IN DRESSMAKING

Classes Will Be Held Twice a Week at Training School—Millinery Also to Be Taught.

A special Easter course in dressmaking and millinery will be opened tomorrow at the Young Women's Christian Association Training School, 1411 Locust street, to teach women to make their spring hats and dresses and also to make attractive little accessories. Expert instructors will have charge of the classes and there will be 10 lessons at moderate prices.

The number admitted to the classes will be limited, and there will be two sessions a week of both dressmaking and millinery courses, with the hours announced as follows: Monday and Thursday mornings, dressmaking from 9:30 to 12:30; Monday and Thursday afternoons, millinery from 1:30 to 4:30 p. m. There will be no evening classes in the special course as both dressmaking and millinery are included in the regular curriculum of the training school and the Easter course is planned especially for women in the home who wish to become proficient in making their own things.

"RAY battery prices have always been right"

The fair and square price of the RAY BATTERY through the period when other makers were getting an overly high amount for their product, has given RAY a position in the battery business which carries with it all the good-will due to equitable business principles; and the inroads which RAY has made on the business of other makers—due to this equitable policy—has told on them to the extent that they are now in a mad rush to drop down to somewhere near the RAY price level.

RAY BATTERY prices have always been right. Therefore RAY business has increased by leaps and bounds, while the ~~business of many battery makers has~~ fallen off.

You battery buyers have come to learn that the low price of the RAY did not carry with it low quality. On the contrary you have read of the wonderful RAY BATTERY tests in which well known engineers, not interested in the Ray Battery Company, proved in their reports of an epoch-making test that RAY BATTERIES would withstand THREE TIMES the abuse of other widely known makes which at the time of the test (August 1920) sold for nearly twice the price.

You have undoubtedly heard your friends whose cars are equipped with RAY BATTERIES praise their performance. If you have not, take pains to ask the next RAY owner you meet.

Stop to think of what RAY BATTERIES have done for you motorists. RAYS are the only batteries equipped with the famous "Lavier Formula Plates." These plates are so superior to the ordinary kind that from a performance standpoint they have practically rendered other makes of batteries obsolete.

The "Lavier Formula Plate" is an achievement for which electro-chemical engineers have been searching for years—namely, high porosity with firm structure. That this may not sound too technical here is the explanation: Picture in your mind two water faucets, one which turns on the full pressure all at once, and the other having a valve which requires five or six turns before the full pressure is obtained. The "Lavier Formula Plates" give off electricity like the first faucet will shoot out the water—full pressure immediately for vigorous turnover of the motor. The sluggish plates in other batteries form the parallel to the second faucet. The electrical power within them is the same, but they cannot release the charge with the same snap.

It remained for Thomas Lavier, one of the great electro-chemical engineers of the present day, to develop a plate with this high porosity and yet with the most firm structure and resistance against hard use ever known. His plate cannot warp or buckle under the most severe strain in your car, and the battery will not overheat. The recuperative ability of these plates is such that they are practically 100% efficient. Lastly, the "Lavier Formula Plates" will not sulphate harmfully or wash down to short circuit the battery.

Even with the slashing of prices there is no battery which approaches RAY quality at anywhere near its price.

As RAY prices have always been right, they will always continue right. RAY batteries will always be of the same high quality which has made them famous. There will be no cheapening to meet competition.

You are SAFE with a RAY, which still remains the ONLY BATTERY guaranteed unconditionally for two years—a guarantee which no other battery is efficient enough to withstand.

The Only Battery Guaranteed Unconditionally for 2 Years

Naturally it is the "Lavier Formula Plate" which makes this guarantee possible. Whether on the first day or last—any time within two years from the day you bought your battery—if your RAY fails to function properly, you get a new RAY BATTERY. The RAY guarantee is a clean, straightforward, written warranty.

APPENDICITIS

Appendicitis attacks at any moment even persons seemingly in good health. Usually, however, it is preceded by stomach trouble or constipation. Many people have a bowel movement every day, but it is not a COMPLETE movement, and much old, stale matter stays in the system to ferment and cause trouble. Often there is only a small passage in the center of the bowels, while the sides are covered with old, hard matter, which sticks to the bowels and often poisons the system for months, making you feel tired all the time and "half-sick." Even if your bowels move slightly each day, that is not enough. There must be an occasional THOROUGH complete cleansing to bring out all the accumulated, poisonous waste matter.

Appendicitis is an intestinal infection spreading to the appendix, and it can be guarded against in the same manner in which you guard against the spread of throat infection (sore throat). When you have sore throat, you can often prevent further trouble by using an antiseptic wash or gargle to destroy the germs, and a laxative to carry off the poisons from the body. Very similar treatment is necessary to guard against appendicitis. But instead of an antiseptic wash for the throat, an INTESTINAL antiseptic is necessary and a COMPLETE drainage of the bowel system.

INTESTINAL ANTISEPTIC

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleaner. This preparation, known as ADLER-I-KA, acts as follows: It tends to destroy or remove harmful germs and colon bacilli in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here. It is the most COMPLETE system cleaner ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and bringing out foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing else can dislodge. It brings out all gasses, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart and other vital organs. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter ADLER-I-KA draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much MORE foul matter is brought out which was poisoning your system. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach and sick headaches, one spoonful ADLER-I-KA ALWAYS brings relief. ADLER-I-KA is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary stomach and bowel medicines and the various oils and waters, on account of its rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE action.

MELODRAMA REIGNS IN THEATERS THIS WEEK

Marjorie Rambeau in "The Sign on the Door" and Return Visit of "Tiger Rose."

Marjorie Rambeau, who was leading woman in a stock company on the Pacific Coast at the age of 13, and who for the last several years has been starred on Broadway in one success after another, appears at the Shubert-Jefferson tonight in Channing Pollack's play, "The Sign on the Door," which was praised in New York as "the most exciting and absorbing crime melodrama" of the season 1919-20. Tonight also at the American begins a week's return visit of David Belasco's production of Willard Mack's melodrama of the Canadian frontier, "Tiger Rose," with Helen Lewis in the role of the heroine, which was first played by Lenore Ulric.

"The Sign on the Door" was produced Dec. 19, 1919, at the Republic Theater, New York, with a cast partly different from that of the road company. In Miss Rambeau's support are Lee Baker, Robert Vivian and Beatrice Allen, survivors from the original company; and Harold Slater, Harry Minturn and Hugh Dillman.

There is a prologue which establishes at once just how innocently Mrs. Lafe Regan (Miss Rambeau) became implicated with her employer's worthless son in the days of her youthful unsophistication. Then there are three acts in which the villain is satisfactorily murdered and suspicion points to the heroine, but is finally dispelled in a happy ending.

"In Tiger Rose," as many will remember, the heroine is a French-Canadian girl given to oaths and pistols, who, by her devotion and daring, saves her lover, accused of murder, from the hands of the law. There are many thrilling scenes, and a Belasco thunderstorm. With Miss Lewis in the present company are Bernard J. McOwen, Jack C. Bertin, Charles Riegel, James H. Pewis, Arthur Woods, Clayton Earle, Frank Bryan, Ben Hewlett and Emilie Lessing.

"Hitchy-Koo" Next Week.

On next Sunday night Raymond Hitchcock will take his "Hitchy-Koo" revue of 1921 to the American Theater, with Julia Sanderson, G. P. Hutley, and Doyle and Dixon. On the same night William Hodge, who specializes on homely drama, will appear at the Shubert in a new play, "The Guest of Honor." In the following week, "The Night Boat," a celebrated musical comedy, comes to the American, while the Shubert promises D. W. Griffith's latest motion picture, "Way Down East."

Adelaide and Hughes, popular dancers, head this week's bill at the Orpheum. Other attractions promised are Frank Sinclair, Cliff Dixon and Mary Collins in a musical tabloid, "The Little Cottage;" Kate Elinor and Sam Williams in "Wanted, a Cook;" James B. Donovan and Marie Lee in a comedy, "Doing Well, Thank You;" Mary Haynes, singer; Fred Berrens in "Words and Music;" and a gymnastic act called "Eight Flying Blue Devils."

Features at other vaudeville houses are: Columbia, the Ellis Nowlan troupe in "What Women Want;" Grand, J. Rosamond Johnson and Company in a musical skit, "Syncopation;" Rialto, Harry Fox, popular musical comedy and movie star; Empress, "The Rising Generation," with 10 child actors, featuring Mary Daniels; and Loew's Garrick, "Five Musical Queens," performers on brass instruments.

'NAUGHTY MARIETTA' FEATURE OF WEEK AT THE PERSHING

Roger Gray and Stock Company Will Produce Operetta With Scene Laid in New Orleans.

"Naughty Marietta," an operetta by Rida Johnson Young and Victor Herbert, will be presented by Roger Gray and the Pershing stock company tomorrow evening at the Pershing Theater. The piece was originally produced by Oscar Hammerstein.

The scene is laid in New Orleans about the year 1870. The first act is in the Place d'Armes, while the second moves to the Marionette Theater. The final scene is laid in the ballroom of the Jeunesse Doree Club. These scenes permit novel settings and costumes.

"Naughty Marietta," "The Dream Melody," "Falling in Love With Someone" and "It's Pretty Soft for Simon," the latter a comedy song, are the best known musical numbers.

"Very Good Eddie" will be presented during the week of Feb. 21.

'BABES IN TOYLAND' STARS TO APPEAR IN 'HANSEL AND GRETEL'

Helene Higgins to Sing and Doris Remspecher Will Dance Ballet in Junior Players' Performance.

Two songs from Humperdinck's opera, "Hansel and Gretel," will be sung by Helene Higgins at the Junior Players' matinees of "Hansel and Gretel," the first of which will be given next Saturday afternoon at the Artists' Guild Theater. Little Miss Higgins, who is only 11 years old, will take the part of the old broom witch in the fairy tale which has been especially adapted for the Junior Players. She will be remembered as one of the stars of "Babes in Toyland" when it was given by the Municipal Opera Company in Forest Park last summer. She is now a member of the Junior Players. Another Municipal Opera favorite, little Doris Remspecher, whose toe dancing was a feature of the operas, will play the "Good Fairy" and will dance a new ballet.

"Hansel and Gretel" will be presented by a big cast of children under the direction of Miss Alice Martin, and will be repeated at the Little Theater Feb. 26 and March 5. Tickets for all performances will be on sale at 1111 Olive street. The part of Hansel will be played by Franklin Schippers and Gretel by Katharine Bright. Others in the cast include Margaret Wise, Pauline Parker, Vernon Tietjen, Roberta Gutman, Margaret Clare McGinnis, Victor Woerheide, Elizabeth Dooly, Eloise Wells, Jane Watson, Jack Thompson, Foy Waldron, Esmeralda Mayes, Mercedes Parker, Jane McCloskey, Jean Woerheide and Geraldine Boe.

The Secret of Charm Never Changes

Throughout the ages it exerts its power—this charm to which the world bows, changing history and making queens—of nations as well as hearts.

Few can describe it, for charm doesn't depend upon beauty alone. The woman who wields it may be dark or fair, of any race or type.

Only this is certain—she has a perfect skin, fresh, youthful, free from blemishes—the irresistible attraction which all understand and admire.

Begin today to give your complexion the care it needs and this charm will also be yours. It's a beauty secret of ancient Egypt and the beautiful Cleopatra.

Before you sleep, cleanse with Palm and Olive oils

Bad complexions are largely due to lack of proper cleansing. The pores become clogged, then enlarged, then irritated. Blackheads and blotches follow.

Soft and flabby skins often show the lack of a cold water tonic. Rough skins are often caused by using harsh, irritating soaps.

The best preventive is a daily cleansing with Palmolive soap. It makes a balmy, creamy lather, for the base is palm and olive oils. A gentle massage makes it penetrate. A rinsing takes it out, and with it come all accumulations which have clogged the skin.

Finish with a dash of cold water. Then your skin will be fresh and rosy, clear, soft, smooth.

Done at night, with a finishing touch of cold cream, this means that all night long your skin will have a needed chance to rest and breathe.

A lesson from stage women

All women can learn something from the women of the stage, who use much rouge, much powder.

But they remove them before they sleep. And with them the oil, the dirt and perspiration which clog up the pores of the skin.

Their complexions will show you that they do no harm when skins are treated the right way.

Only 10c, yet supreme

Palmolive soap costs little, yet it forms the best skin soap the world ever knew. It employs palm oil from Africa, olive oil from Spain. It combines them in a perfect emollient.

It soothes while it cleanses, softens while it cleans. No price can buy anything better.

The Palmolive price is due to the fact that millions have come to employ it. And we have worked for years to bring it within the reach of all.

On dry skins it is well to apply cold cream, both before and after washing.

Volume and efficiency permit us to sell Palmolive for 10c

Ancient beauties knew the way

Roman beauties, in their famous baths, used palm and olive oils. Egyptian beauties used them in Cleopatra's time.

Now modern science finds no better way to beauty than by scientific blending of these oils.

ILLINOIS MAN WAS BRAKEMAN ON LINCOLN'S FUNERAL TRAIN

The only living member of the train crew of Lincoln's funeral train is W. S. Porter of Jerseyville, Ill. Porter was a youth just mustered out of service with the 145th Illinois Infantry when he took a job as brakeman on the C. & A. Railroad. It was at the time that the Pullman brothers were working on the first sleeping car ever made in the C. & A. shops at Bloomington, Ill. Porter was summoned to Bloomington, with about a dozen others, to report for duty on the special train that was to leave Chicago May 2, 1865, bringing Lincoln's body to Springfield, Ill. J. C. McMullen, later general manager of the C. & A. system, was in charge of the train, and George Hewitt was conductor. Porter, who has been out of the railroad employ for more than 30 years, recalls only a few of his associates on the train, among them Isaac Evans, who was killed in a cyclone in East St. Louis in 1871.

At all the larger towns in Illinois, at every village and country road crossing, throngs of people met the funeral train, and when it reached the outskirts of Springfield, so great was the crowd it took more than two hours to go about a mile and a half, Poter said.

Give Edison's Mood Change Party to your Friends

SOMETHING new in parties! Hostesses will welcome it! It is simple to give and requires no expense. It was invented by Mr. Edison himself for your pleasure—and as a co-operative aid in his latest research work. It's a chance to help Mr. Edison and have a good time while doing so.

The NEW EDISON
"The Phonograph with a Soul"

Every Edison owner should come in and get a supply of Mood Change Charts to help Mr. Edison in his research work.

If you don't own a New Edison, we will loan you an instrument and sufficient RE-CREATIONS for giving a Mood Change Party. There will be no obligation on your part whatsoever, except that you give us the Charts to send to Mr. Edison.

Or, come to our store and fill out a Mood Change Chart. It will take you only five minutes—Mr. Edison will thank you for your co-operation.

Get acquainted with our Budget Plan, the easy way to pay. The price of the New Edison has increased less than 15% since 1914. Part of this is War Tax.

Sign coupon for Mood Change Party. Without obligation, I desire to give a Mood-Change-Party.

If you like a play that concerns regular honest-to-goodness American folk, the kind you meet every day on Olive street, but who are thrown by circumstances into a whirlpool of mystery, thrills and romance, you will be glad to meet who will make her St. Louis debut tonight at the Shubert-Jefferson Theater, in Channing Pollock's enlivening American drama,

MARJORIE RAMBEAU

THE SIGN ON THE DOOR

This will be Miss Rambeau's first professional appearance in St. Louis (for six consecutive seasons she has been held close to Broadway), and it is quite certain that she will win the same approval that has distinguished her sensationally popular career in New York, not the least important part of which was her conquest of the playgoers with "The Sign on the Door." She appeared in this play for the greater part of last season at the Republic Theater.

How to Tint Your Gray Hair at Home

If your hair is graying or is faded and streaked, do not let it become any more unattractive. No matter whether its original youthful color was golden or black, or any shade of brown, all you need is a bottle of Brownatone to instantly restore its beauty in a manner that defies detection. This famous preparation is as simple and easy to use as manicuring your nails.

Special Free Trial Offer.

Every package of Brownatone contains full, simple directions for working its magic on gray, faded or streaked hair. Guaranteed absolutely harmless. At all leading druggists in 50c and $1.50 packages. Two colors: "Light to Medium Brown" and "Dark Brown to Black." Send to The Kenton Pharmacal Co., 538 Coppin Bldg., Covington, Ky., enclosing 11 cents to pay postage, packing and war tax, for a free trial package of Brownatone.

Rupture Kills 7,000 Annually

Seven thousand persons each year are laid away—the burial certificate being marked "Rupture." Why? Because the unfortunate ones had neglected themselves or had been merely taking care of the sign (swelling) or the affliction and paying no attention to the cause. What are you doing? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a truss, appliance or whatever name you choose to call it? At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way, and all truss sufferers in the land are invited to make a FREE test right in the privacy of their own homes. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAO PAD when adhering closely to the body cannot possibly slip or shift out of place, therefore cannot chafe or pinch. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—comparatively inexpensive. To be used whilst you work and whilst you sleep. No straps, buckles or springs attached.

Learn how to close the hernial opening as nature intended so the rupture CAN'T come down. Send your name today to PLAPAO CO., 560 Stuart Bldg., St. Louis, Mo., for FREE trial Plapao and instructive information.—(c) P.L.

No Profit in Counterfeiting.

BUDAPEST, Feb. 12.—The value of Austro-Hungarian crowns and Polish marks is so low here that an enterprising band which undertook to counterfeit them abandoned the effort as unprofitable. When captured by the police they said the cost of producing the notes exceeded their face value. When surprised by the authorities they were engaged in printing spurious American currency.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking and after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered willow charcoal and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much-improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

NEW BOOKS FOR THE WEEK AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Any of these books will be sent by parcel post to card-holders on receipt of postage, in order of application.

THE ESSENTIALS OF ADVERTISING, by Frank Leroy Blanchard. Mr. Blanchard was formerly managing editor of Printers' Ink and editor of the Editor and Publisher. In his book he "outlines and discusses as briefly and clearly as possible the fundamental principles upon which modern advertising practice is based."

WILLIAM DE MORGAN, by Flora Warren Seymour. A critical sketch of a writer who has been called a post-Victorian realist. The volume is one of the Little Bookfellow Series.

FLOWERS IN THE GRASS, by Maurice Hewlett. A little volume of "Wiltshire Plain Song." The simplicity and charm of these poems is such that the title seems to have been well chosen.

BUILDING PLANS FOR POULTRYMEN. Edited by H. V. Tormohlen. The editor has gathered together from various sources practical articles on the building of houses and on methods of raising poultry. His book has many illustrations and diagrams.

HOMES AND HAUNTS OF THE PILGRIM FATHERS, by H. E. Lewis. A new edition of a work by Dr. Alexander Mackennal, revised and partly re-written. It pictures for us by text and by numerous interesting illustrations the English background of those who sailed in the Mayflower.

SPANISH-ENGLISH AND ENGLISH-SPANISH COMMERCIAL DICTIONARY, by R. Lusum. Written by an instructor at London University, who has designed his book to meet the needs of the trader, business man or correspondent.

AMERICAN SONG BOOK, by Charles Herbert Levermore. The contents are arranged in four parts: 1. Familiar and folk-songs; 2. College songs; 3. Songs of devotion; 4. Songs of loyalty and fraternity.

MEMOIRS OF ALEXANDER ISWOLSKY, translated and edited by Charles L. Seeger. Iswolsky was at one time Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs and Ambassador to France. His book is full of personal recollections and intimate stories of illustrous men.

STATUE OF WASHINGTON TO BE PLACED IN TRAFALGAR SQUARE

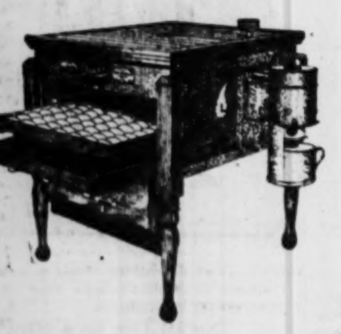
By the Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 12.—Presentation to Great Britain by the State of Virginia of a copy of the famous Houdon statue of George Washington the original of which now stands in the rotunda of the Virginia State Capitol here, will take place this spring.

The Governor of Virginia, Westmoreland Davis, who was to have headed a commission of Virginia officials which is to make the presentation, has found it impossible to make the trip to London, and has delegated in his place Dr. Edwin A. Alderman, president of the University of Virginia. The other members of the commission which will depart in May, are: B. F. Buchanan, Lieutenant-Governor of Virginia; Richard L. Brower, Speaker of the House of Delegates; John L. Williams, clerk.

The statue was to have been presented in 1914, but the ceremonies were delayed by the world war. Trafalgar Square is understood to have been selected by the British Government as the site for the statue, which is of bronze, although the original is in marble. It is expected appropriate ceremonies will be conducted at the time of the presentation, the date of which has not been set.

Stop Hatching Weak Chicks



With Cheap Incubators

Remember, it is not how many you hatch that counts, but how many you raise.

A Queen costs but little more, and the extra chicks that live and grow soon pay for the difference.

QUEEN INCUBATORS

HATCH CHICKS THAT LIVE AND GROW

Every feature necessary to turning out healthy chicks, full of pep and vitality, are found in the Queen Incubators.

Accurately regulated, taking care of a variation of 70 degrees without danger.

Built entirely of redwood—a very scarce article in these days of imitation.

Cheaper woods and pasteboard linings in iron and tin machines retain the odors to weaken and kill the hatching chicks.

Start your chicks with a Queen Constitution and you will see them grow into big money for you.

Every chick hatched is a possible profit. What chance has it, if it is hatched out weak and puny, to grow into a good profitable fowl for you? We want you to learn more about the Queen Incubators.

BLUE HEN INCUBATORS

Just the thing for the beginner. Made in only the 65-egg size, but a real machine that will turn out splendid hatches.

PROMPTLY REPORT FAILURE TO RECEIVE ANSWERS.

$180,000 OFFERED FOR 120-FOOT LOT ON OLIVE STREET

Site Said to Be Sought for Addition to Eight-Story Metropolitan Building on Grand Avenue Corner.

ONE OF MANY PENDING DEALS

Negotiations and Offers Regarded by Observers as Sure Indication of Broad Activity in Realty.

By BERRY MOORE.

Negotiations are progressing under favorable conditions for the sale, to parties apparently having big building plans, of 120x137 feet on the north side of Olive street, 150 feet east of Grand avenue. The price involved is $180,000, or $1500 a foot for the Olive street frontage of 120 feet, according to Dr. W. P. Hill, owner of the site, who confirmed the report that negotiations were under way.

While the probable purchasers are keeping in the background, the presumption is that the site is desired for an annex to the eight-story fireproof Metropolitan Building at the northeast corner of Grand avenue and Olive street, owned by the Metropolitan Building Co., represented by J. H. Farish & Co. The site is situated between the Metropolitan and the Knights of Columbus Buildings and is improved with two-story buildings which, under the plans, are to be torn down to make way for the proposed addition.

The valuation set for Dr. Hill's property, while regarded as somewhat anticipative of prices likely to prevail for ground adjacent to the intersection of Grand avenue and Olive street, has a precedent in that established for the southwest corner of Grand avenue and Olive street, 50x150 feet. This site was leased by Thomas Halpin, its owner, to the Union News Co., with an option for a 99-year term at an annual net rental of $16,000, through the Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co. in connection with Thomas G. Watts.

Valuation Precedent.

The Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co., as agent for the Beers, disposed of the Beers Hotel building and site, at the northwest corner of Grand avenue and Olive street in 1905 to the Premium Realty Co., of which Aaron Fuller of Stix, Baer & Fuller is president, for $300,000, which even at that time was considered a relatively low valuation.

The Southern Realty and Financial Co., of which the late Louis A. Cella was president, holds the southeast corner of Grand avenue and Olive street, including the Rialto Theater, under a 90-year lease Cella, having acquired control of it before the big advance in ground values in that quarter of the city.

The upper floors of the Metropolitan building are occupied chiefly with offices of physicians, the structure having been designed especially for that purpose on a comprehensive scale, with quarters on the second floor for a drug store. The ground floor is divided into stores. The building is said to be the acme of construction of its particular type. Space in it has always commanded the highest rentals, and it always has been a source of big revenue to the owners.

Negotiations are in the advanced stage, it is understood, for other eligible sites in that part of the city, in which there are large-scale building plans. In two of the more important instances the earnest money has been deposited.

Big Purchase by Hamburg.

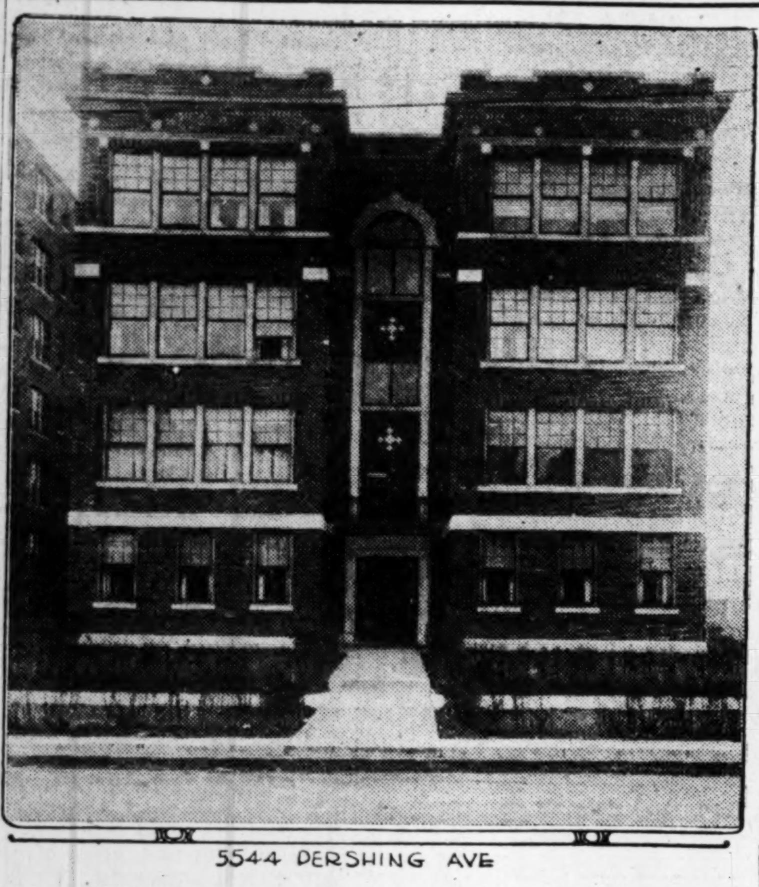
According to realty circles, Sam Hamburg Jr., of the Rosenbaum-Hauschulte Real Estate Co., has closed contracts for the purchase of a most attractive site on Olive street, involving important building plans. This is co-incident with the purchase of other sites, including one on Easton avenue, aggregating $'00,000 or more. Hamburg is recuperating at Excelsior Springs, Mo., preparatory to again entering the market actively after a respite of several months.

Negotiations are pending with the Chauncey P. Heath Real Estate Co. for several big business sites, including a promient Chestnut street corner east of Eighteenth street, while John Dockery & Sons report increasing interest on the part of prospective purchasers for the southwest corner of Ninth and Chestnut streets which is regarded as eligible for a large automobile building or for a hotel on a large plan.

The Roettger-Masek Realty Co. recently effected the sale of a choice plot on the north side of Chestnut street, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets, to large construction interests which are evolving plans for its improvement.

Apparently an era of unprecedented activity in real estate in St. Louis has awakened, as indicated by negotiations pending and offers forthcoming for business and investment holdings of various types and classes.

Efficiency Apartment Building on Pershing Av. Sold to Corporation



5544 DERSHING AVE

A CORPORATION comprising clients of the Federer-Arendes Realty Co. has purchased the four-story efficiency apartment at 5544 Pershing avenue.

This building is one of the very latest of the efficiency type apartment houses. It contains 30 suites of three and four rooms. There is a lounging room, lobby and lockers for tenants on the first floor. The apartment was completed a little more than two years ago. The sale was promoted by the Federer-Arendes company.

ADVERTISING COMPANY LEASES NEW QUARTERS

Chappelow Firm Acquires 10,000 Square Feet of Floor Space at 1709 Washington Avenue.

The Chappelow Advertising Co. has acquired a lease of 10,000 square feet of floor space in the building at 1709 Washington avenue, for a term of '10 years, according to the announcement of B. E. Chappelow, president, last week.

The lessor was represented by the real estate department of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., and the Chapelow company by Elmore Cave & So. The building, which is attractively situated for a large advertising agency, has every modern convenience, including light, ventilation, elevators, steam heat, sprinkler system, and is accessible to Washington avenue wholesale houses and other industries.

Contractors have been engaged to place the new quarters in readiness for the Chappelow company, which will remove from its present quarters in the International Life Building, the latter part of next month.

The Chappelow Advertising Co. was organized in August, 1904, with modest quarters in what was then known as the Missouri Trust Building at the northwest corner of Seventh and Olive streets. Some 50 odd persons are now affiliated with the firm. Daniel A. Ruebel, president of the Advertising Club, is vice president; J. F. Fingerlin is treasurer; Hubert J. Echele, president of the Junior Advertising Club, is office manager. Others affiliated in executive capacities include F. S. Codding, J. A. Hubbard, Norman Lewis, W. J. Johnson, Leonard MacCarthy, W. H. Maas, L. E. Miller, A. R. Alberts, V. B. Finley and George Heil.

HOME AT 5136 WESTMINSTER PLACE SOLD FOR $23,000

The Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. has effected the sale of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Med Johnson at 5136 Westminster place to Joseph H. Goldman for $23,000. The Johnson residence is one of the most attractive homes in the West End.

Mr. and Mrs. Goldman will take possession April 1.

Dr. Tuholske Buys Home.

Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. report the sale for $16,500 of the residence at 5115 Westminster place, to Dr. Lister Tuholske for the account of E. Black. The residence contains 12 rooms, three baths, hardwood floors and hot-water heat. The lot is 50x155 feet. Dr. and Mrs. Tuholske will take possession of their new home in the near future.

C. S. BLOOD JOINS SALES FORCE OF LIBERTY CENTRAL TRUST CO.

According to an announcement made yesterday afternoon by J. J. Frey, vice president and manager of the Bond Department of the Liberty Central Trust Co., Charles S. Blood, recently manager of the new business department of the American Trust Co., has joined the sales force of the Liberty Central Trust Co.'s Bond Department.

Blood is a native St. Louisan. He was formerly, for some years in the office furniture business, having been manager of the St. Louis branch of the Derby Desk Co. and Globe-Wernicke Co.

He is a charter member of the City Club and the Kirkwood Country Club, being chairman of the Finance Committee of the latter organization and a member of the Membership Committee of the former. He is also a member of the Kiwanis and the Optimist Clubs.

Blood is married, and resides with his family at 31 Rockhill road, Webster Groves.

JAS. C. MORFIT REPORTS MUCH ACTIVITY AND BROAD DEMAND

Jas. C. Morfit reports great activity in flats, investment properties and vacant homesites in all parts of the city and county, apparently all classes of real estate being in demand. His office has sold more than 50 lots in 90 days.

Sale contracts closed through him during the week include a house and lot on Washington avenue, between Grand and Theresa avenues, details of which are not ready for publication; a set of flats in the 3200 block on North Newstead; two sets of flats in the 4800 block on Cote Brilliante avenue; a county house on the Denny road, south of Manchester road, with six acres; a lot 76x300 feet on Essex avenue, Kirkwood.

Algonquin Park, near the Algonquin Club in Webster Groves, for which Morfit is the sole agent, is virtually sold out, 30 lots having been disposed of since Nov. 1.

PARKVIEW PLACE APARTMENTS PURCHASED BY W. R. BOWDEN

The Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. announces the sale of the two-family apartment building at 4941 Parkview place to W. R. Bowden, secretary of the St. Louis Distributing Co., for the account of J. P. Coveney of Pittsburg. The Parkview is a two-family apartment building and contains seven and eight rooms, two baths, steam heat and hardwood floors. The lot is 39x125.

Bowden purchased as a home and investment. He will occupy the first floor in the near future.

NORTH SIXTH STREET BUILDING LEASED FOR NEW STYLE SHOP

Herman Lentzner and L. Spitzburg have acquired a lease of the building at 618 North Sixth street for the Del Monte Style Shops, to be opened by them tomorrow.

The new shop has been improved at a large outlay, with elaborate decorations and show windows.

The first floor will be given over to millinery and the second floor to cloaks, suits and shoes.

The new shop is directly opposite the Grand-Leader.

APARTMENT SALES AND FLAT DEALS FEATURES OF WEEK

Demand for Buildings of Latter Type Both as Homes and Investments Appears on the Increase.

TWO SALES FOR TOTAL OF $600,000

Many Transactions Closed on Basis of Nominal Consideration and Escape Public Notice, Says J. M. O'Reilly.

Transactions for apartment buildings and flats, as well as for residences, were on a larger scale during the last week, comprising several big structures of recent construction.

The Argonne Apartments, a six-story structure of the semi-hotel type, at 3664 Washington avenue, in the block west of Grand avenue, were sold by Sam Hamburg Jr., of the Rosenbaum-Hauschulte Real Estate Co., to interests whose identity is withheld. A high-class four-story efficiency building at 5544 Pershing avenue was sold by the Federer-Arendes Realty Co. to a client whose identity has not been disclosed.

Contracts have been signed in the sale of numerous other big apartment buildings, the indications pointing to a rapid succession of sales of buildings of this character in the near future. Many apartment buildings are being conveyed at nominal figures, the purchasers thereby escaping public notice and thus trade operations in the apartmnt building field are not disclosed in their entirety, according to Joseph M. O'Reilly, vice president of the M. B. O'Reilly Real Estate Co.

Numerous Sales of Flats.

Sales of flats are apparently very active, with buildings on this plan being acquired for both home and investment. With the probability that rentals will remain at a high stage for a long time, or at least until there is a surplus of flats and apartments from new construction, now virtually suspended on account of the advanced prices of building material, the demand for buildings of this kind forms the chief feature of the real estate market.

The demand has been stimulated somewhat by more favorable monetary conditions, thus making possible many deals which otherwise would not be practicable under the adverse conditions of the last year.

Otto J. Dickmann, vice president of the Joseph F. Dickmann Real Estate Co., is at his post again after an attack of ptomaine poisoning which kept him in bed for several weeks, and which prevented him from attending the recent real estate dinner dance, sponsored by Barney F. Dickmann.

Finds Conditions Improved.

Dickmann remarked on the improved conditions reflected in the increased demand and more plentiful supply of money for real estate purposes, as well as for financing deferred payments, which heretofore has been an obstacle to the sale of both investment and home properties, especially the latter.

This is exemplified, he declared, in the increased sales of the Joseph F. Dickmann Real Estate Co., especially for investment properties, which otherwise would be impracticable.

LEASING OF BUSINESS QUARTERS BRISK, MARTIN-BREITT REPORT

The Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co. reports having leased the ground floor of 1003-5 Franklin avenue to Anthony Fabianski and A. P. Stagoski, to be used as a furniture store. The lease was for the American Fixture and Show Case Manufacturing Co.

The company also leased the second floor at 2018 Market street as a quarters in which to manufacture a puncture-proof tire. A. Abramoweth leased a portion of the first floor of the same building for use as a shoe repair shop. Both leases were for the Liberty Auto Lock Co.

Through the same company Fred Bauer and J. J. McDermot leased the ground floor at 721-23 St. Charles street for use as a restaurant, lunch room and soft drink parlor. The lease was for Martin Fellhauer.

The Martin-Breitt company leased the third floor of 314 North Third street to the St. Louis Lithographing Co., of which Martin Heineke is president. The property is owned by the A. G. Brauer Supply Co.

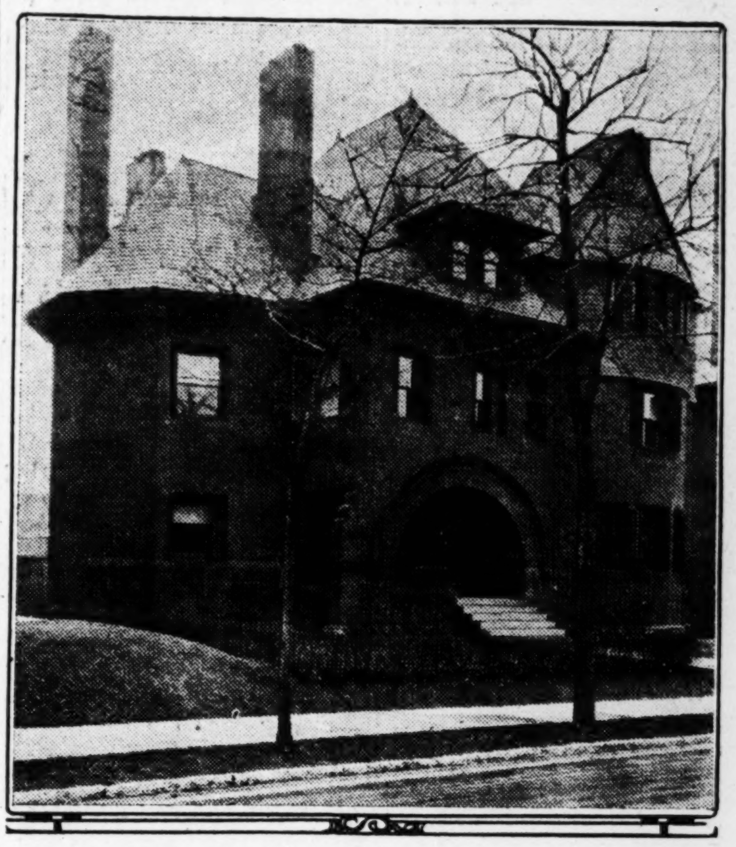
Residence in Vandeventer Place Purchased by Sam'l W. Jarrett



SAMUEL W. JARRETT, president of the McLean Medicine Co., has purchased the residence of the late H. N. Davis, at 56 Vandeventer place.

The house, which is constructed of red brick, has 12 rooms and three baths.

The sale was effected by Albert T. Terry & Co.

NEW TYPE OF BRICK TO LOWER HOMES COST

Saving in Brick and Mortar Under System That Is Not Patented and Any One May Use.

Specimen panels of the new type of brick wall which aims to reduce the cost of homes, were examined with great interest by architects, engineers and building officials, and by crowds of contractors and bricklayers at the annual convention of the Common Brick Manufacturers' Association of America, held recently at the Pennsylvania Hotel, New York, it was stated by the association, which adds that:

"The consensus of opinion of experts who saw the 'ideal' wall was that this new construction will revolutionize the building of homes. The system is not patented and may be freely used by anyone and requires no special shapes or sizes of brick. The bricklayers who built the specimen panels stated that they can lay just as many brick per day as with the more usual construction. The saving in brick and in mortar will, therefore, be a clear saving to the owner, to which is added the saving made possible by the elimination of furring, which up to now has been considered an indispensable part of masonry construction."

The comparative costs of a six-room house in "Ideal" and other forms of construction were displayed on a chart at the convention, from figures prepared by Andrew Pentland, a Cleveland home builder. They ran as follows: "Ideal" brick home, $6437; frame home, $6494; hollow tile and stucco home, $6644.

Statistics were submitted at the convention showing, as a result of a nation-wide investigation among contractors, that the number of bricks laid by a bricklayer in an eight-hour day averages 1300.

SALES AGGREGATING $160,000 REPORTED BY BOTTORFF CO.

The Bottorff Realty Co. has effected sales aggregating $160,000. These include 758 Goodfellow avenue, six-family apartment building, sold for Anita C. Klute to Gustave Weinman; 6310 Cates avenue, four-family apartment building, sold for the Celrose Realty Co. to Anna D. Rudolph; southwest corner of Union avenue and North Market street, three stores with flats above, sold for Paul P. Rosentreter to Edward J. Wynne; Winwood farm, 240 acres, in the Arcadia Valley, near Ironton, Mo., sold for Randall S. Dodd to Paul P. Rosentreter.

PRESERVING CONCERN OCCUPIES NEW DAYLIGHT FACTORY PLANT

The Blanke-Baer Extract and Preserving Co. the past week moved into its new building at King's highway and the Missouri Pacific tracks, south of Tower Grove Park. It is a daylight, sanitary factory, of latest pattern, steel and concrete construction, and equipped with time-saving and labor-saving devices for the handling of an expanding business.

The building was erected and financed under the auspices of R. A. & G. B. Bullock. Nolte & Naum were the architects and Selden-Breck the contractors.

ARMY OF HOME OWNERS LIKELY TO BECOME LARGE THIS YEAR

J. A. Joerz and H. A. Martin, who are directing the sale of one of Harry E. Prettyman's subdivisions, make the prediction that every man who can possibly do so is going to get away from the rent question this year by buying a home.

As a forerunner of this, the subdivision men report, a couple in the 80's who had paid rent for more than 60 years, purchased during the week a small home in West Walnut and apparently complete happiness rules.

Subsequently the son-in-law and daughter of the aged couple purchased a house, thus accumulating their domestic bliss, according to Prettyman.

Several lots of this addition were disposed of during the week, the inquiries foreshadowing a heavy demand for sites in this tract in the spring.

ILLINOIS COMMISSION URGES MORE BUILDING

Preliminary Statement Says It Is Only Remedy for Housing Shortage.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—Renewal of construction is the only remedy for the present housing shortage in Illinois, according to a statement issued today by the Illinois Housing and Building Commission. The statement, according to Walter F. Dodd, secretary of the commission, was preliminary to a full report which Senator Kessinger of Aurora, chairman of the commission, will make to Gov. Small on Feb. 15.

The commission recommended that constitutional changes be made to permit exemption from taxation of new dwellings and possibly State or municipal aid in connection with the present housing situation.

Other recommendations the committee has decided to make follow: Revision of the zoning act of 1919, which permits municipalities to designate certain areas for business purposes and certain others for residential purposes; legislative investigation of combinations or agreements which restrict construction; passage of a law permitting cities to establish rental commissions; amendment of the landlord and tenant law so as to abolish the double penalty for holding over, and to require 60 instead of 30 days' notice to terminate month-by-month tenancies; amendment of the forcible entry and detainer act so as to prevent waiver of jury trial in such cases and so as to authorize courts to stay executions for six months or less; amendment of the practice act so as to avoid waiver of jury trial in cases relating to resident property.

The commission also indorsed the Calder-Nolan bill, now before Congress, providing a home loan banking system based primarily upon building and loan associations, but also permitting other institutions to rediscount their home mortgages under Federal supervision.

The commission has recommended a bill dealing with housing standards. On this subject the statement said:

"In recommending this bill, the commission had in mind that nothing should be done unnecessarily to increase the cost of building construction, and also that it is at the present time highly undesirable to permit a reduction in housing standard."

ACCURATE WEBSTER GROVES MAP ISSUED BY REALTY COMPANY

The Walter Scott Realty Co. is issuing an elaborate map of Webster Groves that shows all of the new streets, subdivisions, schools, churches and important public buildings and other changes recently made.

This company is said to be the first to begin the building of homes in University City and Webster Groves this season.

AUTO SHOW LEADS OKLAHOMA TUBE COMPANY TO LOCATE HERE

The United States Compression Inner Tube Co. has leased the large store at the southeast corner of Locust street and Channing avenue, according to C. M. McDonald, president of the C. M. McDonald Real Estate Co., which effected the arrangement. The lease resulted from the presence of Bert G. Goble of Tulsa, Okla., at the Auto Show in St. Louis last week, he being highly impressed with the city as a center of automobile trade.

NEWLY FORMED GLASS COMPANY LEASES HODIAMONT AV. BUILDING

The Missouri Glass Co. is announced as the lessee of a large building at 943-45 Hodiamont avenue, owned by the Stephens Coal Co. The concern which was recently organized by Sears & Prou, will conduct a general jobbing business in glass for the building trade.

The building is situated on the Wabash Railway tracks. The lease was effected by the Mercantile Trust Co. represented by George H. Streiff.

Alaskan Democrat Denied Seat.

By the Associated Press.

Predictions for This Year For St. Louis

The greatest Real Estate Boom in the history of any city in America.
A greater demand for houses.
A greater demand for building lots.
A greater demand for industrial locations.
A greater demand for business locations.

St. Louis is the only city in America that has not really felt any depression.

And we now are on the threshold of a year of wonderful opportunities.

We also predict the re-election of Mayor Henry Kiel.

HARRY E. PRETTYMAN

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUILD

Let us build your residence, apartment or store building now while every mechanic is out of work. When the season opens up prices will advance. We will gladly assist you in every way possible. Our architect will furnish you with sketches and plans free; we will lend you money to buy a lot or put up a building, at 6%. We have built over 2000 residences, flats, apartments, stores, office buildings and factories in St. Louis. References—United States Bank, Lafayette-Southside Bank.

Delmar Boulevard
We have several choice investment properties on this fast-growing street. The near completion of the beautiful viaduct across the Wabash tracks will add greatly to the value of Delmar property. The undersigned company has built 30 buildings on this street and have owners who are willing to build now for tenants. The properties we are offering on Delmar and on De Baliviere are the best purchases in the city today, and will not only bring good returns on money invested, but will grow in value. Delmar boulevard is the only business channel to the West End and with De Baliviere these two business streets are the only unrestricted streets in this great residential district. Many pieces of property are changing owners each week. Why not invest now before it is too late? Call and hear the story of the development of this district.

RESIDENCES FOR SALE

For Sale—Three Wonderful Maryland Terrace Homes (Reasonable Terms)
Also Some Wonderful Homesites at Special Midwinter Prices
(Lots will positively double in value.)

Maryland Terrace adjoins Washington University Campus, with the University car direct to its door. It is located on the due East and West Boulevards and is the very heart of St. Louis' Educational and Social center.

To you who are contemplating building, carefully consider Maryland Terrace.

It is the only large deep lot Park in St. Louis. Its boulevards are wide, extending east and west for nearly a mile.

Its homes are individual. No two are alike. Both the stucco and brick have been used, creating a beautiful picture.

Its homes sit back 62 feet from wide drives—affording wonderful perspective.

It is due west, where values are assured as long as Washington University remains its front door.

Special Midwinter Prices
Take advantage of the Company's special Midwinter prices, then build when you are ready. This kind of property is becoming alarmingly scarce and will soon be selling at very high prices. There are now a number of very artistic homes under construction. Please see them. You can take advantage of our special prices and secure choice location. It's an opportunity. Or, purchase one of the beautiful homes we now have for sale and ready for you to move into.

Drive to Pennsylvania Avenue (west boundary of campus). Maryland Terrace extends west on both Maryland and Westmoreland Drives.

J. P. RENNO FUNERAL TODAY

Veteran St. Charles Newspaper Man Was Reporter Before Civil War.

Funeral services for Joseph P. Renno, 82 years old, veteran newspaper reporter and publisher of St. Charles, will be held at 2 p. m. today from the home. Burial will be in Oak Grove Cemetery. Renno, who died Friday at St. Joseph's Hospital of gangrene poisoning, is survived by his wife, a son, and a daughter, Bertha.

Renno was a reporter in St. Louis for several years before the Civil War and served with the Union army. After the war he became a school teacher, and in 1898, together with his son, E. Lee Renno, bought the Cosmos-Monitor at St. Charles. He retired several years ago.

We especially thank Rev. Kramer for his kind words and consolation; the pallbearers for their services, the Simmons Hardware Co. and the Wacker-Helderle undertakers, and the many friends, for their beautiful floral offerings.
THE BEREAVED MOTHER, SISTER AND BROTHER. (c)

We wish to extend to our relatives and friends our sincere thanks and appreciation for their sympathy and condolence shown us during the sad hour of bereavement in the loss of our dear mother, Catherine Spann. Special thanks to the reverend clergy of Holy Name Parish for his kind words and to the German Beneficial Union, to the pallbearers and to the G. Boekers Undertaking Co. for the many courtesies shown us; also for the beautiful floral offerings.
THE BEREAVED SONS. (c)

We herewith extend our sincere and most heartfelt thanks to our relatives and friends for their kind sympathy extended, and most beautiful floral offerings tendered us during the loss, through death, of our beloved mother, Mary Simon. We also thank Father Reddin for the kind words of condolence, the pallbearers, for their kind assistance, and Donnelly for the excellent service rendered.
THE BEREAVED FAMILY, SIMON AND BURGESS.

We desire herewith to extend our sincere and most heartfelt thanks to our relatives and friends for their kind expressions of sympathy and the beautiful floral offerings tendered us during the hours of sadness occasioned by the loss through death of our dear mother, mother-in-law and grandmother, Mrs. Wilhelmina Carstens. We wish also to thank the Rev. Henry Drees for his prayers and kind words of consolation, the pallbearers for their assistance, and Ziegenhein Bros., undertakers, for the excellent services rendered.
THE CARSTENS FAMILY.

We wish to thank our many friends and relatives for their kindness and sympathy shown us in our late sad hour of bereavement in the loss of my beloved wife and our dear mother, Julia M. Sachse, and for their many beautiful floral offerings. We especially thank the Rev. K. L. Schneider for his kind and consoling words; the organist and soloist of Eden Seminary; the members of German Ladies' Verein; Saxonia Frauen Bund; Saxonia Frauen Unterstutzungs Bund; Ladies' Olympic Turnverein; the pallbearers and the undertaker, George L. Pleitsch for his kind and efficient service.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone. Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

A SUBSCRIBER.—It is customary for wives and sweethearts of Masons to wear their emblems.

H. F. S.—Plating of metal surfaces is accomplished in four different ways, by oxidation usually involving dipping in an acid bath; by electrodeposition, involving suspension in a metallic solution through which an electric current is passed; by applying a paste that is fixed, as by burning in; by pouring on molten plating metal and rolling. Zinc, tin, copper, brass, aluminum and many other metals may be plated. The light metal may be plated with almost any other metal, but copper is most commonly employed.

HARRY V.—Just what commercial phonograph records are made of is a secret. It is said that the ingredients are gathered from the four corners of the earth. But we know that lamp black, shellac and clay are part of the ingredients, and it is less a question of what the records are made of than the proportion of each ingredient. First comes the grinding, and when this is done the resultant mass of chocolate colored powder is fed into huge machines where it is heated and turned into a smooth, hot, moist mass of black stickiness. It is then thoroughly kneaded by these machines and then goes into a sort of "wringer," which rolls it out into a long thin strip, three or four feet wide and some 60 feet in length, marked into 10 and 12 inch squares. By the time it has reached the end of this roll it is sufficiently cooled to be handled and is broken into squares and sent to the record pressing plant. Here three or four at a time the squares are placed on a steel slab, steam heated, where it again becomes plastic, and after placing a label on a matrix (steel replica of the original recording) face downward, the operator lifts the square of softened material from the table, folds it and places it on top of the label. Then she places a label against another matrix in the upper jaw of the press and it closes down, is given a moment to cool, and when released gives forth the record. The rough edges are then broken off, polished and the record is inspected for blemishes. In some factories every hundredth record is heard, and if it is imperfect the entire preceding hundred are destroyed. If perfect the records are sent to the shipping department, where they are packed in boxes and sent to the wholesaler. In making the recording the sound passes directly into a horn and to a diaphragm similar to a commercial reproducer, to which is attached a steel point. This point traces a path in a disc of a soapy looking composition. After the recording is finished, this disc, technically known as a "place," is dusted with a chemical and placed in a copper electroplating bath, and the thin shell of copper resulting stripped from the "place" and backed with steel to give it firmness. This is the "master matrix." This matrix is used to press the "master record." This record is then treated as was the "place," except that a number of matrices are made from it, to be known as commercial matrices. Then the masters, both matrix and record, are filed away, never to be used again unless more commercial matrices are necessary. The latter are responsible for the shiny black records with which we are familiar, and which convey the music of the period to the public.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(Prepared by a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

E. J. D.—A bonus is taxable under the Government income law.

P. J. MILLER.—Consult a good patent attorney regarding the patent.

VINCENT.—You can deduct the cost of the repairs to the house from the profit on the income from the house.

MRS. B.—Tender the amount of the principal and interest on the mortgage to the agent and ask for the note. Then if he cannot get the note you need not pay further interest.

THANKS.—Any person who is asked to make an income tax return must do so, and if their income exceeds $1000 for the year they must make a return whether asked or not.

E. P. L.—If the man is married, 10 per cent of his salary can be garnished for payment of the grocery bill. A widow can be compelled to pay bills for groceries bought after the death of her husband.

OLD READER.—The state or county pays for the building of the hard roads through Illinois on the coast-to-coast trail, and collects the amount from the people by means of benefits assessed against the district.

A DAILY READER.—Generally the restrictions concerning the sale of any part of the property to negroes may be enforced. The length of time they continue enforcible depends upon the wording of the deed and upon other facts and circumstances.

F. WILDERMUTH.—The Chain of Rocks water works are in the city limits. Inquire at the city hall concerning the permanent city produce markets. The unwritten law usually means the right to protect one's home and the chastity of his family. The courts do not recognize any unwritten laws. Such enterprises as the one mentioned are not usually incorporated, but are mere voluntary associations.

A NEW MISSOURIAN.—The city detectives have no authority to open letters sent through the U. S. mail, before they are received by the person to whom they are addressed. Complain to the Postoffice Inspector at Eighth and Olive streets. March 15 is the last day in which to file the Federal income tax returns. The necessary forms can be obtained at the Collector's office. Missouri has a State income tax, which must be paid by March 1. The exemption of a married man is $2000. You are required to pay 1½ per cent.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

(Answers prepared by a physician of authority. Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given. Questions that cannot be publicly discussed, if showing evidences of sincerity, will be answered when accompanied by stamped envelope.)

H. H. H.—Simply taking 606 will not cure this disease. The remedy should be followed by systemic treatment.

A. B. C.—Such a condition indicates an irritable bladder, at the neck perhaps. The urine should be examined for some indication as to its being the cause of the irritation, also as to whether or not it indicates normal or abnormal kidneys. Treatment should be directed accordingly.

ARTHUR F. H.—If you are between 15 and 24 years of age, and are 5 feet 9 inches tall, you should weigh 150 pounds; if you are between 25 and 29, you should weigh 155 pounds. Diet and exercise and only actually necessary sleep will reduce weight. In eating avoid sugars, fats and starches, such as beans, peas and potatoes.

MRS. SMITHE.—If baldness is not occurring as an incident to age, the trouble is by reason of a diseased scalp condition which should be corrected. We do not know of anything that will prevent loss of hair where it is incident to age. Singeing the hair is claimed to retard hair loss, but we question the correctness of the claim. Thorough and persistent scalp massage, with strict cleanliness, is perhaps as great a help as anything.

ANTIQUES.—It is difficult to advise you, inasmuch as you seem to doubt whether or not the tissue removed was cancerous. If the glands in the vicinity are enlarged it would tend to confirm a cancerous diagnosis. A treatment by X-ray exposure would be of advantage, we think, in such a case, as any tissues likely involved are superficial.

FESTUS, MO.—Skin which is inclined to freckle must be protected from the sun's rays or freckles will result. The wearing of gloves and light brown and red veils are protective. As a rule agencies which destroy the upper skin layers and thus remove the freckles are not advisable to be self used on the face. The following ointment, however, we consider safe, and may be tried: 1 dram each of ammoniated mercury and bismuth subnitrate, 1 ounce rose water ointment. This should be applied at night. The various freckle removers sold in the shops contain, as a rule, bichloride of mercury, which, if strong, are inadvisable to be used, even in a physician's hands. For the very dark freckles touching with a fine needle connected with a galvanic battery is often of advantage. The zinc oxide, calamine lotion, dabbed on and let dry, is protective when the skin is exposed.

Mass Monday morning at St. Barbara's Church, February 14, 8 o'clock.

In loving memory of our dear son, Harold R. Lotier, who departed from this life one year ago, Feb. 13, 1920.
Sad and sudden was the call,
For our dear son, loved by all;
We little thought that on that day,
He would be called so far away.
God took him home; He knew best,
May God grant him eternal rest.
Sadly missed by
FATHER AND MOTHER.

In loving remembrance of our dear son and brother, Ralph Stumpf, who departed this life Feb. 13th, 1920. The month of Feb. again is here. To us the saddest of the year, because it took from us away a dear one just a year today. His loving heart is now at rest. God took him home, when he thought best. When we are done with toil and care we hope to meet our dear boy there. Sadly missed by parents, sister and brother, and all who loved him. (c)

In memory of Elsie Meinhardt, who departed this life Feb. 11, 1920.
A loving wife, true and kind,
No friend on earth like her I find.
God called her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts she lingers still.
For all of us she did her best;
May God grant her eternal rest.
Sadly missed by her
HUSBAND AND SON, MOTHER AND FATHER.

In loving memory of our darling son, Arthur Pahl, who departed this life three years ago, Feb. 14, 1918.
Three years have passed, our hearts still sore,
As time rolls on, we miss him more.
So often do we go to his grave,
Lingering there and trying to be brave,
But, oh! 'tis hard to bear,
To go away and leave him there.
Sadly missed by his FATHER AND MOTHER.

IN MEMORIAM.

In sweetest remembrance of Dr. Clarence E. Garrell, who passed over Feb. 15, 1920.
With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand
He has wandered into an unknown land,
And we who yearn for the old-time step and the glad return,
Think of him faring on, as dear
In the love of there as the love of here.
WIFE AND SON, PARENTS AND SISTER.

In loving memory of our father, father-in-law, brother-in-law and grandfather, George Singleton.
A loving father from us is gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
Time goes on, it will not stay;
The grief we feel since that sad day.
For all of us he did his best;
May God grant him eternal rest.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Julia Kauffman, who departed this life two years ago, Feb. 9, 1919.
Time goes on; it will not stay,
The grief we feel since that sad day,
For all of us she did her best,
May God grant her eternal rest.
Sadly missed by
HER CHILDREN AND ALL WHO KNEW HER.

In memory of Mr. Louis Sanders, who died one year ago, Feb. 11, 1920.
A year ago he passed away,
Our husband, father, family stay,
We miss him as the days go by,
But his presence still seems ever nigh,
To bless us and to help us, too,
For he was ever good and true.
So his memory with us every stays,
A joy, a blessing, all our days.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In loving memory of my dear husband, John Riess:
It is one year since you left me,
And I miss you more and more;
My heart is filled with sadness
For the smile I see no more.
You are gone but not forgotten,
Nor shall you ever be;
As long as life and memory last
I shall remember thee.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In sad and loving memory of our dear mother, who left us Feb. 10, 1918.
Dear little mother, we miss you so all through the day where'er we go,
All through the night, how long it seems, for no mother to wake us out of our dreams.
We miss you through all the weary hours; we miss you as others miss the sunshine and flowers;
Daytime and nighttime, where'er we go, dear mother, we miss you so.
Sadly missed by
CHILDREN.

In loving memory of my dear wife and mother, Mamie Reinhardt (nee Hacker), who departed this life one year ago, Feb. 11, 1920.
It is one year ago you left us,
And we miss you more and more;
Our hearts are filled with sadness
For the smile we see no more.
You are gone but not forgotten,
Nor shall you ever be,
As long as life and memory last
We shall always remember thee.
Sadly missed and never forgotten by
HUSBAND AND DAUGHTER.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Helen Lammers, who died Feb. 18, 1920.
Just one year ago you left us;
How we miss you, mother, dear,
And remember all your kindness
As we drop a silent tear.
We miss your gentle footsteps,
We miss you everywhere,
Home is not what it used to be,
Since you are not there.
For all of us you did your best,
May God grant you eternal rest!
Sadly missed by
CHILDREN.
Requiem mass at St. Francis de Sales Church, Friday, Feb. 18, at 8 a. m.

In sweet and loving memory of Blanchie Laughlin, who left us one year ago, Feb. 11, 1920, age 10 years:
A shadow fell upon our life
When death came and took our darling Blanchie away
From earthly care and pain.
But some day our eyes shall see
The face we love so well;
Our hands shall press her's
And never say farewell.
We miss her every hour and day,
Daytime or nighttime, wherever we go,
Dear little Blanchie, we miss her so.
Sadly missed by parents, aunt and grandma, and all who loved her. (c)

In memory of our dear son and brother, Corporal Clarence Engelbach, who died in France, Feb. 12, 1919, 138th Missouri Infantry, Thirty-fifth Division Supply Co., where he bravely died for his country:
An American soldier true,
Buried beneath the Red, White and Blue.
No more your kind, loving faith
Shall light the gloom of home.
Yet sweet the thought that we shall meet
When we cease to roam.
But our love for him who sleeps
Will never fade away.
Sadly missed by
PARENTS, BROTHERS AND SISTERS. (c)

In loving memory of our dear mother, Charlotte Brinkmeyer, who departed this life Feb. 10, 1920.
A shadow fell upon our lives
When Death, the Reaper, came,
And took our dear mother
Away from earthly care and pain.
In silence you bore,
Till God called you home
To suffer no more.
But some day our eyes shall meet
The face we loved so well;
Our hand shall press in here
And never say farewell.
Sadly missed by her
DAUGHTER, MRS. LINDA PABST, AND HER SONS, LOUIS AND WILLIAM BRINKMEYER.

In memory of our darling daughter, Malinda Schaumann, who departed Feb. 15, 1919:
A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
A loving daughter, true and kind,
No friend like her on earth we'll find;
God called her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts she lingers still.
By all of us she did her best;
May God grant her eternal rest.
Sadly missed by
HEART-BROKEN PARENTS, BROTHERS, DAUGHTER AND SWEETHEART.

In memory of my dear husband and father, Nicholas Schnell, who passed away February 10, 1919:
The month of February is here again, the saddest of the year,
Took away my dear husband and father from all his earthly care.
You did your part and did it well,
God took you home where the angels dwell.
We saw you suffer, we saw you fade away,
We heard you pant for breath, we saw upon your sunken cheeks the fatal sign of death.
Surrounded by friends we are lonesome, in the midst of our pleasure we are blue.
A smile on our face, still a heart ache,
Aching and longing for you.
Sadly missed by WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In sweet memory of our darling son, Frederick J. Irvin, who passed away one year ago, Feb. 11, 1920, at the age of 4 years:
"God wanted him here, where His little ones meet,"
Said the children up in Heaven.
"He shall play with us in the golden street!
He had grown too fair, he had grown too sweet
For the earth we used to live in."
So the King called down from the angels' dome,
"My little darling, arise and come
To the place prepared in thy Father's home,
The home that My children live in."
Sadly missed by his broken-hearted parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Irvin, sisters, grandparents, aunts, uncles and cousins.

WE WANT MEN

Who are thinking seriously about their future. To such men we will reveal a special plan of accident insurance work which creates a permanent independent income separate from and in addition to regular commissions. Men within two to three years are already drawing $400 to $600 per month each in these separate independent incomes besides their regular commissions. Our policy is so absolutely new, clean and different that you will take keen satisfaction in selling it to high-grade business and professional men. We pay renewal commissions continuously, even should you leave our service, and to your family or estate in event of your death. Our system and service are so extraordinary that men with selling ability succeed notably even if without insurance experience; while experienced insurance men find our line superior to any other. For 5 Store Executives

There is an exceptional opportunity in our organization for five men who know retail store operation, as sales service representatives. These men will sell Lamson equipment by selling service—by thoroughly analyzing methods and equipment in use and advising store managers how Lamson equipment will benefit them.

As this work will take a man to the heads of large department stores, a knowledge of department store problems from the standpoint of the owner or manager is more important than sales experience or technical knowledge of store equipment.

We particularly want men thirty years of age or over who are looking for wider opportunities. Please give complete outline of business experience in first letter, which will be held in the strictest confidence.

THE LAMSON COMPANY,
100 Boylston St.,
Boston, Mass.

SALESMEN WANTED.

Do you want to establish yourself with what practical, influential men declare one of the largest propositions in America, one which will soon revolutionize a certain industry? Local company now manufacturing and marketing internationally a labor-saving machine without competition and for which a demand has already been created, desires the services of reliable, industrious men to assist in building their organization; please give complete data as to age, class of business at present or last engaged in and your duties; each applicant whose letter indicates his adaptability to our line will be granted an interview. Box A-281, Post-Dispatch. (c)

TRAVELING SALESMAN WANTED

By large manufacturer to sell sash and doors; not necessary to know the line, but should have experience in selling some line of building material, paints or glass to the retail lumber dealer. Useless to apply unless you are a live wire willing to work hard and can show a successful sales record. Address, giving age, experience, references and salary wanted. Box N-358, P.-D.

SALES REPRESENTATIVE

HIGH-GRADE MAN FOR MONEY-MAKING PROPOSITION IN ST. LOUIS TERRITORY.

We require immediately a man used to making big money. The man we want is a high-powered salesman himself, who can organize others to sell for him. The proposition we have will match up to such a man's ability. We make an adjustable rain and draft proof metal ventilator which assures an every-minute supply of fresh air for living rooms, offices, factories, schools, sleeping quarters and bedrooms. Every residence, office, school and hospital is a prospect for several. A sample is easily carried and quickly demonstrated—and a demonstration clinches the sale. Show us that you are qualified to represent us and we will convince you that we have the best money maker up to date. Write now for territory reservation. Quick action is necessary. PRAIRIE METAL CRAFTSMEN, Inc., Eureka, Ill.

A RECORD OF EARNING THAT MAY INTEREST YOU IF YOU WANT MORE MONEY

One of our new salesmen, C. E. Ammann, left our local factory less than 30 days ago and his commission earnings selling our device reached $1581 by the last day of January. We pay our men better than $200 on each sale. "I am after five more orders this week," writes Mr. Ammann, who only a few weeks ago never dreamed of being on the road selling. Plenty of other new men have cleaned up and, mind you, at a time when almost all lines were complaining of sluggish business. The reason is easy—merchants want the very thing we have because of the profit it nets them and because they get it on the easiest deferred payment plan in the world. We can use five or six more men, and if we place you in a district, we guarantee you commission on everything sold there whether you handle the deals or not. We also will give you a most thorough training before we start you out, and furthermore, can show nearly half total sales of last year, with force of 185 men, was sold on advertising leads. The strange thing about our wonderful proposition is that a large number of our men came to us without sales experience. Some were office men, professional men, but all were men who were not afraid to work. If you want to earn more money this year investigate us. Our Mr. Hough will be at the American Hotel Monday and Tuesday between 9 and 4. Out-of-town applicants, write. No one under 24 years needs apply. (c)

SALESMEN WANTED

BUSINESS GETTERS WANTED

You Can Earn $150 a Week

You can do it honestly, legitimately, and render remarkable service to your clients. St. Louis is just where Detroit was a few years ago. It is just beginning to grow. Just as Detroit added 300,000 to its population within a few years, so St. Louis will add 300,000 to its population in just a few years.

We, in the subdivision business, have the same opportunity that Detroit realty men then had. Salesmen there literally made thousands each year, as subdivision salesmen here are making and will make thousands each year in St. Louis.

Good vacant ground is right now increasing rapidly in value. It will continue to make money for owners. Everyone (all of us) should buy and control every good lot we possibly can. The incoming population will make the good lots valuable.

We own a million dollars of the best West End University City property, where all street improvements are made and paid for, over which the city is crowding. We also own two subdivisions in the very heart of the city's great industrial district at Natural Bridge and Union.

Today, you can join one of the finest selling forces in the city. We furnish every help possible—furnish cars to show properties, and men to close deals. Earn big money, not to spend more, but to save more. You will need lots of good things later, a home, a machine. You will want to see the world. How can you do it where you are now working? Come in and see us. Talk it over. If you cannot come in during the day, see our Sales Manager Monday evening.

WE are "fighting" your battles of "high prices." "Our cut-prices of clothing" is a regular "knockout." Don't play the old "beaten paths" of high prices. "We are calling you." What we mean, "the place to buy clothes" 40 per cent to 60 per cent savings. "Someone" in the clothing business "is due for a fine lacing now." The crash in prices is here. "We say" we are rocking the boat of high prices. We will sell our present "stock of clothing at cost," to start the new year at new year prices. What this means to you: $14.98, $16.98, $19.98, $24.98, $27.98 and $29.98 will buy a suit or overcoat; 490 in the lot; former prices $25 to $55. "We are with you" for 10 years; have led the way fighting for low prices, assisting thousands to "help keep up that prosperous appearance," which "means everything today," by dressing them up at little or no cost. We have saved thousands of dollars for the clothes-buying public. "We're out of the high-rent district." "What the Drummers' Sample Clothes Shop means to you." These fine garments are made by the manufacturers for display or modeling purposes for traveling salesmen; they are made much better than the regular goods; after they show them off we buy them at a big discount; we give you the benefit of our immense buying capacity; this policy enables us to save you money. All we ask you is to "go shopping around" first and come here last, and we will certainly get your "dough." "Buy more, pay less." Vandeventer, Market, Sarah, Manchester, Chouteau and all other lines transfer to our door. We again announce our "Trade-In Sale" Department. We will make you a liberal allowance on your old clothes for new ones. "Abrams," "The Place to Buy Clothes," [illegible] S. Vandeventer av., near Chouteau av.

YOU might be a "sport" by nature and a "gambler" by instinct, but, "Oh, boy," you sure get that (if you don't "weaken") "feeling" if you are "down and out." "We are on the trail of the Lonesome Bank Roll," at low-some prices. "The world's ways are changing," "Blue Laws, Protection and Everything." Change your system, boys. What we mean "change it": "Look the part." Don't go around looking "down and out." For 10 years we have "helped the under dog" to "keep his head above water and looking prosperous" at "all times;" we have driven "home" that "saving and prosperous looking habit" to thousands of people, "dressing them up" at little or no cost to them. Buy our uncalled-for clothes; "start anew;" we are "calling you." What you save when you spend your dough is your profit. Install the "Abrams System" of clothes buying and save. We have in "store" for you high-class suits; you can afford to wear two or three suits a season for the price of the customary one by purchasing our uncalled-for garments from our cleaning department; garments are tailor-made and from the best manufacturers; $10 to $20. Can you wear 34, 36, 40, 46 to 50 sizes? Also English and plain models. Vests, 50c; pants, $2 to $3.95; coats, $5 to $10; uncalled-for Stetson hats, 95c to $1.50. Open Sundays until 6 p. m. Abrams, Cleaners and Dyers, 926 S. Vandeventer, near Chouteau. Mail orders filled. Both phones.

Boston Terrier Breeders, Attention!

One year ago today, there was born a litter of puppies in the city of East St. Louis, and it was but a short time, when all but one had passed on to the happy hunting grounds.

Mr. Dave Neenan, then the owner of this puppy, looked upon him wondering whether or not he could uphold the honors of the Innisfall Kennels, not thinking that this same puppy, before he was a year old, would carry away the highest honors at a great show like the Great Western Specialty Show of Chicago.

Dogs that had seen their first light in the North, South, East or West. Dogs that were almost champions, went down to defeat before this dog, as he went from class to class.

In the dog world, a dog is considered a puppy until he is a year old, as before that time he has not fully developed. At the age of only seven and one half months, still having almost five months of puppyhood before him, he was exhibited at the Ladies' Boston Terrier Specialty Show of St. Louis. What were to be the results of this puppy entered against fully matured dogs in his classes? He won the highest honors in five classes, winning first puppy, first novice, first limit, first open and first green, also eight specials, including best green with 39 competing for this special.

The next show in which this dog was entered, was the Chicago show, and still this dog was under one year of age. What were to be the results this time, having the advantage of four months development since the St. Louis show.

He went through his classes like a veteran, from puppy to winners, many good dogs, some of them champions, going down to defeat before this puppy, as he won the following classes: First puppy, first limit, first open, first American, and then to winners, the highest honors in the show, receiving four points towards his championship.

Mr. George Heinlein of New York, judged at St. Louis, and Mr. A. E. Quaieff of Elmyra, N. Y., judged at Chicago.

Among the dogs defeated, were the following dogs from St. Louis: Simmon's Little Bustler, Thorpe's Tiny Teddy B, Headquarters Sergeant, and Wentworth's Sergeant Punch, and among some of the defeated Chicago dogs were: Normal King, recent reserve winners at St. Louis, Rosehome Old Rosebud, Henderson's Nifty Toss, Temptor, Bantam King Jr., and all other male dogs entered at the Chicago show.

Plegge's Warrior of Innisfail, and his noted sire, Evergreen of Innisfail, are now offered at public stud at the kennels of Mr. Dave Neenan, 510 N. 26th st., East St. Louis, Ill.

Stud fees: Plegge's Warrior of Innisfail, $15; Evergreen of Innisfail, $10.

This coming champion, Plegge's Warrior of Innisfail, may be seen today at the home of his owner, H. J. PLEGGE, 4249 Peck st., St. Louis, Mo.

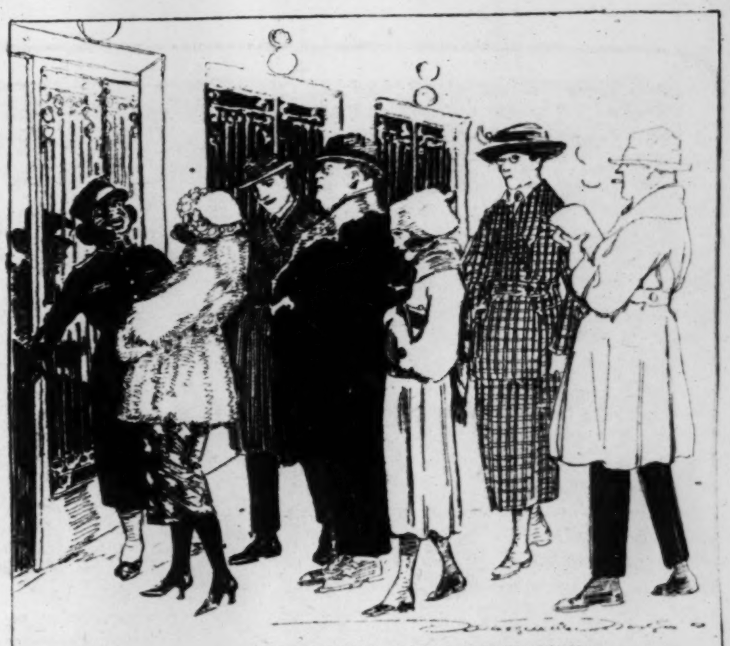
ST. VALENTINE'S HOUSE OF CARDS

A fantasy drawn for the Post-Dispatch by Richard Boix, Spanish caricaturist now in this country.

Aunt Susan Clardy, Type of Negro Mammy Developed in the Days "Befo' de Wah"

Former slave, who believes she is 100 years old, has all the characteristics that enshrined her sort in the hearts of so many of the Southern people—Once owned by the father of late Martin L. Clardy, she recalls both Mexican and Civil Wars



"NOW WHEN I GO INTO THE TALL BUILDINGS I SEE THE LADIES GOIN' TO WORK RIGHT ALONG WITH THE MEN. IT DON'T SEEM RIGHT."

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

THE old negro mammy is a type fast vanishing from the face of the earth. The characteristics which enshrine her in the memories of our Southern-born parents or grandparents, the exact position she occupied in the family, they have more and more difficulty in defining to the present generation. She was a loyal, humble, devoted servitor, they tell us, who, at the same time, commanded their devotion, respect and even reverence. An acknowledged slave who always "knew her place" and was first to regret a lapse from caste on the part of any of "her white folks." At the same time, she seems frequently to have been the one to whom the family turned and looked up to and deferred to in a crisis.

Before she has quite disappeared, let us have a look at one who is a most worthy exponent of her type, probably one of the oldest of the original pattern still extant, Aunt Susan Clardy.

Absolutely true to type remains Aunt Susan, unreconstructed, unaffected by the changes that have come to her race.

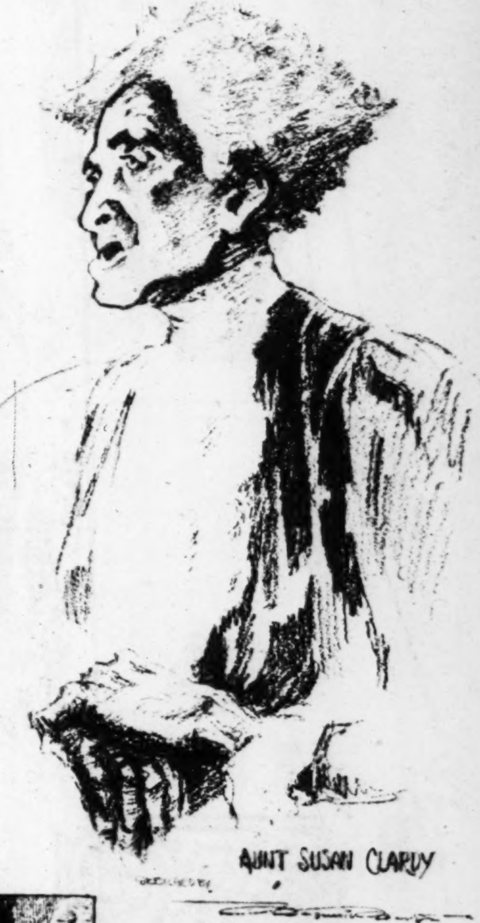
Born a slave, she does not know how old she is, but she recalls that when she was sold by Lawyer Bealt of Ste. Genevieve to the father of the late Martin L. Clardy, she was a woman-grown, while the boy who long afterward became vice president of the Missouri Pacific Railroad was then 9 years of age. And we now that he was 77 years old when he died in 1914. She knows that it was not long after her acquisition by the Clardys that she was married to Uncle Dick, who was the Old Master's bodyguard, and that she was then 25, "which was pretty old to be gettin' married." From all of which she guesses she is just about a hundred.

Events she recalls before fixing these mile stones would seem to corroborate her guess. Some time before the Mexican War she was taken to Texas by her original owners, the Gregoire family of Ste. Genevieve. Especially did a certain incident of this experience impress itself indelibly upon the superstitious negro mind.

"Rasmus Gregoire, the eldest son," she relates, "went to Texas. I don't know just where, but it was a way yander in Texas, where they was a fightin' Santa Ana. And after he had helped whoop old Peg Leg, as he was called, Rasmus decided he liked the place and sent for his folks to come on. So we all went away down the river to New Orleans and then we went on a river that ebbs and flows and we traveled in wagons and finally we got to where he was. It was a wild place and when we wasn't guardin' off Indians on one side we was quarrelin' with the Mexicans on the other. Old Peg Leg didn't stay subdued very long, leastwise his friends took up his quarrel with the folks that had decided to stay there because they liked the place, and one day there came word that all us white folks and niggers was goin' to be killed. Well, you know the only thing that saved us? We hid in a haunted town. It was an old town that had been there in ancient days. There was walls and buildings, but they was all petrified and nobody could interpret the words on the tombstones. The Mexicans was afraid to come there, because it was haunted ground."

She recalls, then, returning to Ste. Genevieve and recollects, admiringly, young Gregoire drilling a company in the streets preparatory to the war with Mexico, which was yet to come.

The Gregoire family went to Dubuque to await the outcome of this war. Aunt Susan became the property of Lawyer Beale, then of the Clardys. When young Master Martin Clardy brought home his bride, who was Miss Eugenia Frierson of Mississippi, Aunt Susan was given to them as a wedding present.



AUNT SUSAN CLARDY

"Well I remember my young mistress, how young and pretty and delicate she was and how helpless. They were very much in love, of course, and one day when young Master was ailing young Missus came into my kitchen sayin' she wanted to make him a cup of tea with her own hands. She reached into the can and filled a cup full of the tea and asked me if that would be enough to make one cup. That's all young ladies had to know about cookin' in those days."

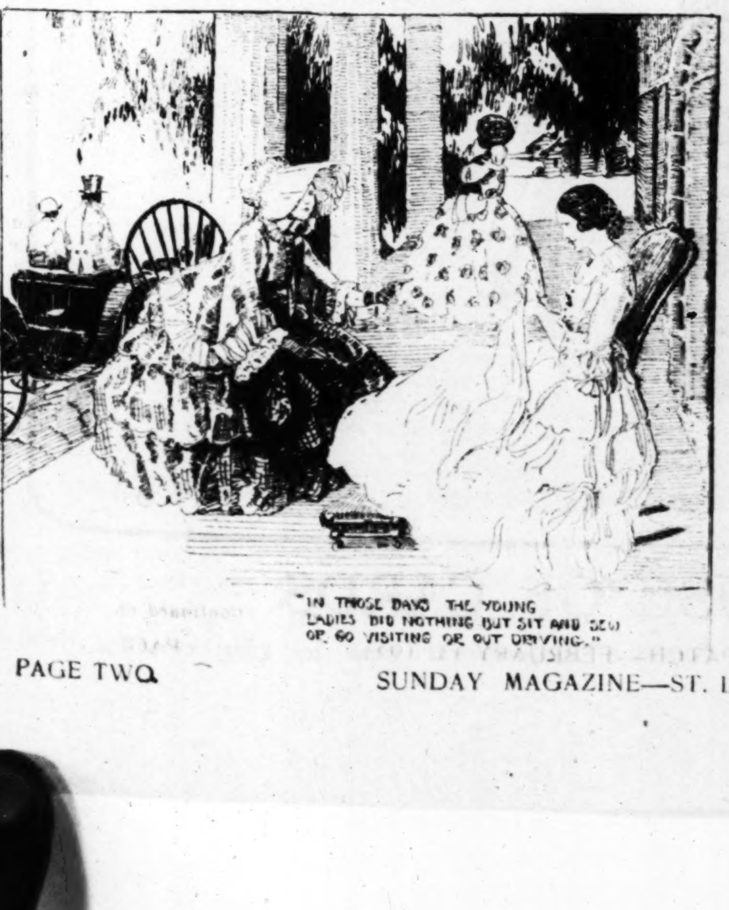
"Mistress Eugenie was Young Master's first wife," she explained. "His second wife was a Casey, daughter of Middleton Casey, who was fine folks, but wasn't used to us darkies' ways the same as if they had come from down South."

Asked who taught her to cook, she said it was old Mamselle Gregoire. "Sitting along side of her at a table when I was about knee high to a duck."

The Civil War brought more traveling for her to recount now with her nimble tongue.

"The first I heard about freeing the slaves was when Tom Benton came scourin' around, makin' speeches. Abram Lincoln took dinner at our house one day and Old Master had switches cut ready to drive him off, suspectin' he was a spy, puttin' devilment in the niggers' heads. Then I remember young Master Billie Clardy making his way through the blockade all the way from Virginia, where he was at the university, and organizin' the first company that was raised in De Soto.

"Old Master, by that time, was a-gatherin' his niggers and his fine stock together and sendin' us over into Arkansas, where we stayed about a year. We saw folks in that country that had never seen a stove. The Yankees were always comin' along persuading our niggers to run away. They took our Pomp and a fine, blooded Kentucky mare.



"IN THOSE DAYS THE YOUNG LADIES DID NOTHING BUT SIT AND SEW OR GO VISITING OR OUT DRIVING."

"I well remember when Gen. Ben McCulloch was killed. What? You don't know who Ben McCulloch was?" she exclaimed in astonishment at the ignorance of the present generation. "Well, honey, he was a great hero. He was just like Davy Crockett, and folks at the big houses was always glad to have him come and stay awhile and tell stories about the frontier places he and Davy Crockett had been to.

"It was a boy that killed McCulloch—shot him while he was sittin' at his own campfire. He was lightin' his pipe and had just brushed the smoke away when the boy leveled his rifle and fired. That was in Arkansas, not far from where we was.

"Maybe you don't know who the Valles were, either?" she queried. "I can remember when old Francis Valle was head man at Ste. Genevieve. And Vital Bogy. I cooked many a meal for Vital Bogy. And John Darby. Folks try to tell me now that Mr. Darby was never Mayor of St. Louis, but I know he was. He married a Wilkinson, who was a granddaughter of old Francis Valle. Oh, I knew all the big folks.

To test the accuracy of her memory, I looked up the name, John Darby, and found he was Mayor of St. Louis in 1835-37 and again in 1840, and Walter B. Stevens' history, recounting the achievements of those administrations, remarks: "Darby was a whole civic league in himself."

"It was Gen. Kitching who drove us out of Arkansas," she resumed.

"He was the first man I ever run from. We traveled till we were in Texas again, but it was another part of Texas. We went up the Red River to get there. It was awful hard times there. I remember once we paid a dollar for a needle. Us niggers stayed there until the war was over. Then when we heard the Yankees had won, we was scared. We thought we'd all be killed or else we'd starve.

"But d'rectly Old Master came and took us back to Farmington, but we didn't belong to him no more."

She sighed so profoundly that her interviewer asked: "You were glad to be free, weren't you?"

Gen. Bernhardi Sees Hope for New Germany in "THE WAR OF THE FUTURE"

Prussian militarist has written a book which astounds by its frankness in which he upholds secret diplomacy, duplicity with other nations, the development of the U-boat in secret and a readiness to wage war, in connection with Austria, when time is ripe, which he predicts will be soon :: ::

UNDETERRED by the present plight of Germany, Gen von Bernhardi, well-known Prussian militarist and author of those ante-bellum works, "Germany and the Next War" and "Modern War," has again broken into print with a book entitled "The War of the Future." Written ostensibly as a technical treatise on the lessons learned from the world struggle, the book actually anticipates a Germany again able to wage war and a definite program for hostilities is outlined.

The author has evidently learned nothing from happenings since 1914. The chapter dealing with politics is the keynote of the book. In this, he advocates the same treachery in diplomacy, the same duplicity in dealing with other countries, the use of intimidation and the waging of "preventive" wars that characterized the Potsdam militarists since their organization into a definite clique.

As a revelation of the true inwardness of the Prussian military mind, the book is startling or ludicrous, as the reader views it. It has been translated by T. A. Holt and is published by D. Appleton & Co., New York.

"THERE is a certain beautiful dream of nations living in peace side by side, voluntarily imposing restraints upon themselves and recognizing their obligation to have regard for the just needs and wishes of other states. It is a dream in which the peoples which are morally and intellectually the strongest will be in a position to assert themselves as the arbiters of culture, even though such a thing is impossible without a more or less autocratic authority which is incompatible with equal rights.

"But it is none the less a dream only. As long as men remain men, force in its widest sense will determine the political and cultural importance of states. In the last resort it is the foundation of all intellectual and moral progress."

In these words Gen. Bernhardi, who for years has preached the doctrine of war as a panacea for all of Germany's ills, summarizes his views formed after the late world struggle and introduces a book that for amazing contradictions occupies a place by itself.

Commencing with the calm statement that Germany, before the war, pursued a policy of peace at any price, and that it walked blindly into a trap its enemies had laid for it, only to find itself in a war for which the whole world except Prussia had prepared for years, his enthusiasm carries him away to such an extent that he forgets his own statements and admits, in his chapter on "Politics and Economics" that Germany knew the war was coming and prepared for it by secret alliances.

He does not go so far as to openly admit that Germany started the war. But his description in this same chapter of the various steps Germany took shows clearly the intentions of the nation.

In not a single respect does he withdraw from the policy he advocated before the war. He does not deprecate the lying to friendly nations and the intimidation of smaller ones. He only regrets that the German militarists and diplomats did not make their job complete. He advocates still more treachery and "preventive" wars as a means whereby a rehabilitated Germany may once more assert itself.

He does not use vague statements or simply let the reader draw inferences as to what he may mean. Bernhardi has at least the merit of frankness. He believes that the people ought to be kept under complete control of an autocratic class, which will attend to all functions of government, which is a thing, he believes, with which the people as a whole have no concern.

In fact, an exact quotation of his writing on the matter of secret diplomacy, which President Wilson insisted must be abolished, and on the submissive and bovine part the people are expected to play in his scheme for ordering affairs, will give a perfect keynote to his entire book.

On the matter of secret diplomacy he writes:

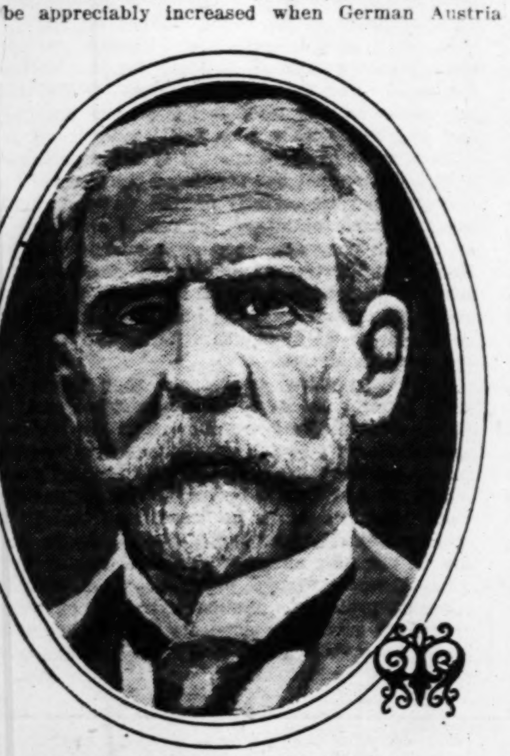
"It is simply foolish to require that diplomacy must always be carried on with all the cards on the table. One might just as well ask that the strategist should always tell the enemy beforehand what are his intentions in his operations." And again: "War is nothing but the continuation of diplomacy by other methods. It is always purely a question of weighing the real or apparent resources (both our own and those of the adversary), trying to deceive our opponent or spoiling his game and winning our own by threatening war or unexpectedly beginning it. In this game there is no room for generosity, and such an emotion would, indeed, be a crime against the nation."

As for democracy, he so writes about the German people:

"Nor must there be any indulgence in delusions with regard to domestic policy. We must know for certain what can be expected from our own people and what is beyond their powers. We must be quite certain that the great mass can never realize logically what the common welfare means; that it is certainly capable of a momentary enthusiasm for some ideal, but is never able to pursue that ideal with resolution and energy; that it is quite ready to make certain sacrifices, but, generally speaking, has its eye on material well being only. The statesman who is working for the welfare of the whole body politic is not understood by the masses and in some circumstances is therefore bound to use force to carry through his plans."

Having thus stated himself clearly, he proceeds to elaborate his ideas of what Germany must do. He confidently expects another war and thinks Germany will be a factor. In a conclusion, in which he summarizes the situation, he says, evidently with the intent of cheering up those minded like himself:

"I know that a nation of 70,000,000, a number which can be appreciably increased when German Austria joins us, cannot be oppressed forever or reduced to the status of a race of slaves. I know that there will be a change in the political sphere also, that there will come a moment—and that soon—when we shall be needed on one side or the other and that this moment will be favorable for our resurrection."



GEN. VON BERNHARDI.

These selections clearly show the ideals of the book. For a masterpiece of perverted reasoning, Chapter VI, entitled "The Influence of Politics and Economics" deserves a place of its own in literature. Incidentally, it shows that self-hypnotism is entirely possible. For, in a moral preamble, he writes, speaking of the late war:

"Thus, in the judgment of history, we shall have the glory of having pursued an absolutely honorable policy and carried out the ethical teaching of Christianity."

He fails to state wherein the Belgian invasion helped to carry out these ethics, but goes on to say that policy never attains its end by itself alone, but only because it has force behind it. It can sometimes deceive an antagonist as to strength or can convince him that the question is not worth fighting about. This, he holds, is the true end of diplomacy.

"The main function of diplomacy is to produce or maintain that deception while securing one's own interests," he states as an axiom.

In italics, to emphasize the point, he writes: "In actual fact, it (diplomacy) can attain its ends only when it has the backing of a force of which the enemy state is afraid."

Evidently believing that this cold-blooded statement about striving for superiority in deception may shock even some of his German readers, he condones it as follows:

"That is the general principle and only superficially immoral. Of course, it aims primarily either at hoodwinking an adversary or a preventive war, but both are justified. The necessary deception can be secured without a single untrue statement being made. That is just where the art of diplomacy comes in. Prince Bismarck was an adept in this art. He is even now without a peer in the realm of great diplomats and no one could possibly call his actions immoral. The preventive war is also justified, because the sacrifices which are exacted by a war which was inevitable because the adversary intended it, are nothing compared with those which will have to be made if such a war is lost."

"Preventive" wars, as his title conveys, are wars directed against any and every country that seems to be gaining strength enough to be a rival to Germany. The fact that Bismarck deprecated such causeless wars in his old age is thus pityingly commented on by Bernhardi:

"It is true that in his 'Gedanken und Erringerungen,' Prince Bismarck declared himself against preventive wars. On the other hand, he wrote this book in his old age and his own actions were inconsistent with that expression of opinion. Indeed, his real greatness lies in the contrast. We must not, therefore, be afraid of distinguishing between the aging Bismarck and the man of action. It is the deeds of the latter only which are beacons for the great man's successors."

Of course, Frederick the Great has been drawn in. No Teutonic work is complete without some admiring references to his qualities. So Frederick is quoted approvingly as follows:

"Negotiations without arms are like notes without instruments." He is undoubtedly right, Bernhardi sagely adds, proceeding: "Thus the diplomatic game always turns on real power or the appearance of power and he who thinks that success can be secured by civic ideals will be bitterly deceived sooner or later."

Turning to practical preparations for the next war, he says provision must be made for the necessary food supplies and the raw materials. The U-boat must be developed to the highest pitch of capacity, notwithstanding present peace conditions. He shows that this is possible by calling attention to the fact that when Germany in 1806 had solemnly promised Napoleon to keep an army of but 40,000 men as a condition of peace, 200,000 men were actually trained under the eyes of the French garrisons.

He comments on the fact that many German ships in foreign waters did not have sufficient warning of the inception of the late war and urges that precautions be taken to prevent such a mistake again. He gives his country a "power of good advice" on the need of precautions.

"Preliminary work must begin early if the preparations for war are not to be noticed by the enemy. Thus, we must not be afraid of making secret preparations for war or of beginning it ourselves."

It would be interesting to know whether the author endeavors to practice his own ideas of secret diplomacy in some portions of his work for the astounding contradictions in his statements are manifest throughout. In the introduction, for instance, he discusses where Germany fell short in certain physical necessities and material for war. He says on this point:

"That heavy artillery would play a more important role was expected and within certain limits, allowed for. But we did not realize how great that role would be. The strength of fortresses was utterly exaggerated, because the power of the hostile artillery was underestimated. Nor had we foreseen what enormous masses of combatants would have to be called up for the world war."

This clearly shows Germany anticipated the struggle. Yet, in a few more lines he writes: "The policy of peace at any price which we pursued and our wholly baseless confidence that we should be allowed to pursue it, had blinded the eyes of our leading statesmen."

Then, in his chapters on the technique of the war, he calmly describes the siege guns and howitzers prepared to reduce the forts of Belgium and other friendly nations—guns which were manufactured in secret and whose existence was not known to the world

"RAMMED EARTH" USED HERE SUCCESSFULLY FOR WALLS OF BUILDING

Just the dirt from excavation, without binder or any other substance added, is material for new structure at the David Ranken Jr. School of Mechanical Trades—St. Louis Architect says experiment has convinced him that earth may be successfully used for erecting small dwellings, farm buildings and garden walls :: :: ::

JUST a year ago the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine published an article by Mr. Young of the St. Louis architectural firm of Eames & Young, in which he discussed the possibilities of rammed earth as a building material. The acute housing situation, together with the heavy expense of construction work, made the article a timely one. At that time Mr. Young mentioned the adobe buildings so numerous in the Southwestern states, and the use of "pise" or "cob" in housing projects in England. In France, houses of "pise" construction are sometimes built to a height of two and three stories. "Pise" is compressed earth, mixed with straw or hay. Mr. Young suggested that rammed earth be given a practical trial in St. Louis, and his second article, which appears on this page, tells about the first structure built in St. Louis of that material. The experiment has convinced him that rammed earth may be used successfully for the walls of small dwellings and farm buildings and for garden walls.

By THOMAS CRANE YOUNG.

IN VIEW of the fact that economic conditions have for the present combined to block all manner of construction, any proposed addition to the list of building material which may become generally available should receive thoughtful consideration. No known material is more equably distributed by nature over the surface of the globe than common earth, but few people now believe that in its crude state it can be made of practicable use for building purposes. Modern science has ignored the subject and the modern house builder has made no use of it whatever, perhaps because manufactured products have been easy to get and cheap. Earth building is a forgotten art, yet history tells of its use, extending far back into the early centuries of civilization. In our day, war has forced back again into modern life many of the conditions and cruder customs usual only in a more primitive social state, and so, perhaps, a revival of this ancient practice may prove of use in solving some of our new and pressing housing problems.

Our own country contains (mostly in the Western states) many picturesque examples of earth building, or "adobe," made from puddled clay and straw, molded into blocks and dried in the sun; these blocks are then laid in the wall like ordinary masonry. Usually "adobe" walls are covered by a protective coat of plaster, although frequently they may be seen standing and useful without covering of any kind.

About one year ago an article appeared in an English illustrated journal called The Sphere, which contained a description of "pise de terre" masonry and claimed that substantial walls could be built by simply ramming nearly dry earth between two forms made of boards. These forms were described as of standard size, about 10 feet long and three feet wide, and when tamped full the forms could then be moved along horizontally and another section of wall laid in the same manner. Other courses could be laid by placing the same form on top of that part of the wall already built, and the process continued.

Since the publication of an article on earth walls in the Literary Digest some months ago, very many letters have been received expressing interest in the subject and for the most part earnestly requesting further information. One writer from Foochow, China, is however, entirely skeptical as to the value of earth for building. He states that "mud" hovels are common in many parts of China, but they are uniformly unsanitary and insecure when subject to heavy rains or floods. In this he is no doubt quite correct, but our material is not "mud," and it must be remembered that similar conditions exist frequently when more expensive materials are used. Another, calling himself an "agricultural missionary," writing from Portuguese South Africa, says that if a practical way of building with earth could be found, it would solve one of their most serious problems. Similar letters have come from Canada, Mexico and many parts of the United States, all tending to show a very general desire for simpler and less costly methods of building than those commonly in use.

However, it seemed highly improbable that earth could be compacted by hand sufficiently to stand in a wall until the result of a few experiments had been obtained, made with dry earth tamped into "briquette" form, and tested in the manner customarily used in testing cement. These specimens developed a tensile strength of from 80 pounds to 125 pounds per square inch, after six days' seasoning in the form. A test for compression developed a strength of 125 pounds per square inch. Later on, a small "cube" of the earth used in the little building just erected, failed under compression at 473 pounds per square inch, after 42 hours' seasoning.

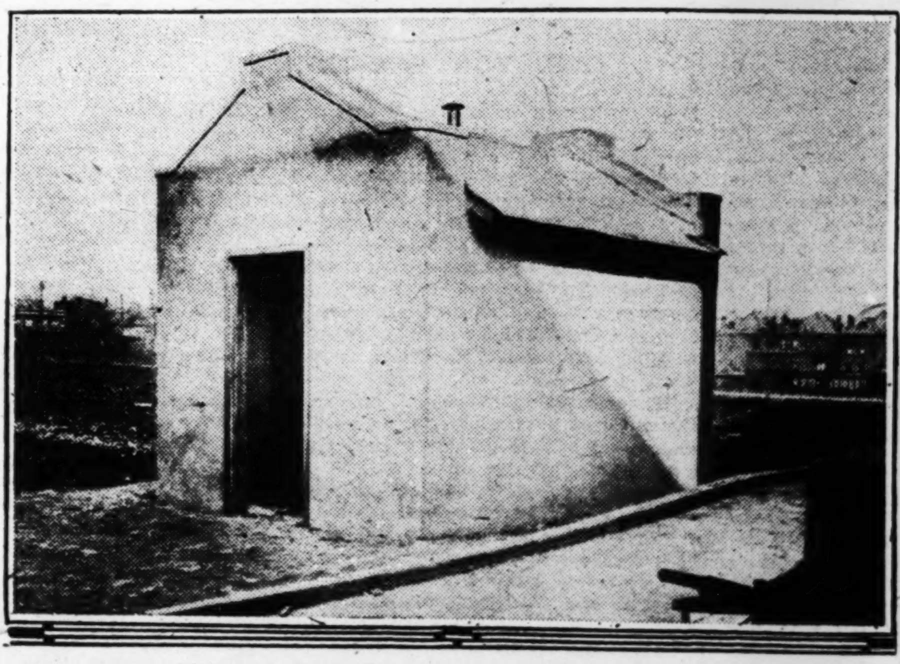
Of course, these few tests are of no scientific value, but may serve, perhaps, to indicate the desirability of a more thorough investigation of the physical properties of compressed earth by qualified experts.

But if such walls as these had been successfully used at one time, they could be in another, and the evidence seemed to justify the making of an experiment in actual construction at the first opportunity. Fortunately, there was little difficulty in persuading the superintendent of the David Ranken Jr. School of Mechanical Trades to permit the attempt to erect with earth masonry a small building for the storage of oil and gasoline on the school premises. While this building was to be only 10x13 feet in plan, it must be roofed and provided with a door and window, and so would possess most of the elements of a larger house.

This experiment has convinced the author that earth may be used successfully for the walls of small dwellings, for farm buildings, for fences and garden walls, or similar purposes—possibly for army cantonments. But the application of this or any new system of construction to actual use will no doubt entail considerable preliminary study of building processes and may require some slight modification of the usual forms of architectural details.

There are many advantages that would follow a more general use of earth construction, not the least of which would be a diminution in our enormous annual waste by fire and a supplementary saving in the consumption of new lumber—the country's supply of which, we are told, is becoming rapidly depleted. Besides, there would be no waste like that in concrete construction, for the same wooden forms or boxing can be used for an indefinite time on any building.

Earth walls, besides being fireproof, afford a very efficient protection against extremes of temperature and there may be opportunity for the inventor in devising an equally cheap and effective construction for floors and roof.



New storage building at David Ranken Jr. School, the walls of which are made of "rammed earth," without any binder.

One of our most serious problems is that of transportation, which constitutes a large factor in the cost of building. Some of this expense is, of course, unavoidable, because certain products such as iron pipe, plumbing fixtures, glass, etc., must be used in any case. But with earth already on the premises substituted for other manufactured materials used in walls, a large part of the transportation charges would be eliminated.

The possibility of improved artistry in earth building seems unlimited. The thicker walls permit an effect of stability now absent in most of our house designs, particularly of the cheaper sort and a knowing use of color on the plaster covering might give distinction to a simple building at little cost. The use of plastic decoration with color added, suggests the possibility of an architectural development which might become distinctively American.

While there may exist at present prejudice against the use of earth as a material fit only for the dwellings of the very poor, it seems possible that further study by architects and engineers might develop a system of building altogether satisfactory from the standpoint of cost, construction, sanitation and esthetics.

The writer feels that a single attempt at earth building has not furnished sufficient data for the preparation of a real specification, but perhaps a few hints derived also from such literature as was available may be useful to anyone wishing to undertake a similar experiment.

While in this case a foundation of concrete extending about eight inches above the surface of the ground was used, it is probable that an earth foundation would answer as well if thoroughly protected by a waterproof coating.

The earth used in building the walls was obtained by grading the site and from the foundation trenches. The best results were obtained with a mixture of stiff yellow clay and top soil in the proportion approximately of one part clay to two parts loam.

The earth should be free from roots, twigs or vegetable substances and should contain no lumps of clay or gravel larger than will pass through a 1 1-4-inch mesh screen. In tamping the gables, we used earth sifted through a one-fourth inch mesh screen, and obtained a smoother wall. When placed in the form the earth should be only slightly damp, and until used it should be protected from rain by a shed, tarpaulin or other means; it should be placed in the forms in thin layers, not more than four inches thick, pressed down with the feet and rammed until solid, with a wooden rammer, and so on, until the boxing is filled. The end of each section of wall should be tamped to a slope, which will form the joint with the next one added horizontally; joints in successive courses should not fall over those in the lower course. Great force is not needed in tamping; a quick, sharp stroke is the more effective. Strokes should not be in unison. Wood blocks may be placed in the boxing and tamped into the earth, to serve as grounds for attachment of frames, wainscoting, etc. If the top of one course is dry when a second course is laid, it should be slightly sprinkled with water to insure adhesion.

The form, or boxing, used is quite simple and is easily handled. The lower ties are first placed at the proper distances on the wall, then the side pieces are lifted on and the top yoke quickly pressed into place. The steel plates on the yoke are slotted and "halved" with the iron lugs screwed to side pieces and hold the top of the form rigidly in place. A block screwed to the top of the tie, holds the lower part of the boxing on one side and a similar block on the other end of the tie is hinged in order to prevent obstruction on extracting the tie from the wall. For the same purpose the tie is tapered and made in two parts, wedged apart at one end. On removing the wedge, the parts come together sufficiently to permit easier passage of the tie through the hole.

No doubt this device may be improved. Taking out the ties is the only difficult part of the whole process. When the wall is completed, the holes may easily be filled with dry earth, tamped in with a hammer or mallet, a little water being first sprinkled around the edges of the hole. Small defects arising from accidents may be repaired in the same way.

No doubt, with a suitable apparatus and more experienced labor, much

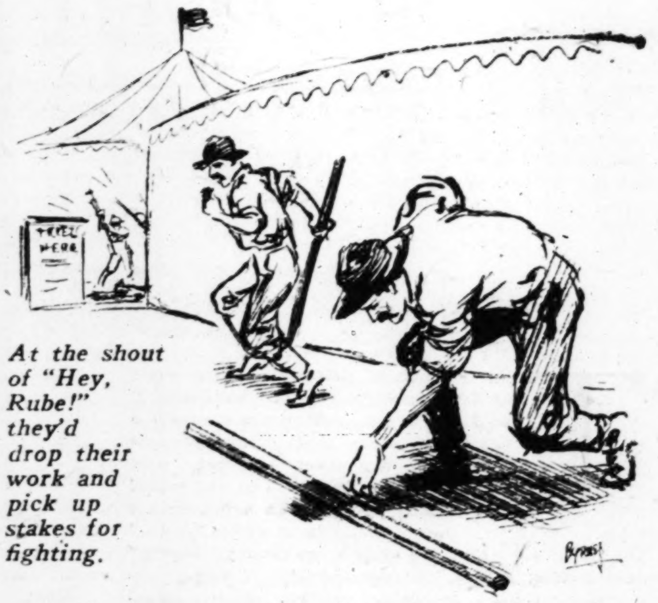
Best Stories Told by a Lion Tamer After Forty Years With the Circus

George Conklin, veteran showman, gives vivid picture of the rough days when rowdies in nearly every town wanted to "lick the circus," and swindles were a part of the regular performance — Close range sketches of show owners whose names became household words during spectacular era which has passed -o- -o- -o-



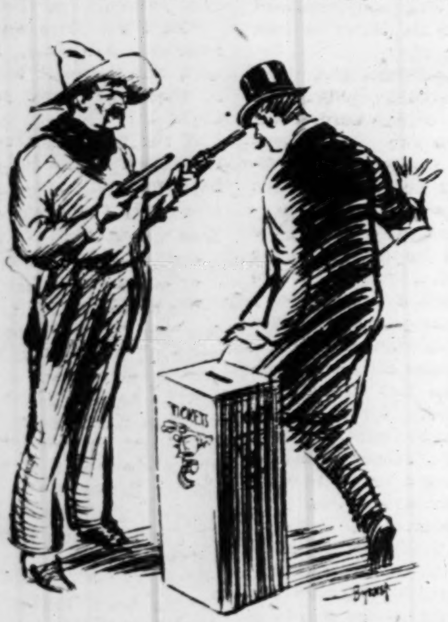
At the shout of "Hey, Rube!" they'd drop their work and pick up stakes for fighting.

FORTY years of circus life, as seen by a shrewd individual who played an important part therein, should make an entertaining book. And when the teller is a man who appends "Tamer of Lions" to his name, like an academic degree, and of whom it is no exaggeration to say that his exploits in the ring have thrilled millions, the book should be a classic.

"The Ways of the Circus, Being the Memories and Adventures of George Conklin, Tamer of Lions" (Harper & Brothers, Publishers), is just that. The 300 pages of this book (would that there were more of them!) are racy of the sawdust, clowns and "rube," the menagerie, the "cook tent," freaks, fakers and "making parade."

Tales of sudden and terrible deaths which came to man or beast are followed by amusing glimpses of famous American showmen. In the next breath, perhaps, is told the harrowing history of how pink lemonade had its origin. The show which, with its peanut and concert privileges, even had a "clothesline concession," appears in the narrative, with names of the circus and the men.

Indeed, a naivete which now and then almost paralyzes the reader permeates the book and is one of its delightful features. The circus world have often been called children, and after reading this book one begins to understand why.



"Them's my pass."

Very interesting are the scenes from circus life as it used to be when Texas was still a frontier country and the traveling shows made their way slowly and with real peril through regions where the rowdy element was large and obstreperous. For Conklin's experiences, be it noted, go back to 1866, when the shows still traveled from town to town in their own horse-drawn wagons, making the trip between stands at night, with drivers so dead for sleep that they frequently dozed off and a tip-over was the result. The start was usually made after a midnight breakfast.

"I found that it bothered even the old timers to stay awake," says Conklin, whose narrative is set down by Harvey W. Root of the New York World staff, "although most of them did until light in the morning, but there was a saying among the show people that 'nobody can keep awake after the old haymaker comes up.'

"Except on stormy nights, when everyone was too miserable, everything seemed to conspire together to make the desire for sleep irresistible; the previous lack of it, the time, the quiet and darkness of night, the sounds of the train itself—jangling of harness and chains, chuckle and rumble of wheels and rhythmic tread of horses' feet—and the gentle touch of the night wind on the face made a combination which was too much for a novice.

"I simply could not keep awake. I tried all sorts of devices. I would rouse myself and pick out some object which I could just see in the distance—a tree, a house, a bend in the road—and attempt to keep alert until I reached it. I even tried rubbing tobacco juice into my eyes, but it was no use. Hardly would the determination be made before I was again asleep. As a result, my tip-overs were frequent and my driving came in for a good deal of profane comment."

On the outskirts of the town which was the destination, the wagons stopped "beside some convenient stream or pond and washed away the dust and mud of the night's travel, so that the cages and wagons would be fresh and shining for their entry into the town. Just before 10 o'clock the wardrobe wagon was opened and each one was given a long coat.

"These coats, like charity, covered a multitude of sins, for they were put on over old clothes, overalls or whatever combination of dress one happened to have on, and, being long enough to reach to the ankles, hid all from sight. Blacking was passed out to polish the boots, and a high hat with a cockade on one side.

"As soon as all was ready the band wagon led off and the rest of the cages and wagons fell into line behind it and paraded through the principal streets of the town and then on out to the show grounds. Here we gave our finery back to the wardrobe keeper, the cages were backed into their places in the menagerie tent, the horses unharnessed and then we got our second meal for the day. The third one we had after the afternoon performance."

Describing a Southern tour with the W. W. Cole shows in 1875, which was by rail, but in cars belonging to the railroad, Conklin says: "In those days it was no uncommon thing in Texas for some fellow to walk up to the entrance to the tent and, shaking a pair of big pistols in the face of the door tender, say: 'Them's my pass.'

"A ticket collector never was known to question such a pass, nor was the possessor of it disturbed, unless he was foolish enough to linger around alone after we began to pack up at night. If he did, the chances were that the next morning found him sorer and with considerable more knowledge of circus ways."

He relates such an incident which occurred in a town "not far from Dallas," when an old man called "Uncle Henry" was tending door. "A great six-foot Texan in a pair of high-heeled boots came up and started to go into the show. 'Uncle Henry' stopped him and asked for his ticket, and found that he had none. He then explained, firmly but politely, that in order to go in he must have a ticket or pay him the money.

"At this the Texan became very angry and pulled out a big pistol, which he flourished around in front of 'Uncle Henry's' face, saying, 'I will go in, you gray-haired Yankee —— —— ——.'

"Just at that point I hit him with all my strength under the jaw, and he dropped to the ground like a log and lay without moving. My arm fell to my side, limp and useless. I thought at first I had broken it, but I had not. * * * Fortunately, some of the Texan's friends carried him away before he came to."

George Conklin and baby elephant leaving New York hospital after entertaining the juvenile patients.

But this was tame compared with experiences which the Cole show had several years later, when, after the summer season was over, the proprietor bought a passenger boat and barge, and made a winter tour up the Mississippi River. Of side trips up some of the bayous among the great plantations, Conklin says:

"It was a region where feuds were common and parties to one usually considered the coming of the circus a good time to 'look for their man.' The planters were a tough set, especially if they had been drinking. I used to be bothered a lot by their going in back of the cages to drink and treat one another. Almost without exception they carried a big bottle of whisky 'on their hip,' and each one thought his particular brand was the best.

"'Mine's best. You try mine and I'll try yourn,' I used to hear them say, and when the fires of friendship began to glow:

"'Bill, I'll stick ter yer! I'll stick ter yer! No matter whether yer right or wrong, I'll stick ter yer,' and similar vows of alliance both offensive and defensive. It was not unusual to clean up two or three bushels of whisky bottles behind the cages after the show."

In the Bayou Teche, the show people could not get any tea or coffee, only "orange-blossom tea," and Conklin continues:

"We tried the 'orange-blossom tea,' but found it bitter as gall. The people were no pleasanter than the tea, for in the evening they sat in the show and shot the lights out, explaining that they wanted to let the 'Yankee —— —— ——' know they were 'after them,' which might have been good fun enough for them, but was mighty uncomfortable for us.

"It was on the same bayou that we were shot up one night. We had got everything on board and were just beginning to move out. 'Pop' Fitch sat under a light, counting up his receipts, when all of a sudden the light was shot out over his head. We all ducked onto the deck, and it was lucky we did, for another lot of bullets came singing across the boat, and there was more or less shooting at us until we were out of range."

"During those first years of my experience on the road a circus had to be an efficient fighting unit," continues the veteran showman elsewhere in his book. "Those were rougher days than now and a majority of the towns in which we showed were rough towns. While such places as Allentown, Scranton and Pottstown, in Pennsylvania, cities like Baltimore and the Canadian towns, were the worst, yet it was seldom that we went to a place in which there was not some gang anxious to try its hand at 'lickin' the circus.'

"They always looked for a fight, they always got it, and they always got the worst of it. There was practically no police protection, as we know it now. At most a marshal with a few constables, all very much impressed with their importance, very much flustered and excited and very useless. So it fell to the lot of the canvasmen to protect the show.

"They were a husky lot, those fellows who put up and took down the tents and watched around them. Six-footers mostly, broad-shouldered and heavy in proportion, with muscles that laughed at an 18-pound sledge. In winter they worked in the logging camps; in summer traveled with the show. A red flannel shirt, corduroy pants, cowhide boots and a slouch hat made a costume which added considerably to the color and picturesqueness of the outfit.

"It did not need much of an excuse to start a fight. Frequently it would result from some chap a canvasman had found crawling under a tent and pulled out by the ankles, bringing a bunch of his friends to help him 'do up' the canvasman. If there were only a few

HIS STOCK IN TRADE

BY REX BEACH.

“THE science of salesmanship is quite as exact as the science of astronomy,” said Mr. Gross, casting his eyes down the table to see that he had the attention of the other boarders, “and much more intricate. The successful salesman is as much an artist in his line as the man who paints pictures or writes books.”

“Oh, there's nothing so artistic as writing books,” protested Miss Harris, the manicurist. “Nothing except acting, perhaps. Actors are artistic, too. But salesmen! I meet lots in my business, and I'm not strong for them.”

Mr. Gross smiled at her indulgently; it was an expression that became him well, and he had rehearsed it often.

“The power to sell goods is a talent, my dear Miss Harris, just like the power to invent machinery or to rule a city, or—or—to keep a set of books. Don't you agree with me, Mrs. Green?”

Mrs. Green, the landlady, a brown, gray woman in black, smiled frigidly. “You're so original, Mr. Gross,” said she, “it's a pleasure to hear you, I'm sure.”

Gross was an impressive talker, due to the fact that he plagiarized office platitudes; he ran on pompously, dropping trade mottoes and shop-worn bits of philosophy until young Mitchell, unable longer to endure the light of admiration he saw in Miss Harris' eyes, rolled up his napkin to the size of a croquette and interrupted by noisily shoving back his chair and muttering under his breath:

“That stuff comes on printed cards. They give it away.”

Mrs. Green called to him: “It's bread pudding, Mr. Mitchell, and very nice.”

“Thanks. My gout is bad again,” he said, at which some of the more frivolous-minded boarders snickered.

“Mitchell is a bright boy—in many ways,” Gross remarked a moment later, “but he's too fresh. I don't think he'll last long at the office.”

Instead of climbing to his hall kennel on the fourth floor rear, Louis Mitchell went out upon the rusty little porch of the boarding house and sat down on the topmost step, reflecting gloomily that a clerk has small chance against a head bookkeeper.

Life at Mrs. Green's pension—she called it that, rates $6 up, terms $6 down—had not been the same for the youthful hermit of the hall bedroom since Gross had met him and Miss Harris in the park a few Sundays before and, falling under the witchery of the manicurist's violet eyes, had changed his residence to coincide with theirs. Gross now occupied one of the front rooms, and a corresponding place in the esteem of those less fortunate boarders to whom the mere contemplation of $10 a week was an extravagance. Mitchell had long adored the blonde manicurist, but once the same roof sheltered her and the magnificent head bookkeeper, he saw his dream of love and two furnished rooms with a kitchenette go glimmering.

Time was when Miss Harris had been content with Sundays in the park, vaudeville—first balcony—on Wednesdays, and a moving picture now and then. These lavish attentions, coupled with an occasional assault upon some delicatessen establishment, had satisfied her cravings for the higher life. Now that Gross had appeared and sown discord with his prodigality she no longer cared for animals and band concerts, she had acquired the orchestra-seat habit, had learned to dance, and, above all, she now possessed a subtle refinement in regard to victuals. She criticised Marlowe's acting, and complained that cold food gave her indigestion. No longer did she sit the summer evenings out with Mitchell, holding his hand in her lap and absent-mindedly buffing his nails, warning him in sweet familiarity that his cuticle was “growing down.” In consequence of her defection, fierce resentment smoldered in the young man's breast. He was jealous; he longed to outsquander the extravagant Mr. Gross; he lusted to spend money in unstinted quantities, $5 an evening if or when necessary.

But there seemed little hope of his ever attaining such a purse-proud position, for while he loomed fairly large in the boarding house atmosphere of Ohio street—or had so loomed until the advent of the reckless bookkeeper—he was so small a part of the office force of Comer & Mathison, jobbers of railway supplies, as to resemble nothing multiplied by itself. He received $12 a week, to be sure, for making telephone quotations and extending invoices between times; but when, as the evening shadows of payday descended and he drew his envelope, the procedure reminded him vaguely of blackmail, for an office boy who did not stutter could have held his job.

When, at 7:45, Miss Harris appeared upon the porch with her hat and gloves and $2-ticket air, and tripped gayly away in company with Mr. Gross, young Mitchell realized bitterly that the cost of living had increased and that it was up to him to raise his salary or lose his lady.

He recalled Gross' words at suppertime, and wondered if there really could be a science to business; if there could be anything to success except hard work. Mr. Comer, in his weekly talks to the office force, had repeatedly said so—whence the origin of the bookkeeper's warmed-over wisdom—but Mitchell's duties were so simple and so constricted as to allow no opening for science, or so, at least, it seemed to him. How could he be scientific, how could he find play for genius when he sat at the end of a telephone wire and answered routine questions from a card? Every day the general railway sales manager gave him a price list of the commodities which C. & M. handled, and when an inquiry came over the phone all he was required, all he was permitted, to do was to read the figures and to quote time of delivery. If this resulted in an order the sales manager took the credit. An open quotation, on the other hand, made Mitchell the subject of brusque criticism for offering a target to competitors, and when he lost an order he was the goat, not the general railway sales manager.

No one around the office was too lowly to exact homage from the quotation clerk, and no one was tongue-tied in the matter of criticism, hence his position was neither one of dignity nor one that afforded scope for talent in the money-making line. And yet, if salesmanship really were a science, Mitchell reasoned, there must be some way in which even a switchboard operator could profit by acquiring it. What if he were buckled to the end of a wire? Human nature is the same, face to face or voice to voice; surely, then, if he set his mind to the task, he could make himself more than a mere string of words over a telephone. Heretofore he had been working wholly with his fingers, his ear drums and his vocal chords; he determined henceforth to exercise his intelligence, if he had any. It was, indeed, high time, for Miss Harris was undoubtedly slipping away, lured by luxuries no clerk could afford, and, moreover, he, Mitchell, was growing old. In a scant two years he would be able to vote. He began forthwith to analyze the situation.

There wasn't much to it. His telephone calls came almost wholly from the purchasing departments of the various railroads. Daily requisitions were filled by the stenographers in those railway offices, young ladies who, through their long experience, were allowed to attend to the more unimportant purchases. It was in quoting prices on these “pick-ups” that Mitchell helloed for eight hours a day. Of course, no large orders ever came over his wire, but this small business carried an unusual profit for supply houses like Comer & Mathison, and in consequence it was highly prized.

After a period of intense and painful thought the young man realized, for the first time, that it was not the telephone itself which asked for price and time of delivery, but a weak, imaginative human being, like himself, at the other end of the wire. He reasoned further that if he could convince that person that the voice of Comer & Mathison likewise issued from a human throat, then it might be possible to get away, in a measure at least, from the mechanical part of the business and establish altogether new relations. If there were really a science to salesmanship, it would work at long distance as well as at collar-and-elbow holds, and Mitchell's first task, therefore, should be to project his own personality into the railroad offices. He went to bed still trying to figure the matter out.

His opportunity to test his new-born theory came on the following morning when an irritable female voice over at the Santa Fe asked the price on 20 kegs of rivets.

“Good morning, Santa Fe-male,” he answered, cheerily.

There was a moment of amazed silence, then the young lady snapped: “ ‘Good morning.’ What is this, the Weather Bureau? I want Comer & Mathison.”

“Listen; my name's not Comer; it's Mitchell. I'm not kidding, either. I want you to ask for me whenever you call up. Every little bit helps, you know.”

“Oh, I see. You want the carriage man to call your number. All right, Mitch. If you're out at lunch with Mr. Carnegie the next time I want a dozen No. 10 sheets I'll have you paged at the Union League Club.”

If the speaker liked this kind of blank verse, she had called up the right supply house, for Mitchell came back with:

“Say, if I ever get your number, I'll do the calling, Miss Santa Fe.”

“W-what?” came the startled reply.

“I mean what I say. I'd love to call”——

“Is that so? Well, I do all the calling for our family, and I'm going to call you right now. What's the price of those rivets?”

“Two-sixty-five.”

“Too high. Good-by.”

“Wait a minute.” Mitchell checked the lady before she could “plug out” on him. “Now that you've got those rivets out of your system, may I get personal for an instant?”

“Just about an instant.”

“I could listen to you all day.”

“Oops, Horace; he loves me!” mocked the lady's voice.

“See here, I'm a regular person—with references. I've been talking to you every day for six months, so I feel that we're acquainted. Some pleasant evening, when your crew of hammock gladiators palls on you, let me come around and show you the difference.”

“What difference?”

“I'll show you what a real porch climber is like.”

“Indeed? I'll think it over.”

Ten minutes later Miss Santa Fe called up again.

“Hello! I want Mitchell, the junior partner.”

“This is Mitchell.”

“Did you say those rivets were two-fifty?”

“Should they be?”

“They should.”

“They are.”

“Ship them to Trinidad.”

“That's bully of you, Miss Santa Claus. I want to”—— But the wire was dead.

Mitchell grinned. Personality did count, after all, and he had proved that it could be projected over a copper wire.

An hour later when Miss Northwestern called him for a price on stay-bolt iron she did not ring off for 15 minutes, and at the end of that time she promised to take the first opportunity of having another chat. In a similar manner, once the ice had been broken at the C. & E. I., Mitchell learned that the purchasing agent was at West Baden, on his vacation; that he had stomach trouble and was cranky; that the speaker loved music, particularly Chaminade and George Cohan, although Beethoven had written some good stuff; that she had been to Grand Haven on Sunday with her cousin, who sold hats out of Cleveland and was a prince with his money, but drank; and that the price of corrugated iron might be raised 10 cents without doing any damage.

On the following afternoon Murphy, the railroad sales manager, stopped on his way past Mitchell's desk to inquire:

“Say, have you been sending orchids to Miss Dunlap over at the Santa Fe? I was in there this morning, and she wanted to know all about you.”

“Did you boost me?” Louis inquired. “It won't hurt your sales to plug my game.”

“She said you and she are ‘buddies’ over the wire. What did she mean?”

“Oh, wire pals, that's all. What kind of a looker is she, Mr. Murphy?”

The sales manager shrugged his shoulders. “She looks as if she was good to her mother." Then he sauntered away.

Mitchell, in the days that followed, proceeded to become acquainted with the Big Four, and in a short time was so close to the Lackawanna that he called her Phoebe Snow. The St. Paul asked for him three times in one afternoon, and the Rock Island, chancing to ring up while he was busy, threatened to hang crepe on the roundhouse if he were not summoned immediately to enter an order for a manhole crab.

Within a week he became the most thoroughly telephoned person in the office, and had learned the tastes, the hopes, the aims and the ambitions of his respective customers. Miss C. & E. I., for instance, whose real name was Gratz, was a bug on music; Miss Northwestern was literary. She had read everything Marion Crawford ever wrote, and considered her the greatest writer Indiana had produced, but was sorry to learn from Mitchell that her marriage to Capt. Jack Crawford had turned out so unhappily—some men were brutes, weren't they? There was a hidden romance gnawing at the Big Four's heart, and Phoebe Snow had a picture of James K. Hackett on her desk and wanted to start a poultry farm. The Santa Fe had been married once, but had taken her maiden name; it was so much pleasanter in business.

As Mitchell's telephone orders began to pile up, day after day, Murphy began to treat him more like an employe than a "hand," and finally offered him a moderate expense account, if he cared to entertain his railroad trade. When the young man's amazement at this offer had abated sufficiently for him to accept he sent the office boy around to the Santa Fe on the run, instructing him to size up Miss Dunlap and report. It was the first order he had ever issued in the office, and the news spread quickly that he had been "raised."

Mr. Gross took occasion to congratulate the despised underling with pompous insincerity, whereat Louis admonished him scowlingly to beat it back to his trial balance or he'd bounce a letter press on his dome.

When the office boy reappeared he turned in a laconic report: "She's a peach!"

Mitchell sweated the lad for further details, then nearly strained a tendon in getting to the telephone booth.

"Hello, Miss Dunlap," he called. "Are you tied up for tonight?"

"I'm knot. The k is silent."

"Will you go to the theater with me?"

"Nickelodeon?"

"No; Montgomery and Stone."

The lady muttered something unintelligible, then she tittered nervously. "Those top balconies make me dizzy."

"How about the orchestra—sixth row? Could you keep your head there?"

"You must own a billboard."

"No, it's bank book; same initials, you see. I'm an heiress."

"See here, Mitch"—Miss Dunlap became serious—"you're a good little copper-wire comedian, but I don't know you nor your people."

"Well, I come from one of the oldest families in Atwood, Mich., and that town was settled over 30 years ago."

"But you don't know me," the lady demurred.

"I do, too. You're a tall blonde, gray eyes, blue dress; you have a dimple"——

"Well, I declare ! All right, then; 7:30 tonight, 612 Filbert street, fourth apartment, and many thanks."

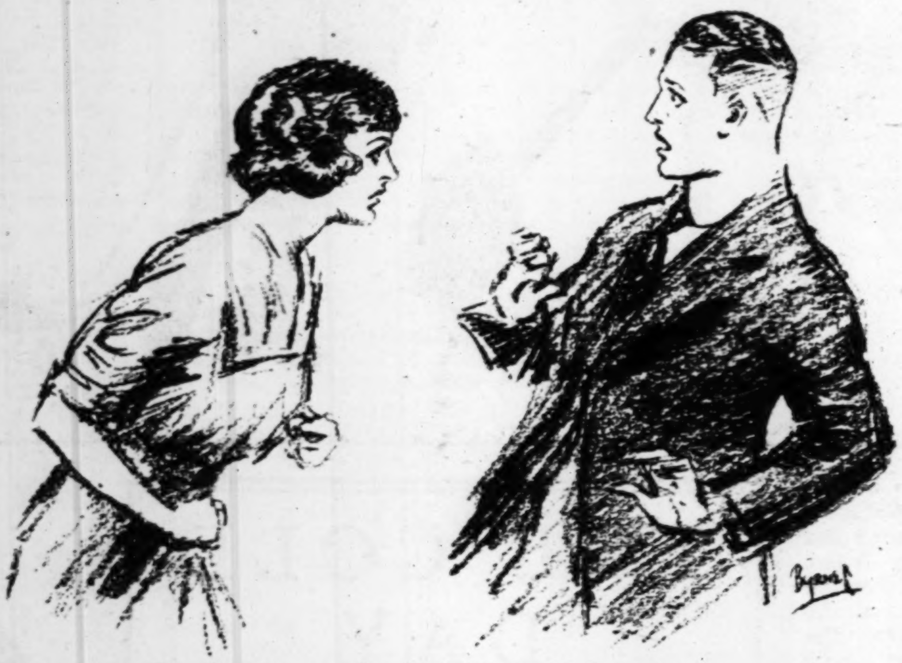
Fifteen minutes before the appointed time Louis Mitchell was fidgeting nervously outside the Filbert street cold-water "walk-up" known as Beraldine Manor, wondering if Miss Dunlap would notice his clothes. Twelve dollars a week had starved his wardrobe until it resembled the back-drop for a "Pity the Blind" card but promptly on the minute he punched the button at the fourth apartment. An instant later he realized that no matter how he looked he had it on Miss Dunlap by 80 per cent.

She was a blonde, to be sure, for the time being, and by the grace of H2-O2. One glance convinced her caller of two things—viz., that his office boy did not care much for peaches, and that the Santa Fe purchasing agent had a jealous wife. The most that possibly could be said in praise of Miss Dunlap's appearance was that she was the largest stenographer in Chicago. Then and there, however, her caller qualified as a salesman; he smiled and he chatted in a free and easy way that had the lady roped, thrown and lashed to his chariot in three minutes by her alarm clock.

They went to the theater, and when Montgomery sprang a joke or Stone did a fall, Miss Dunlap showed her appreciation after the fashion of a laughing hyena. Between times she barked enthusiastically, giving vent to sounds like those caused when a boy runs past a picket fence with a stick in his hand. She gushed, but so does Old Faithful. Anyhow, the audience enjoyed her greatly.

At supper Mitchell secured parking space for his companion at the Union Cafe, and there he learned how a welsh rabbit may be humiliated by a woman. During the debacle he fingered the money in his pocket, then shut his eyes and ordered a bottle of champagne, just to see if it could be done. Contrary to his expectation, the waiter did not swoon; nor was he arrested. Rootbeer had been Mitchell's main intoxicant before, but as he and the noisy Miss Dunlap sipped the effervescing wine over their ice cream, they pledged themselves to enjoy Monday evenings together, and she told him, frankly:

"Mitch, you're the nickel-plated entertainer, and I'll never miss another Monday eve unless I'm in the shops or the roundhouse. You certainly have got class."



She flared up and called him a dissipated roue.

At breakfast Miss Harris regarded Louis darkly, for Mr. Gross had told her just enough to excite her curiosity.

"Where were you last night?" she inquired.

"I went to a show."

"Were the pictures good?"

"They don't have pictures at the Grand."

"Oh-h!" The manicurist's violet eyes opened wide. "Louis—you drank something. You're awful pale. What was it?"

"Clicquot! That's my favorite brand."

Miss Harris clutched the tablecloth and pulled a dish into her lap. After a moment she said: "Maybe you'll take me somewhere tonight. We haven't been out together for the longest time."

"Oh, I see! This is Gross' night at the Maccabees, isn't it?" Louis gloated brutally over her confusion. "Sorry, but I'll probably have to entertain some more customers. The firm is keeping me busy."

At the office things went most pleasantly for the next few weeks; 60 per cent of the city's railroad business came to Comer & Mathison; the clerks began to treat Mitchell as if he were an equal; even Gross lost his patronizing air and became openly hateful, while Murphy—Louis no longer called him mister—increased his assistant's expense account and confided some of his family affairs to the latter. Mr. Comer, the senior partner, began to nod familiarly as he passed the quotation clerk's desk.

Nor were Louis' customers all so eccentric as Miss Dunlap. Phoebe Snow, for instance, was very easy to entertain, and the Northwestern took to his custody like a hungry urchin to a barbecue. He gave them each one night a week, and in a short time all his evenings were taken, as a consequence of which he saw less and less of Miss Harris. But, although he and his manicurist were becoming strangers, he soon began to call the waiters at Rector's by their given names, and a number of the more prominent cab drivers waved at him.

One morning when, for the tenth successive time, he slid into his desk chair an hour late, Mr. Comer bowed to him, not only familiarly, but sarcastically, then invited him to step into his private office and see if he could locate the center of the carpet. It was a geometrical task that Louis had been wishing to try for some time.

The senior partner began with elaborate sarcasm. "I notice you're not getting down until 9 o'clock lately, Mr. Mitchell. Is your automobile out of order?"

"I have no automobile, Mr. Comer," the youth replied, respectfully.

"No? I'm surprised. Well, if 8 sharp is too early, you may set your time."

Mitchell tried his best to appear disconcerted. "You know I'm busy every evening with my trade," said he.

"Nonsense! I've seen you out with a different dressmaker every night that I've been downtown."

"Those are not dressmakers; they are stenographers from the railroad offices. I'm sorry you're not satisfied with me, but I'm glad you called me in, for I've been meaning to speak to you about this very thing. You see, I have practically all the railroad business in the city, and it takes too much of my time keeping it lined up. I have no leisure of my own. I'll quit Saturday night, if convenient."

Mr. Comer grunted like a man who has stepped off a flight of stairs one step too soon. "I didn't know it was really business. Of course, if it is, why, you needn't quit—exactly"——

"I'm afraid I'll have to." Mitchell dropped his eyes demurely. "I've had a number of offers, and in justice to myself"——

"Offers? You? How much?"

"One hundred a month and expenses."

Mr. Comer removed his glasses, he polished them carefully, then he readjusted them and leaned forward looking the young man over from head to foot, as if he had never until this moment seen more than his vague outlines.

"Um-m! You're 19 years old, I believe?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, then, an hour's delay won't be serious. Now you go back to your desk and send Mr. Murphy here. I'll let you know shortly whether Saturday night or this noon will be convenient."

It was perhaps a half-hour before lunch time when Mr. Comer called for Mitchell, greeting him with the gruff inquiry:

"See here, do you think I'm going to advance you from 12 to 25 a week at one clip?"

"No, sir."

"Humph! I'm not. I had a talk with Murphy. I think he's a liar, but I'm going to make it fifteen hundred a year and expenses. Now get busy and work your 'trade' for all its worth."

Young Mitchell's knees wobbled, but, having learned the value of a black mask and a gun, he went through his victim thoroughly while he had him down.

"I'd like a traveling position the first of the year sir, if you don't mind."

"All right! If you hold your present gait I'll give you the Western roads. Anything else you'd like? Well, then, git!"

That day Louis switched from the narrow-countered bakery-lunch route to regular standard-gauge restaurants; he ordered clothes like a bookmaker's bride and he sent a cubic foot of violets to Miss Harris. At dinner time he patronized Mr. Gross so tantalizingly that the latter threatened to pull his nose out until it resembled a yard of garden hose.

The whole boarding house was agog at Mitchell's good fortune and Miss Harris smiled on him in a manner reminiscent of the good old ante-bookkeeper—one might say "ante-vellum"—days. She hinted that Mr. Gross' company did not wholly satisfy her soul hunger, and even confessed that she was lonely; but this was Mitchell's Rock Island evening, and although the frank surrender in Miss Harris' eyes caused him to gasp as if he were slowly settling into a barrel of ice water, he tore himself from her side.

Louis' batting average would have reached 1000 had it not been for the Monon. Miss Day, the young lady there, had a vocabulary limited to "Hello," "Too High" and "Good-by," and it became particularly galling to learn that the fellow at James & Naughten's was pulling down the business, so Mitchell went to Murphy with a proposition which showed that his mental growth had kept pace with his financial advancement.

"You need a new stenographer," he declared.

"Oh, do I? Why do I need a stenographer, Mr. Bones?"

"Well, it would be a good investment, and I know a corker."

"Who is she?"

"Miss Day of the Monon."

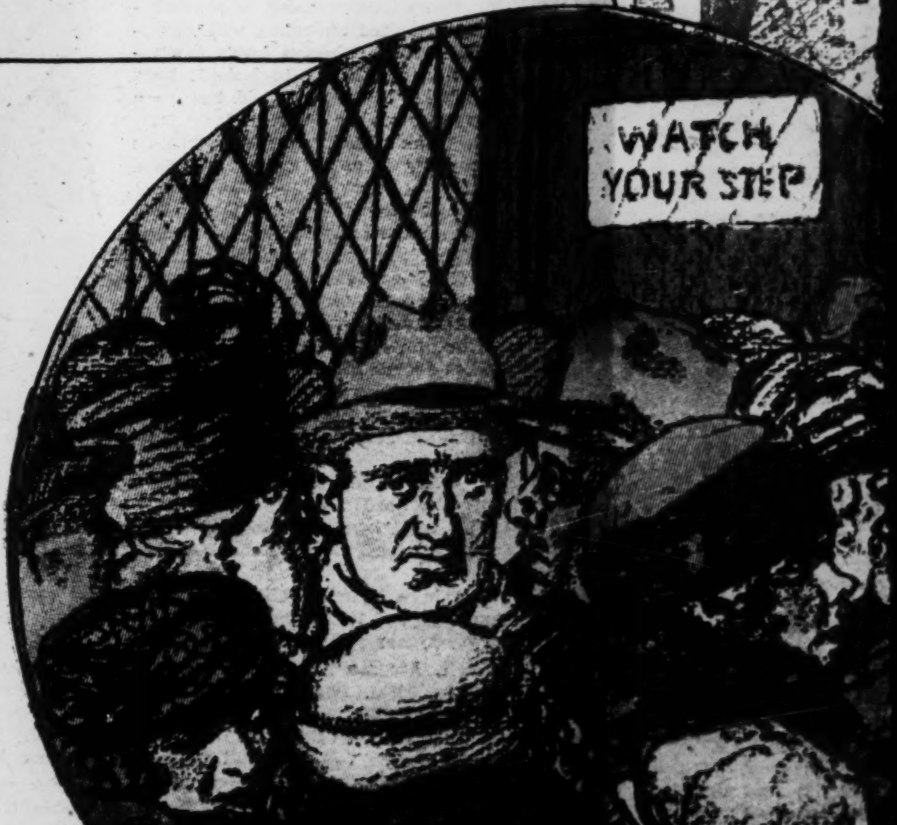
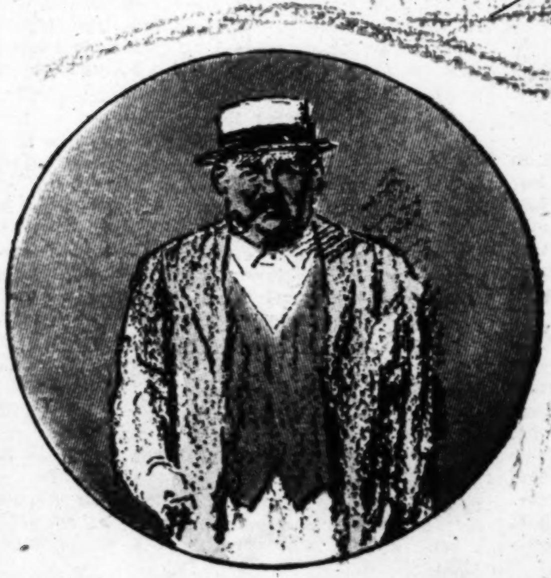
Any street crossing in zero weather, showing among others the lady with a slight cold in the head and no handkerchief hurrying home. Her fur coat looks like Persian lamb half a block away and the squirrel muff goes beautifully. Mr. Bingoe, the whitewing, is taking no chances with frostbite. Neither is the flapper with the silk stockings, nor little Margot, all fixed up in her little red sweater. Next comes the young man who feels the cold, but is going to stick to his B. V. D.'s throughout the winter or die. His is the Spartan type. The lady with her back to the public gaze is probably a flapper, although she may be somebody's grandmother—there's no telling for a certainty at a distance.

THE COLD DAY

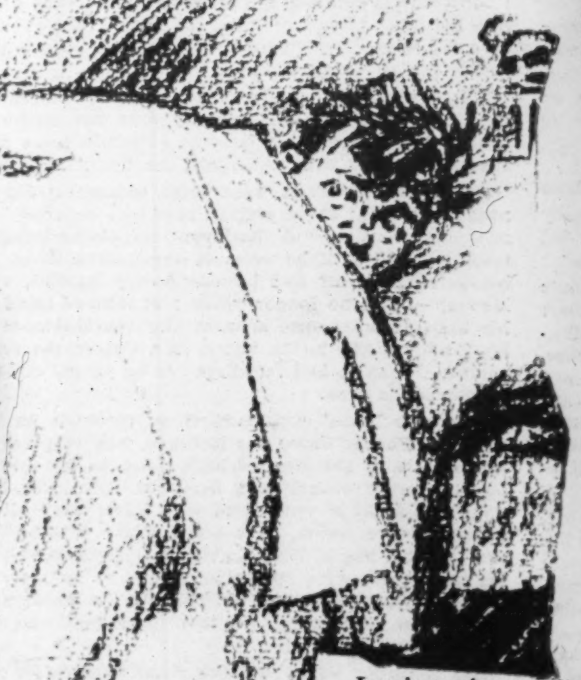
Character Sketches by W. E. HILL



About the coziest place we know of on a cold, frosty winter's morning is a crowded elevator. There is very little room for the cold air to seep in.



Axel, superintendent of the Bonniebelle Vista Apartments, is the most popular man around this cold morning. Every one wants to locate him. As long as the boiler room keeps nice and warm Axel is not worrying about the folks upstairs. He is wearing out last Summer's straw.



Joe is trying to decide hurriedly whether to jump up and shut the window and then silence the alarm, or pull the covers over his ears and do neither.

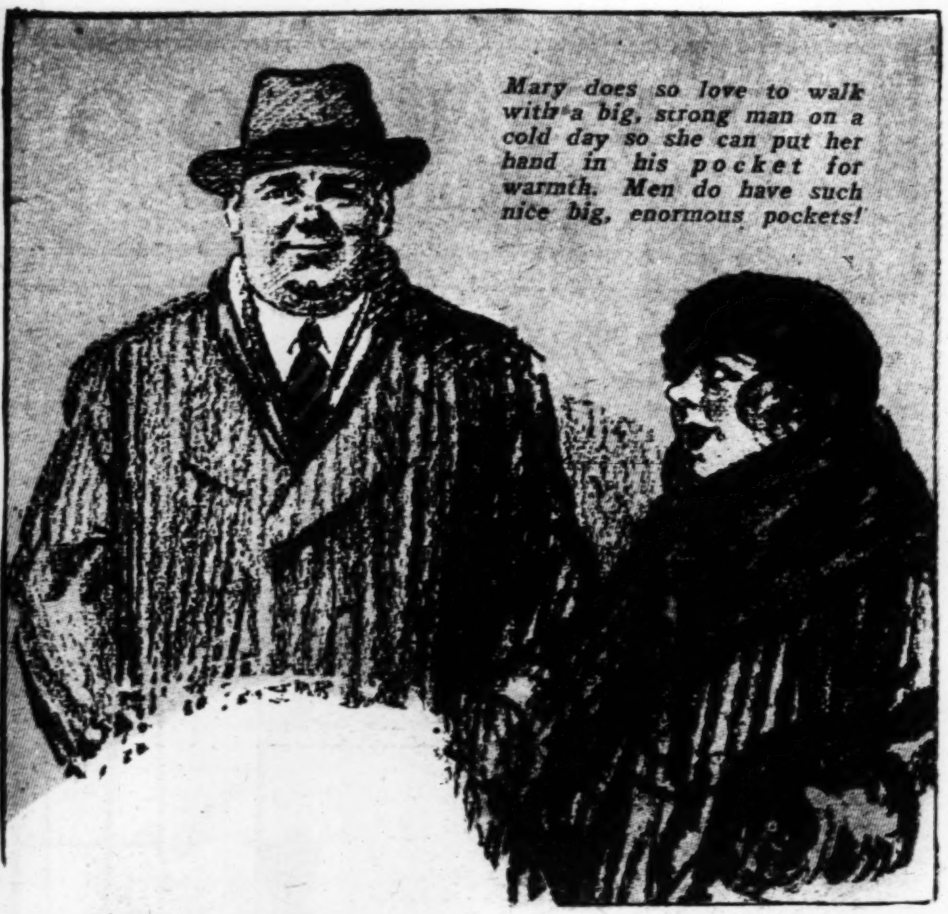
With the thermometer below zero, it was no time to uncover the "twenty degrees cooler inside" sign that was such a success in the late spring and summer. Yet that is just what the man who fixed up the lobby display did when he took the picture of Harold Sterno in "The Criminal Wife" from off the ticket booth. It's an awfully slack afternoon at the "Dixie Rose" Movie Emporium.



Mary does so love to walk with a big, strong man on a cold day so she can put her hand in his pocket for warmth. Men do have such nice big, enormous pockets!

OVERLOOK HOUSE

By WILL PAYNE

THE STORY THUS FAR.

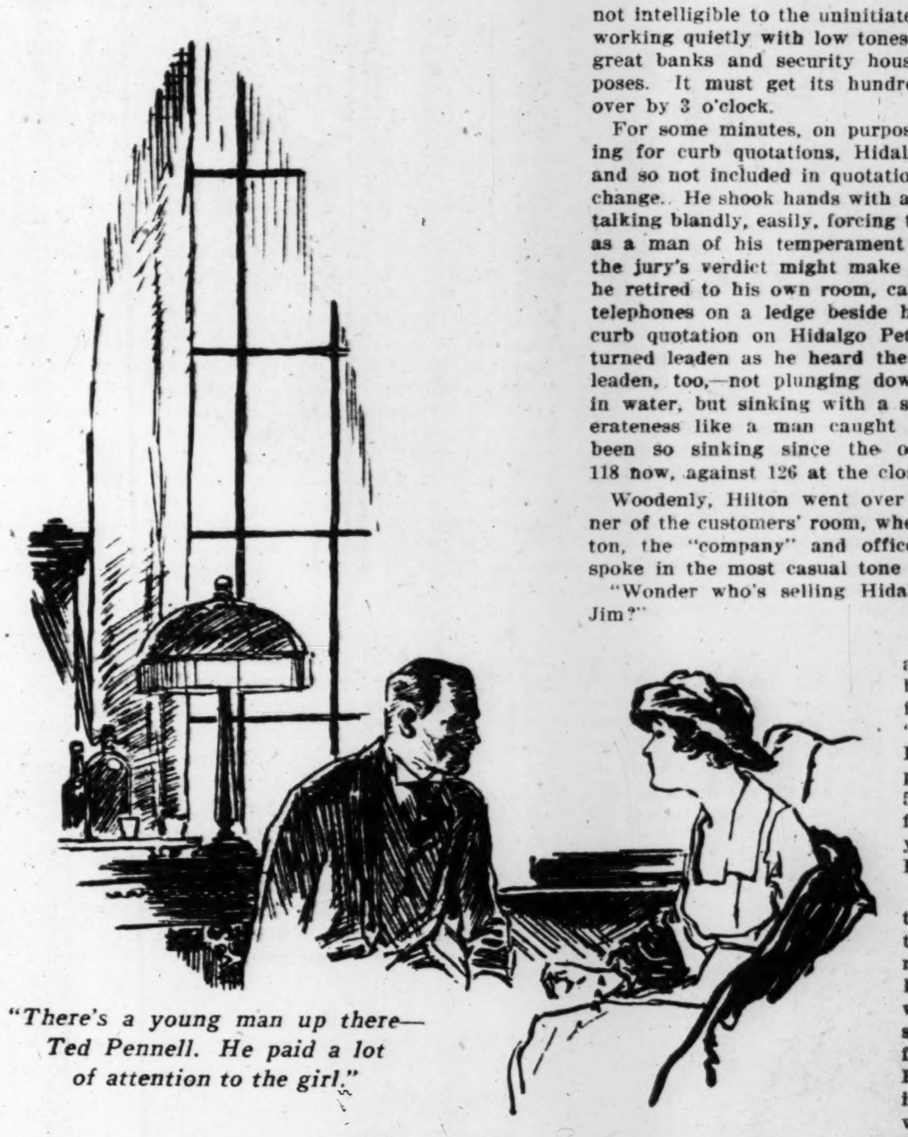
Overlook House is the home of Judge Tillman Crane, a wealthy owner of oil lands, and his invalid wife. As the story opens the Cranes are entertaining as their guest Mrs. Edith Hilton, whose husband, a broker, has been handling the Judge's financial interests. One afternoon Hilton summons his wife to a secret meeting at a nearby town and confesses that he has been misappropriating the Crane securities. A letter is on its way to Judge Crane which would reveal this, and Mrs. Hilton reluctantly agrees to intercept it and substitute another, which her husband gives her. To avoid recognition on her trip to town, Mrs. Hilton has borrowed the hat and cloak of Katey, a pretty maid employed at Overlook House. On her way back she is overtaken by Ted Pennell, son of her husband's partner, who mistakes her at first for the maid, and then, discovering the masquerade, gives her a lift in his car. Ted promises secrecy and treats the little adventure as a joke, but several persons have seen the supposed maid in his car—among them Peggy Loughman, Ted's fiancee, who has been angered before by young Pennell's open philandering with the girl. Meanwhile there is some perplexity at Overlook House over the fact that Katey has disappeared. The first to admit any knowledge of her whereabouts is Samuel Thorp, a town loafer, who has seen the girl lying on a pile of clothes in the laundry, covered with a coat which he recognizes as one belonging to Ted Pennell. Thorp confides his secret to Louis, the gardener, an admirer of Katey's, and Louis, in turn, tells the disturbing story to Danforth Crane, the Judge's son, who is in love with Peggy Loughman and proposes, if he can, to overcome her preference for Ted Pennell. Ted and Peggy have a serious falling out over the girl in Ted's car, Ted refusing stubbornly to explain the incident. Then the boy adds to the mystery of his conduct by abruptly leaving Overlook House. Peggy, deeply troubled, determines to find out what has become of Katey and at her suggestion Danforth Crane engages a detective named Eastman to work on the case. At the same time Lester Hilton, the broker, who has been spending the week end at Overlook, goes back to New York. At his office he unexpectedly encounters his partner, Ted Pennell's father, an easy-going individual, who knows nothing of Hilton's dishonesty in the matter of the Crane securities or the financial difficulties in which he has involved himself and the firm.

EIGHTH INSTALLMENT.

"HOW did you find everyone at Overlook?"

For a couple of minutes the partners stood talking, casually. Lester Hilton, in his outburst to his wife at the Stony Cove Hotel, had much slandered his partner, who was by no means such a complete idler and parasite as he had alleged. There were a great many details as to which the senior partner was vague. There was a certain touch of vagueness—of absent-mindedness—in the way he greeted Hilton just now. One might have said that he wasn't exactly sure whether the person with whom he was shaking hands was his partner or his pastor. Commonly, that air of a certain vagueness and absent-mindedness attached one to him. It extended even to his clothes—good enough clothes, no doubt, but just hung upon him as though he had picked them up indifferently out of a heap. His face was high-colored and he wore a patch of sandy sidewhiskers on either cheek—which was a bit eccentric for Wall street.

He had many interests outside of Wall street—etchings, for example, and porcelain. In Wall street he commonly had that air of not minding very much. But many people felt a dependable quality in him—a man to be trusted. Leaving aside the Crane connection, he was by no means such a negligible factor in the firm as Hilton had asserted to his wife. All the same, Hilton quite hated him now. But, above all, Hilton wanted to think. In his mental confusion there was a terrible feeling that the Sphinx was asking him a question which he must answer right on pain of death. He kept asserting an answer and then helplessly asking himself if that was the right answer—and wanting to think out what the answer should be. He went into his corner den, but almost immediately—abruptly—left it again and hurried out to the corridor, where he stepped into an elevator.



"There's a young man up there—Ted Pennell. He paid a lot of attention to the girl."

Leaving the elevator on an upper floor, he got a bunch of keys out of his pocket and went down the hall to a signless door, into which he let himself. It was a small room with no furniture but a rug, a desk, a chair, a telephone—his particular retreat, hidden away in the huge building. Not even Pennell knew that he had such a room, which was an expression of his instinct to burrow himself far out of sight, all alone. He was feverish now, for it lacked only 13 minutes of 10. He caught up the telephone, asked for a number; then gave his own name and asked for Mr. Samuels. A moment later he was saying eagerly:

"That you, Lem? Lester Hilton. Buy me 500 shares of Hidalgo at the opening. . . . Same as before, you know. . . . All right."

That is what the agitation in his mind—which seemed almost like thinking—had come to. Of course, Hidalgo was going up! Danforth Crane had told his wife it was going down to mislead her. And this secret means—giving an order over the telephone up in his room—was part of his burrowing. But the moment he had acted his resolution wavered. Had he done the right thing? What difference would 500 shares make even if Hidalgo did go up? Had it all been a mere convulsive movement, like a blind striking out in the dark? At any rate, it soothed his torn nerves to be alone, out of sight. For many minutes he sat by the desk, staring at the wall. The market was opening, but it didn't matter. Preston, the office manager, and "company," could run the business downstairs—with the senior partner's powerful assistance.

There was another thing that he had been thinking about. Presently he used the telephone again, and at 10:15, loathly, he went downstairs. The street was working at top speed then—with clamor and gesticulation on the Stock Exchange, with louder clamor and more violent movement on Broad street curb, where a mob of brokers, steaming under the June sun, pressed together, breathlessly talking an outlandish tongue, not intelligible to the uninitiated. Also the street was working quietly with low tones and silent nods in the great banks and security houses, but to vaster purposes. It must get its hundreds of millions turned over by 3 o'clock.

For some minutes, on purpose, Hilton avoided asking for curb quotations, Hidalgo being a curb stock and so not included in quotations from the Stock Exchange. He shook hands with a customer and lingered, talking blandly, easily, forcing the note of unconcern—as a man of his temperament on trial and awaiting the jury's verdict might make loud jokes. At length he retired to his own room, caught up one of the six telephones on a ledge beside his desk, asked for the curb quotation on Hidalgo Petroleum, and his heart turned leaden as he heard the answer. Hidalgo was leaden, too,—not plunging down like a human body in water, but sinking with a slow and ghastly deliberateness like a man caught in quicksand. It had been so sinking since the opening and was only 118 now, against 126 at the close Saturday.

Woodenly, Hilton went over to a desk in the corner of the customers' room, where sat wiry little Preston, the "company" and office manager. There he spoke in the most casual tone he could command.

"Wonder who's selling Hidalgo. Have you heard, Jim?"

And Preston, seated at his desk, snapped back at him, with a faint touch of surprise: "Why, we're selling it. Danforth Crane telephoned down to sell 5000 shares. I looked for you, but didn't see you around. I told Pennell."

"Danforth, eh?" Hilton muttered and turned back to his own room. The order must have come in while he was upstairs. There seemed something like fate about it. . . . But was Danforth selling in earnest? Was what he told Edith true? Or was his selling part of his ruse to make others sell? . . . It must be a ruse, for otherwise Hilton was ruined. His battered nerves cried for a drink, but he resisted the temptation.

The day went on—all in a breathless hurry to get the hundreds of millions turned over by 3 o'clock, but to Hilton it seemed to move slowly and fairly to stick in its tracks at times. Like a complicated automaton, he went through many motions. Three o'clock finally came; but the automaton must go on for some time after that, winding up the day's business in the office.

It was 4 o'clock when he went down in the elevator and stepped out in Wall street again, making for the subway. And amid all the confusion and depression there was a certain dawning in his mind—a gray light as though the sun were going to rise. He took the subway to Fourteenth street and came out in Union Square, where it was hot. Going out on the broad flagging, he looked about and soon saw what he sought—his car, drawn up with many others along the curb. In the tangle of cluttered streets to the south of Union Square an automobile was a nuisance, but from here north one had straight, wider thoroughfares and fairer going.

"Metropolitan Club," he said to the chauffeur as he climbed into the open car—a costly car, shining in every detail.

Years ago, before he had been even a more or less hand-to-mouth curb broker, Lester Hilton had tramped Fifth avenue, where all the luxury of a continent is heaped up on view. There are jewelers' windows, furriers' windows, gowns that cost a poor man's competence, elaborate places to eat where the price of a substantial dinner is given as a tip for serving a cup of tea, equipages that cost a farm, and, farther up, dwellings for Midas. It had then been his dream to become one of the possessors of the golden street. And now—he himself recognizing that it was a bit childish—he could still get his little thrill from rolling up Fifth avenue in a costly automobile.

avenue beyond Fifty-ninth street, where the park lies at one's left and the Midas dwellings begin, he had usually slackened his steps a little as he passed an imposing marble building, through the broad plate-glass windows of whose main floor he could see men lounging in easy chairs, talking, smoking, reading newspapers, or looking out at the world that tramped by. This was the Metropolitan Club—the particular haunt, as he then imagined, of the possessors of the golden street; the especial seat of the mighty. To sit at a window of the Metropolitan Club, looking serenely down at a world that tramped by, was the next thing—he thought—to Olympus. He could still get his little thrill from rolling up Fifth avenue; but he found sitting by a window of the Metropolitan Club rather dull.

Entering the club today from the carriageway, he was aware of the Fifth avenue windows only as an unconsidered feature of the big, handsome room. His business lay in the opposite direction, and in that opposite direction he turned to a room by no means notable for size or furnishings or outlook. A small room, in fact, with no outlook whatever, and not much furnishings besides a smooth wooden counter extending lengthwise through it; but quite a popular little room. Behind the wooden counter stood an experienced looking person in snow-white apron. His experienced eye lighted upon Mr. Hilton; a murmur passed between them; the man in the white apron set out a tall glass with cracked ice in it, a smaller glass, a square brown bottle, and then stood expertly by with his hand on the siphon. Hilton absorbed the beverage deliberately; and the miracle for which his hurt nerves had been craving took place; the sun rose. His cold and quaking brain was suffused with the warmth and flattery of alcohol. He needed flattery just then; the stuff in the brown bottle gave it to him.

Three men from Wall street whom he knew came into the little room. He greeted them cordially, offering his cigarette case. The four lined up together at the wooden counter. And presently Hilton was talking confidently, exchanging jokes and comments with his friends. He felt confident; contempt for his enemies, or for forces opposed to him, arose in his mind. The pleasant fumes of his brain lied to him adroitly, and he believed the lies.

When he strolled out into the big room with his friends, with an easy, assured air, it lacked only five minutes of 5. He had told his chauffeur to come back for him at 5; but he was in no hurry. The lacerating pull on his nerves had ceased; he had plenty of time. He gossiped on with his friends a few minutes and went out to the carriageway, where his car was waiting for him. The distance that he had to go was barely a quarter of a mile, but he had not chosen to walk, for he loved all the accessories of luxurious living—like having a handsome car wait to take him only a few blocks.

The machine took him up to Fifty-eighth street, and he told the chauffeur to wait; then he entered the marble lobby of a tall, narrow apartment building. The liveried doorman bowed to him; the liveried elevator operator said, "Good evening, Mr. Hilton," with deference. That was as it should be. The lift hoisted him to an upper story, where he let himself into a small apartment, consisting of living room, bedroom, bath and kitchenette. The living room took up the full width of the building, its northern wall, nearly all glass, admitting sunlight in a flood. The rug, curtains and silken upholstery of the divan and chairs were of a lovely silvery hue; one of the smartest and most expensive shops on the avenue had seen to the furnishings.

This was not where Hilton lived. His dwelling proper was an apartment over on Riverside Drive, at $12,000 a year. It had seemed rather sumptuous when he took a five years' lease on it; but it was not a cause for any satisfaction now. The modish drift in the apartment line had been rather toward Park avenue of late years. Nowadays, if he mentioned that he resided on Riverside Drive he felt bound to add a deprecatory or explanatory cause—saying he was tied up there with a long lease. Many of his downtown acquaintances lived out of town—up in Westchester County, over in Connecticut, or on Long Island. But a business man must have some place to stay overnight in town. Some of these acquaintances engaged rooms, or suites, at the big hotels by the year; but of late there had grown up a fashion among them of having a little apartment like this one —much snugger and pleasanter than a hotel—where one could drop in at any moment of the day or night and stay as long as one pleased.

The idea appealed to Hilton. True, his car could take him from this spot on Fifty-eighth street to his apartment on Riverside Drive in 10 minutes. But he wanted his little apartment, such as his friends had. He explained to his wife that it was important to have a quiet place, away from the office, away from home, to which he could retire and mull over business affairs that required leisure and seclusion; a place, also, for conferences out of business hours. It pleased him to have this little flat. The rent was only $2000 a year, and a couple of thousand would easily cover the furnishings. Even the kitchenette came in very handy; the icebox was stocked with bottles. He had to have what he wanted, if he could possibly get it. Money ran through his fingers like water. He got himself a little drink, lit a cigar, sat down on the divan, and glanced over the evening papers—which were placed on the table there every evening, whether he visited the apartment or not.

He had been so occupied but a few minutes when the telephone on the table at his elbow rang. He listened to the message and said: "Show her up here." When he put down the receiver he did not resume his paper, but sat expectant, waiting for the curtain to rise on a new adventure. When a knock sounded on the hall door, he stepped over and opened it, and found himself looking at a neatly dressed woman of full figure, no longer young, but not old, either, who was looking at him with cool, blue-gray eyes.

"I am Miss George; Mr. Cordwainer sent me," she said, crisply.

He had vaguely expected a somewhat more romantic figure; at least—some way—a darker figure. This woman was blonde, with sandy hair; but a domestic sort of blonde, instead of a theatrical sort. With her full, neatly dressed figure and competent air, one might have expected to find her running a suburban delicatessen shop—capably, but not at all romantically. However, no doubt Cordwainer knew; and she was good looking in her matronly style. If he had had any intention of offering his new ally a drink and a cigarette, it automatically vanished. She some way reduced it all to a business proposition, and in that spirit he addressed her:

"I want you to find out what has become of a girl, Miss George." He took an envelope from his pocket and consulted a memorandum scribbled on its back. "Her name is Katey Zobrosky. She was employed as a parlor maid in Judge Tillman Crane's place at Windham. She'd been in Judge Crane's house a few months. Nobody in the house seems to know much about her—I mean where her relatives are, if she had any in this country. She disappeared last Thursday afternoon. Judge Crane's butler says she telephoned from somewhere about 3 o'clock that she was going to quit her job—wasn't coming back to the house—and asking the butler to keep her clothes until she sent for them. But a man there—his name is Thorp—says he saw her lying in the laundry about 5 or 5:30. He thinks she was drunk, sleeping it off.

"She's a very pretty girl. I've seen her myself around the house. There's a young man up there—Ted Pennell. He paid a lot of attention to the girl had her to public dances and so on. He's Mrs. Crane's nephew, you understand. Well, he disappeared last Saturday afternoon. I think he's got the girl somewhere. I want you to find out. But I don't want you to start anything that will give the affair away until I know about it. Understand?"

"Certainly," she replied, as though an answer were superfluous.

"I have my own reasons for wanting to know what's happened between the girl and the young man. But I don't want him to know, or anybody else to know, that I'm taking a hand in it. If you find them, just keep still and notify me."

She waited a moment and asked: "Anything else, Mr. Hilton? Of course, the more I know to begin with the less I'll have to dig up." She smiled, showing fine teeth, as she offered that self-evident truth.

That was all he meant to tell her; but he now felt the temptation to go on, and yielded to it.

"This Thorp told me about seeing the girl in the laundry. Of course, he's a blockhead—Smart Aleck sort of blockhead. I don't doubt that he told the truth about seeing the girl; but what occurred to make him think she was drunk—because if he'd been lying in the laundry, he'd have been drunk. His notion appears to be that the girl got tight and the butler covered it up because—presumably—somebody else was involved in it; a scandalous little spree there in the house, you see. . . .

"But that looks doubtful to me. Why should she have left her clothes? I was up there over Saturday and Sunday—left last night. I know two or three letters have come to the house for her since she left. It seems she was a great little flirt, and no doubt some of her beaux have been writing to her. If Thorp really saw her lying in the laundry at 5 o'clock, it's unlikely she telephoned the butler at 3 that she wasn't coming back. Possibly she did come back to get her clothes. A girl of that kind would want all her clothes—pretty and flirting, you know. If she did come back to get her clothes, why didn't she take them?"

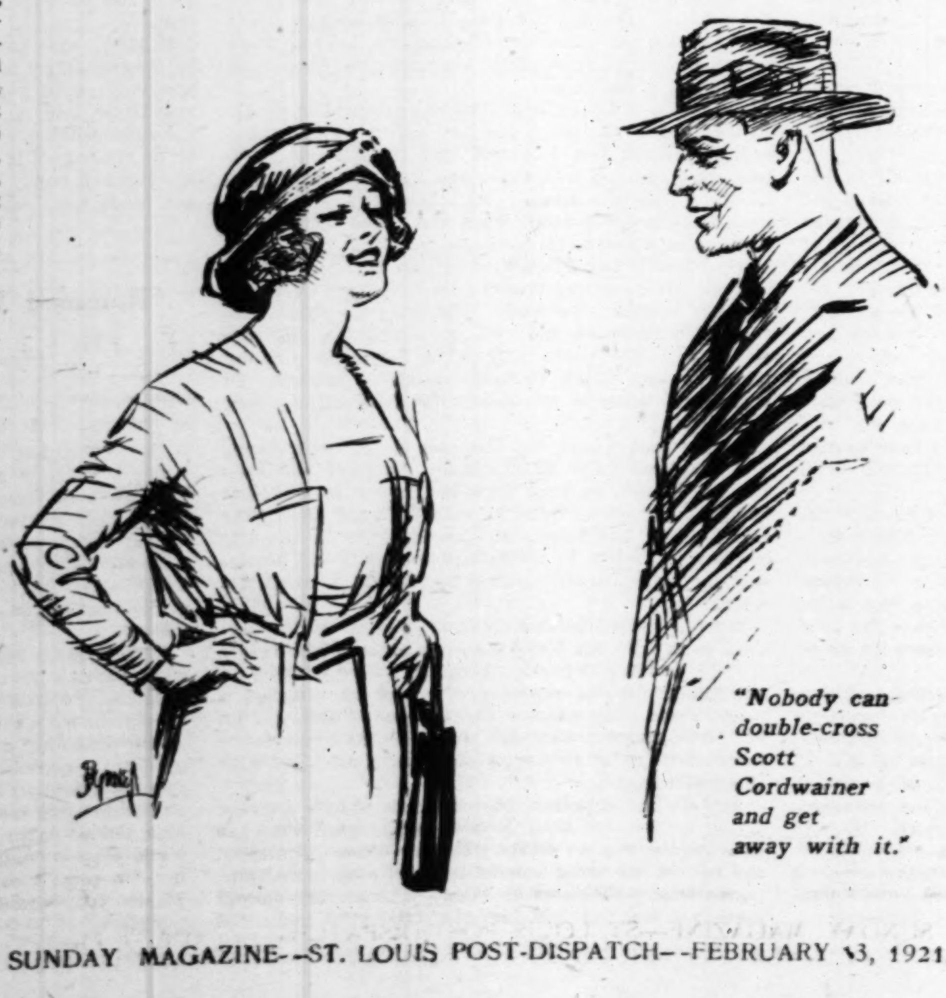
Hilton's nervous eyes questioned Miss George's intelligent but noncommittal face a moment. "Suppose she came back and was given some drugged wine, and there was too much drug in the wine? Of course, I know nothing whatever about it except what I told you at first. But it seems queer to me. If any accident happened, such as I just suggested, there must have been some strong influence at work to cover it up. It isn't likely that any such influence would have been exerted to cover up an affair among servants. Ted Pennell left there directly after lunch Saturday—left abruptly. There's a Miss Loughman up there—supposed to be his sweetheart—but she didn't know he'd gone until dinner time Saturday. The story was that his father had telephoned him from New York to come down here at once on a business matter. As a matter of fact, his father didn't telephone him and didn't know he'd left Windham. As for needing his assistance in a business way, the young man is 23 and knows as much about business as that chair."

"Is he related to the Mr. Pennell of your firm?" Miss George inquired.

"The Mr. Pennell of my firm is his father," Hilton replied. "You understand, business has nothing to do with it as far as I am concerned," he added, with an unnecessary falsehood. "There's no business motive in it. But I want to know where that girl is, and what hand Ted Pennell had in her leaving the house, and whether he's got her now; and I don't want anything done that will give the affair away until you have reported to me. Can you go to Windham tonight?"

"Yes," she replied. "Shall I telephone you at your office?"

He frowned over that an instant. "Not unless it's absolutely necessary. I don't like telephoning in a case like this—somebody might listen, you know. Better not telephone at all. You can catch a night train and come back here any time; or you can telephone Cordwainer, and he can send over for me."



"Nobody can double-cross Scott Cordwainer and get away with it."

HIS STOCK IN TRADE

"I didn't know you cared for Miss Day."

"I don't. That's the reason I want her to work for you."

Murphy coughed slightly, then he agreed. "You're learning the game. We'll give her a $3 raise, and take her on."

Shortly thereafter Mitchell began to get acquainted with the new Miss Monon along the right lines, and gave her Thursday nights. She was a great improvement over Miss Day; she was, in fact, quite different from any of the others. She was small and winsome, and she didn't care to run around. She liked her home, and so did Mitchell after he had called a few times. Before long he began to look forward eagerly to Thursday nights and Miss Monon's cosy corner with its red-plush cushions—reminiscent of chair cars, to be sure—and its darkness illumined dimly by red and green signal lamps. Many a pleasant evening the two spent there, talking of locomotive planished iron, wire nails and turnbuckles, and the late lunch Miss Monon served beat the system's regular buffet service a city block. Of course, they lit the red fire in front of James & Naughten's and turned the green light Mitchell's way. He had the right of way on the Monon after that, and other salesmen were sidetracked. But this was too easy to last. Human affairs never run smoothly; it is a man's ability to surmount the hummocks and the pressure ridges that enables him to penetrate to the polar regions of success. The first inkling of disaster came to Mitchell when Miss Dunlap began to tire of the gay life and chose to spend her Monday evenings at home, where they might be alone together. She spoke of the domestic habits she had acquired during her brief matrimonial experience; she boldly declared that marriage was the ideal state for any man, and that two could live as cheaply as one, although personally she saw no reason why a girl should quit work the instant she became a wife, did he? She confessed that Monday evenings had become so pleasant that if Louis could arrange to drop in on Fridays also, the week would be considerably brightened thereby and her whole disposition improved. Now Fridays were clinched tightly to the Big Four, but the young man dared not acknowledge it, so he confessed that all his evenings except Monday were taken up with night school, whereupon Miss Dunlap, in order to keep abreast of his mental development, decided to take a correspondence course in Esperanto.

It transpired also that his attentions toward the Lackawanna had been misconstrued, for one night when Phoebe bade him adieu in the vestibule she broke down and wept upon his shoulder, saying that his coldness hurt her. She confessed that a rate clerk in the freight department wanted to marry her, and she supposed she'd have to accept his dastardly proposal because a girl couldn't go on working all her life, could she? Then Miss Gratz, of the C. & E. I., following a red-letter night at grand opera, succeeded by a German pancake and a stein at the Edelweiss and a cab ride home, took Louis gravely to task for his extravagance and hinted that he ought to have a permanent manager who took an interest in him, one who loved music as he did and whose tastes were simple and Teutonic.

When the literary lady of the Northwestern declined a trip to the White City and began to read Marion Crawford aloud to him, Louis awoke to the gravity of the situation.

But before he had worked that matter out in his own mind that rate clerk of whom Miss Lackawanna had spoken dropped in at Comer & Mathison's, introduced himself to Mitchell and told him, with a degree of firmness which could not be ignored, that his attentions to Miss Phoebe Snow were distasteful. He did not state to whom. Louis' caller had the physical proportions of a "white hope," and he wasted few words. He had come to nail up a vacate notice, and he announced simply but firmly that Miss Snow's Wednesday evenings were to be considered open time thereafter, and if Mitchell elected to horn his way in it was a hundred-to-one shot that he'd have to give up solid foods for a month or more and take his nourishment through a glass tube.

Nor were the young man's troubles confined to the office. Miss Harris, it seemed, had seen him with a different lady each night she and Mr. Gross had been out, and had drawn her own conclusions, so, therefore, when he tried to talk to her she flared up and called him a dissipated roue, and threatened to have the head bookkeeper give him a thrashing if he dared to accost her again.

Now, the various apartments where Mitchell had been calling, these past months, were opulently furnished with gifts from the representatives of the various railway supply houses of the city, each article being cunningly designed to cement in the mind of the owner a source of supply which, coupled with the price and delivery, would make for good sales service. He was greatly surprised one day to receive a brass library lamp from the Santa Fe, the initial destination of which evidently had been changed. Then came a mission hall clock in the original package, redirected in hand of Miss Gratz of the C. & E. I., and one day the office boy from the Lackawanna brought him a smoking set for which Miss Phoebe Snow had no use. Gifts like these piled up rapidly, many of them bearing witness to the fact that their consignment originated from Mitchell's very rivals in the railroad trade. Judging from the quantity of stuff that ricocheted from the Santa Fe it was Miss Dunlap's evident desire to present him with a whole housekeeping equipment as quickly as possible. Louis' desk became loaded with ornaments, his room at Mrs. Green's became filled with nearly Wedgewood vases, candlesticks, and other bric-a-brac. He acquired six mission hall clocks, a row of taborets stood outside of his door like Turkish sentinels, and his collection of ash receivers was the best in Chicago.

Miss Harris continued to ignore him, however, and he learned with a jealous pang that she was giving Mr. Gross a gratuitous course of facial massage and scalp treatments. No longer did Mitchell entertain his trade; they entertained him. They tried to help him save his money, and every evening he was forced to battle for his freedom.

In desperation he finally went to Murphy begging quick promotion to a traveling position, but the sales manager told him there was no chance before the first of the year, then asked him why he had lost his grip on the Lackawanna business.

As a matter of fact, since Miss Phoebe's rate clerk had declared himself Mitchell had slipped a few Wednesday nights, trusting to hold the Lackawanna trade by virtue of his past performance, but he realized in the light of Murphy's catechism that eternal visiting is the price of safety. He sighed, therefore, and called up the lady, then apprehensively made a date.

That visit issued in disaster, as he had feared. The rate clerk, gifted with some subtle second sight, had divined his treachery and was waiting. He came to meet the caller gladly, like a paladin. Louis strove to disarm the big brute by the power of the human eye, then, when that did not work, he explained, politely, earnestly, that his weekly calls were but part and parcel of his business, and that there was nothing in his mind so remote as thoughts of matrimony. But the rate clerk was a stolid, a suspicious person, and he was gnawed by a low and common jealousy. Reason failing, they came together, amalgamating like two drops of quicksilver.

On the following morning Mitchell explained to Mr. Comer that in stepping out of the bathtub he had slipped and wrenched both shoulders, then, while passing through the dark hall, he had put his face into mourning by colliding with an open door. His ankles he had sprained on the way downtown.

About 9:30 Miss Dunlap called up, but not to leave an order. When she had finally rung off Louis looked dazedly at the wire to see if the insulation had melted. It seemed impossible that rubber and guttapercha could withstand such heat as had come sizzling from the Santa Fe. From what the lady had said it required no great inductive powers to reason that the rate clerk had told all. Coming victorious to Miss Lackawanna's door to have his knuckles collodionized, he had made known in coarse, triumphant language, the base commercialism of his rival.

The result had been that Phoebe arose in her wrath. Just to verify the story she had called up the other railroad offices this morning, and the hideous truth had come out. It had come out like a herd of jack rabbits ahead of a hound. Miss Dunlap was shouting mad, but Phoebe herself, when she called up, was indignant in a mean, sarcastic manner that hurt. The Northwestern rang Mitchell to say good-by forever and to hope his nose was broken; the Big Four promised that her brother, who was a puddler in the South Chicago steel mills, would run in and finish the rate clerk's job; Miss Gratz of the C. & E. I. was tearfully plaintive and, being German, spoke of suicide. Of course, all business relations with these offices were at an end.

During that whole day but one phone order came, and that was from Miss Monon. Mitchell had been steeling himself to hear from her, but it seemed that she took the whole thing as rather a good joke. She told him she had known all the time why he came to see her, and when he reminded her that it was Thursday she invited him to call if he thought it worth his while.

When he saw Miss Harris at suppertime and undertook to explain his black eyes she assured him coldly that he and his ebony gig-lamps mattered nothing in her young life, as evidence of which she flashed a magnificent three-quarter carat diamond solitaire on her third finger. She and Mr. Gross expected to be married inside of two or three years if all went well, she told him.

At 8 o'clock, disguised behind a pair of blue goggles, Louis headed for Miss Monon's door, glad that the cosy corner was so dimly lighted. When he arrived she bathed his battle-scarred features with hamamelis, which is just the same as Pond's Extract, but doesn't cost so much, and told him the other girls had acted foolishly. She was very sweet and gentle with him and young Mitchell, imperfect as was his vision, saw something in her he had never seen before.

A week went by, during which it seemed that all the railroads except the Monon had suddenly gone out of business. It was as if a strike had been declared. Another week passed and Mitchell's sales were scarcely noticeable, so Mr. Comer called him in to ask:

"Is your phone disconnected?"

"No, sir."

"Do you know the price of our goods?"

"Yes, sir."

"Don't you sleep well at home?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then what has become of those pick-ups?"

"I seem to have lost—my trade."

"Your 'trade'! Bah! Young man, you've been dissipating. That expense account turned your head. You've been blowing in our money on your friends and you've let your customers go. If you can't hold the railroad business, we'll get some fellow who can. Cut out your sewing-circle wine suppers and your box parties to the North Shore debutantes and get busy. You've got a week to make good. One week."

There wasn't the slightest chance, and Mitchell told Miss Monon so when Thursday came around. He told her all about that promised position on the road and what it meant to him, and then he told her that beginning Monday he'd have to hunt a new berth at $12 per. She was very quiet, very sympathetic—so sympathetic, in fact, that he told her some other things which no young man on a diminishing salary should tell. She said little at the moment, but she did considerable thinking, and she got busy on her phone early the next morning. The first number she called was the Santa Fe's. When she had finished talking with Miss Dunlap, that hempen-haired sentimentalist was dabbing her eyes with her handkerchief and blowing her nose, assuring Miss Monon, at the same time, that she was a dear and that it was all right, now that she knew the truth. Miss Monon blushed prettily, thanked her, and confessed that she had felt it coming on for some time. Thereupon they took turns calling the others, from the Big Four to the C. & E. I., with the result that Mitchell's wire began to heat up.

Phoebe Snow called him to say that she hadn't meant what she said, that he was a good old scout, and that the rate clerk was sorry also, and wanted to stand treat for a Dutch lunch. Then she left an order for a ton and a half of engine bolts.

Miss Gratz cried a little when she heard Mitchell's voice and told him to make his own price for 40 kegs of washers and suit himself about delivery.

Miss Dunlap confessed that it was her pride which had spoken, and, anyhow, she knew altogether too much about marriage to take another chance. She'd rather have one man friend than three husbands.

One by one the flock returned, and Saturday night Mitchell sent five pounds of chocolates and a sheaf of red roses to the one who had made it all come out right. He got his share of business after that, and when the holidays came they brought him his promotion.

Murphy, who knew most of the facts, was the first to congratulate him. "Jove!" he said, "that little Monon lady saved your bacon, didn't she? By the way, you never told me what her name was."

Young Mitchell's cheeks assumed a shell-pink shade as he replied: "It doesn't matter what her name was, it's Mitchell now. We were married yesterday and—all the roads were represented at the wedding."

"Rammed Earth" Used for Walls

greater speed in building may be accomplished than in this case. It took two laborers 11 working days to lay 460 cubic feet of earth, or the equivalent of 10,000 brick, and by applying the local price of each type of labor, one may form his own conclusions as to the comparative cost.

It is almost useless at this time to attempt to make accurate estimates, but it seems probable that earth walls, plastered, can be built at from 50 per cent to 65 per cent less cost than common brick walls without plaster.

In this little building the author has experimented with various forms of waterproofing—with coal-tar products, applied directly to the exterior surface of the earth, with paint and with waterproofing material in the finishing coat of plaster, but time will be required to determine the necessity of using any of these substances, or of their relative usefulness. The author believes that with improved apparatus and more experienced labor, a very smooth surface for earth walls may be obtained and that scientific study may develop some means of hardening the earth so that a plaster coat would be superfluous even for decorative purposes.

TO THE EDITOR:

Pretty near all the papers and magazines you pick up now days is devoting considable space to the question of whether they's spirits or whether they ain't spirits, and I don't mean alcohol spirit, which I guess they's no question about life after death for those kind as old John Barleycorn was suppose to die a yr. ago last month but you can still go to a banquet or a card party and find 50 per cent of the guests pretty well haunted. What I refer to is the spirits that they claim is in the human body and keeps on liveing long after the Knights of Pythias has seen you properly sunk.

Most of the wise crackers laughs and calls it all bunk, but they's a few bright minds that has fell for it even in countrys where they still got the kind of liquor that you can get plastered without going cuckoo. Take for inst. Conan Doyle over in England who I don't mean that he drinks, but if he did he could get good stuff, but any way you got to pay some tension to his opinion in these matters in regards to life after death as he spilled Sherlock Holmes into the royal Geo or somewheres in one book and then brought him back to solve 80 thousand wds. of more mysterys.

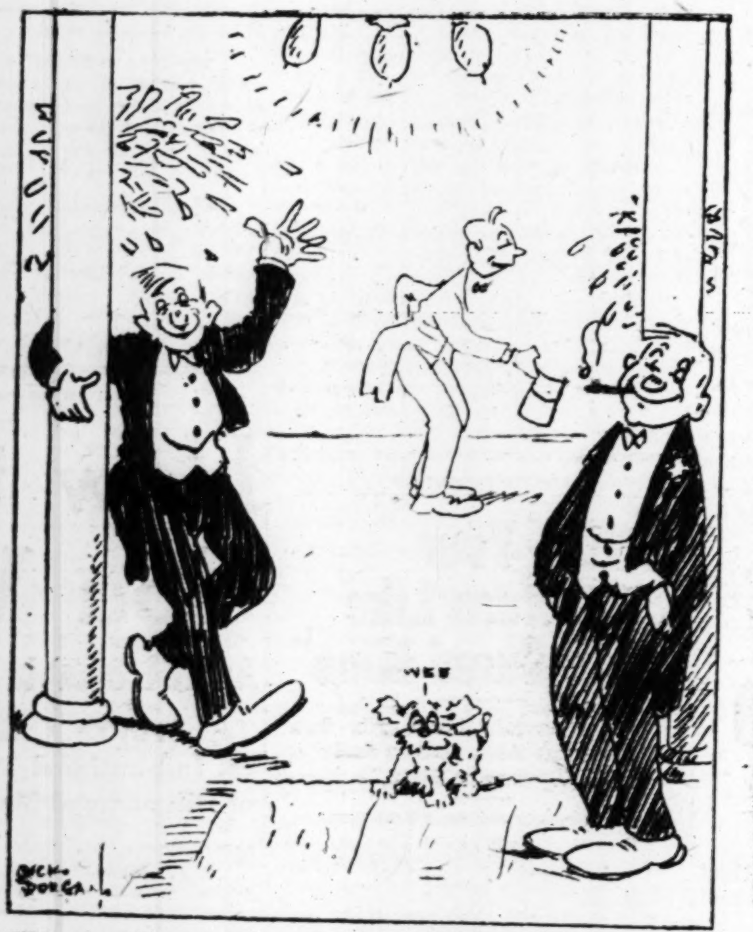
But wile I use to eat up Sherlock and always put Conan amongst my favorite authors, still and all his psychic articles didn't never prove nothing to me only that you can go to sleep a whole lot easier reading them than his detective storys. And I ain't even got no desire to believe the stuff that was in that last one I read where it said that some kind of dope flowed out of the medium and formed itself into the shapes of people that had departed and one of the shapes looked like President Wilson with a mustache. If I had 3 wishes the 4th. one would be to die and then trickle out of some medium and get in such shape that I looked like President Wilson with a mustache.

They's no doubt but that Conan is a bright mind and has made a study of the subject and is a expert on it and he believes in it, but that don't mean nothing. Look at the baseball wisenheimers that hadn't did nothing all their life but watch the game or play it and yet they didn't taste nothing sour in a team like Cincinnati knocking a pitcher like Lefty Wms. for 3 gools in a row.

No matter how smart or honest a person is they are libel to go wrong and as far as this baby is conserned I have quit takeing hearsay evidents for anything. For inst. plenty of guys that has apparently got a good mind and they wouldn't lie to me when it didn't get them nothing, well plenty of these guys has told me about different photo plays that they said was good, but until I see one that is good I won't believe they is such a thing.

And the same way about spirits. I wouldn't of never believed in them from reading Conan or Mr. Lodge. It took persanal experience to win me over and I will tell you about it, not with no idear of makeing converts but because I guess pretty near everybody is interested in the subject just at this time.

Well the other night I was talking to a friend of mine and we got talking about spirits and etc., and she said a friend of hers had told her about a friend of the gal I was talking to's friend, and this guy had a piece of property that he wanted to get rid of it and he got a offer for the property and he set down to write a letter accepting the offer, but when he got all ready to write the pen begin writeing for him and here is what it wrote:



"You can still go to a banquet or a card party and find 50 per cent of the guests pretty well haunted."

"Don't sell now but wait till the 4 of Jan. and you will get a offer that is $1200 more." And the pen signed his old man's name that had died in the real estate business. So the guy waited till the 4 of Jan. and sure enough he got the offer with the $1200 raise and took it.

So my friend that was telling me about this says:

"That is what they call automatic writeing. It hasn't never happened to me personly but you can bet that if it does I will follow the advice they give me, because I heard of another man that was a Yale man and just before the Yale-Princeton game last fall he got a wire from a friend of his out west asking him did he want to bet on Yale and he did, so he went to the telegraph office to wire and take the bet, and just as he was going to write the telegram the pencil begin moveing in his hand and wrote down.

"'Don't bet on Yale.'

"But the man was a unbeliever so he made the pen write what he wanted it to and took the bet and lose $500."

Well, I said the spirits seemed to have the right dope in both them instants though a whole lot of people that wasn't dead yet had told me to not bet on Yale, but I said it was silly to disregard tips like that when you got them because if they was such a thing as spirits they probably knowed more about things that is going on than we do.

But I says I didn't suppose a experience such as those would ever come to me as I don't hardly ever use a pen only to sign mortgages. So my friend said she supposed it could happen with a typewriter just as good as a pen or pencil so I come home and didn't think no more about it till the next morning when I set down in front of the typewriter to work.

For over an hr. I set there with both fingers in position to write but not a word come. Then all of a sudden my fingers began to move and before they stopped they was a sentence wrote on the paper, but so dim I couldn't hardly make it out. Here is what it said:

"Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of the party and get a new ribbon."

That was what was wrote on the paper and I set there maybe a couple hrs more but not another word showed up and finely I remembered what happened to the man that took the advice and what happened to the man that didn't, so I jumped on a train and went to N. Y. city and bought myself a new ribbon and set up most of that night getting it fixed O. K. in the typewriter.

The next day I set down at the desk again and waited and this time it was 2 hrs. before my fingers begin to move. The words was a whole lot plainer than the other time and was as follows:

"Don't work today don't work today don't work today."

Three straight days I set there the same length of time and three straight days I got the same advice and followed it to the letter and this is the 4th day and I have been working, but just now my fingers begun to run wild again and this is what they wrote:

"Don't work no more you are all wore out."

So I guess you won't blame me if I obey and you won't blame me neither for changeing my mind about spirits though as I say I don't expect to convert no skeptics with my testimony. My own family for inst. She asked me just last night why I hadn't did no work lately and I told her because the spirit had advised me not to and she says whose spirit and I said I didn't know.

So she says, "I know. It's your own spirit."

So I says, "Don't be silly because when its automatic writeing the spirit that dictates has got to be the spirit of somebody that is dead."

"Well," she says. RING W. LARDNER.

in the town gang, the nearest three or four canvasmen could usually take care of it, but if there was a crowd and things began to get too hot, one of the canvasmen would shout, 'Hey, Rube!'

"This was the 'S O S' call of the circus, and everyone who could leave what he was doing would grab a stake from the stake wagon and rush into the fracas. The town gang was always the loser. If it had not been, the circus could not have stayed on the road long. Black eyes, bloody noses, bruised heads and broken bones were common.

"Often there were more serious injuries and sometimes a man was killed. Very often men connected with the circus were arrested, but they were seldom convicted, for in such a rough-and-tumble fight it was almost impossible to tell which man inflicted a particular injury and the authorities usually got the wrong one."

As everybody knows, pink lemonade for many years has been as characteristic of the American circus as the clown himself. But Conklin says that very few, even among the show people, know its origin and gives this account of it:

"The fact that lemonade of a pink color would be more popular and sell faster than the ordinary variety was discovered quite accidentally in 1857 by my brother Pete. He was traveling with the Jerry Mabie show, which at that time was the leading show in the country." * * *

(Pete's stock consisted of peanuts, sugar, tartaric acid and one lemon. In telling the story Pete said that "that lemon was the best example of a friend I ever met. It stayed with me to the end.")

"The lemonade sold splendidly, and he could not wait on the crowd fast enough. One day he was surrounded by a mob scrambling for the liquid refreshment, when he found that his water supply had run out. There was no well or springs near. He rushed all around the show for water, but could find none.

"In his eagerness for it, and as a last resort, he went into the dressing tent. Fannie Jamieson, one of the bareback riders, had just finished wringing out a pair of pink tights. The color had run and left the water a deep pink. Without giving any explanation or stopping to answer her questions, Pete grabbed the tub of pink water and ran.

"It took only a minute to throw in some of the tartaric acid and the pieces of the 'property' lemon, and then he began to call out, 'Come quickly; buy some fine strawberry lemonade.' That day his sales doubled and from then on no first-class circus was without pink lemonade.

"The recipe for circus lemonade has not changed from that day to this. A tub of water—with no particular squeamishness regarding its source—tartaric acid, some sugar, enough aniline dye to give it a rich pink, and for a finish some thin slices of lemon. The slices of lemon are known as 'floaters,' and any which are left in the tub at the close of a day's business, together with those which have come back in the glasses, are carefully saved over for the next day's use."

In his artless way, Conklin recalls that one season in California, when water was scarce, the lemonade man often went to him in great perturbation because he could get no water, "and for a price I relieved his distress by knocking out the plug and letting him fill his cans from the sea lions' tank."

Readers who are interested in animals will find this book crowded with interesting statements about them. Since Conklin trained some 30 cages of lions, about 20 hyenas, several elephants and other animals (after 40 years of it he may well have lost exact count), what he says must be true. For instance:

"Like many other popular beliefs about lions, it is not true that because one walks rapidly up and down his cage he is ugly. The contrary is more likely to be true. A lion that will walk round when you get in the cage with him is all right, as a general thing, but look out for the one that goes and lies down in a corner.

"Another widely popular belief is that a lion will not look a human being in the face. This, too, has no basis in fact. It is true, though, that you should never let one get behind you if you can help it, though in many of the acts it is not possible to keep all of them in front of you all the time. * * *

Neither does a lion's growl mean anything. A lion that growls frightfully and acts ferocious when you are outside the cage may be one of the easiest to handle and to get work out of when once you are actually in the cage; and, on the other hand, a lion that is mean and dangerous to do anything with in the cage may be exceptionally docile from the outside and allow you to pet him freely."

Conklin says he believes that altogether he handled more lions than anybody else in the United States, but that only once was he ever hurt by one of them enough to be laid up. This occurred while he was going through a waltz with a lion specially trained for that purpose. How it happened Conklin never did learn—whether he stepped on the lion's tail or whether it was caprice—but one of the animals behind him suddenly reached out and bit him clear through the thigh. Conklin reached round and struck him over the head with the butt of his whip as hard as he could, whereupon the lion let go and sank to the floor. The trainer got out of the cage as quickly as possible, and was unable to work for the next three weeks.

Conklin says that the elephant is the most affectionate of animals, but will hold a grudge for some time, although not for periods of years, as it does in fiction. It is the only animal which will make an effort by itself to learn a trick, he says.

There are exciting accounts of the pursuit and recapture of lions, elephants and other dangerous animals which had broken loose, often at night and in strange surroundings. Curiously enough, however, Conklin says:

"I was always glad that I did not have many horses in my charge, for I was afraid of them and never went through the horse tent when it was full if I could help it, for fear one of them would reach back and kick me."

Among the famous showmen who appear in his pages are John ("Pogey") O'Brien, W. W. Cole, "old" Adam Forepaugh, P. T. Barnum (who used to be driven slowly around the hippodrome track, while the performance paused, standing up at intervals and calling out in a squeaky voice: "I suppose you came to see Barnum, didn't you? Wa-al, I'm Mr. Barnum"); J. A. Bailey, who became Barnum's partner, and Otto Ringling of Ringling Brothers.

One of the most interesting chapters in the book is about the followers, freaks and fakers, with an account of some of the swindling schemes which characterized the circus of the past. Today, says the author, there is no place from which "slick gentlemen" are more persistently and skillfully hounded than the grounds of a first-class circus. But the good old days of the circus were picturesque, even though they did break most of the commandments, and we may be glad that Conklin, Tamer of Lions, has preserved them so faithfully for the delectation of future readers.

"Cure Your Rupture Like I Cured Mine"

Sea Captain Cured His Own Rupture After Doctors Said "Operate or Death."

His Remedy and Book Sent Free.

Captain Collings sailed the seas for many years: then he sustained a bad double rupture that soon forced him to not only remain ashore, but kept him bedridden for years. He tried doctor after doctor and truss after truss. No results! Finally, he was assured that he must either submit to a dangerous and abhorrent operation or die. He did neither! He cured himself instead.

"Fellow Men and Women, You Don't Have To Be Cut Up, and You Don't Have To Be Tortured By Trusses."

Captain Collings made a study of himself, of his condition—and at last he was rewarded by the finding of the method that so quickly made him a well, strong, vigorous and happy man.

Anyone can use the same method; it's simple, easy, safe and inexpensive. Every ruptured person in the world should have the Captain Collings book, telling all about how he cured himself, and how anyone may follow the same treatment in their own home without any trouble. The book and medicine are FREE. They will be sent prepaid to any rupture sufferer who will fill out the below coupon. But send it right away—now—before you put down this paper.

OVERLOOK HOUSE

She accepted that equably, saying: "Very well. And if you have anything new to say to me, you can go over to Mr. Cordwainer. He'll know how to reach me."

"Yes, that will answer," he replied. "Do you want to take down these names I have given you?"

"No; I have a very good memory," she replied, showing her fine teeth. "I'll go up there tonight."

He arose as she did. She said, affably: "Good afternoon, Mr. Hilton." He replied: "Good afternoon, Miss George," and saw her to the door.

There was a vague disappointment, for it had not been at all detective-like, but crisp and business-like as a talk about a bond deal. All the same, she impressed him as a competent woman, and that was the main thing.

He treated himself to another very little drink and lit a cigarette. . . . If he could get a castiron grip on the Pennells, it would, to say the least, be a very useful anchor to the windward. He didn't doubt that Pennell Junior was in a trap, which needed only some skillful handling in order to be sprung to good purpose.

The sign on the door said "Cordwainer," and nothing more, as though one could know beforehand who or what Cordwainer was or go without knowing. The corridor from which this door opened had a dingy look. The building—on Park row—was dingy, also, and quite ancient in comparison with the day before yesterday colossus which towered 25 stories beside it; but it suited Cordwainer's purpose.

In a small room—one of a suite behind that door—Jenny George sat half an hour after leaving Lester Hilton, making her report to the man at the belittered desk. He was a man on whom nothing had been wasted—with no superfluous weight; his wiry frame just conveniently sufficient to hold his bones together, and composed entirely, it seemed, of sinews and nerves. He wore a beard, trimmed as close to his thin cheeks as it could be without a razor, and cut off, in a point, immediately under his chin.

"A maid in Judge Tillman Crane's house, eh?" he commented, plucking at his beard, when Miss George had told her story. And here again there might be need of careful steering. "Milt Eastman went up there last night. Danforth Crane sent for him. . . . A chance that it might be the same case. We'll have to be careful. I'll tell Milt that you are coming and where to find you. See him first. If it is the same case we've got to look out." He knew from experience that being employed on both sides of the same case was a delicate matter. Jenny George understood that, as a matter of course.

There was no one to meet her when she got off the train at Windham station about 11 o'clock the next morning, but she was not used to being met. "Harbor House," she said to the taxi driver as he took her suitcase and bag—that being the name of the hotel to which she was to go. She found that it was at the edge of town, overlooking a fine, rockbound, horseshoe harbor that served admirably as a shelter for yachts and an occasional battleship in the summer time. The frame hotel, evidently built in several sections, managed to keep a colonial look in spite of the broad two-story veranda that ran completely around it. Jenny presumed, impartially, that Cordwainer had sent her there instead of to one of the more fashionable establishments away from the town because it was cheaper. But it wouldn't be cheaper to Mr. Lester Hilton. When she registered the clerk handed her a sealed envelope which a gentleman had left for her that morning, and she recognized Eastman's hand in the superscription. The scribbled message ran:

"Will look for you on the veranda here at 3 o'clock."

So far, so easy. She had nothing to do but eat luncheon and sit on the broad veranda looking at the harbor. The message suggested that Eastman's case and hers were the same.

There Eastman found her at 3 o'clock, greeting her with a cordial, "Hello, Jenny."

"Hello, Milt," she replied in the same spirit, as he sat down beside her. "I was just wishing they'd go on losing parlor maids up here from now to October. I could stand a lot of this. . . . I suppose you know what I'm up here for."

"Same case as mine," said Eastman, good-naturedly. "There's a little boat starts from near this hotel at 4 o'clock and goes up a little river to a little town where—the natives tell me—they know how to broil a little lobster right; also, steamed clams, et cetera. We'll go there and detect 'em at it."

"Got all that time to spill?" she asked.

Eastman's good nature expanded into a chuckle. "This case," he replied, judicially, "is just about a hundred per cent perfect. It's too good for a detective story; somebody ought to make it into an epic poem. Some people get all stirred up about the disappearance of a maid, you know.

"A person with a summer squash on his shoulders and a straw hat on that said he saw her lying in Judge Crane's laundry. Hence the mystery—what became of the maid? They send down to Cordwainer and get his two ablest detectives. The most ablest detective—having been brought up in the business and not on detective literature—gets the prodigious idea of asking the squash a couple of questions, and in two minutes the squash tells him the whole story. So now the mystery that you and I have got to solve is this: How many days can we stall along here, where the stalling's good and keep the people who sign the checks from blundering onto the solution of their mystery without help? I've always said the hardest thing a detective has to do is to keep from being detected."

Jenny George fully appreciated the cause for good humor which he thus disclosed. "As easy as that?" she asked, beaming.

"Just about that easy," he repeated. "Got your bright eyes book with you?"

That question referred to a volume of astrology, divination and fortune telling which she had found useful as a means of setting up social relations with females of limited education.

"Uh-huh," she replied, meaning yes.

"There's a little work you might do at the back door of a doctor's residence here tomorrow," he said. "But today we can concentrate our minds on lobster."

How long they could "stall," as Eastman termed it—meaning how long they could loaf on the job—might be an interesting question academically; but it involved obvious risks, and on Thursday the detective made a report to Danforth Crane. (Copyright.)

Type of Negro Mammy in Days "Befo' de Wah"

"Abram Lincoln did what no other man had ever done, but I hated to see all those men killed," she replied evasively.

"The condition of your race has immeasurably improved because of that sacrifice," it was suggested, tentatively, for it was apparent from her happiness in dwelling upon the past that she might disagree. "You have schools now, you have hospitals, equal opportunities in industry and in politics and the professions."

"Humph!" she sniffed. "I've never been in any of their schools. Nor in any of their hospitals"—she shuddered at this word. "And nowadays white folks think niggers ought to be kept off to themselves. That ain't the white folks' fault," she added, with characteristic loyalty. "When I first saw St. Louis after the war, the steamboats was like that on the river"—expressively she locked her fingers tight together. "And all the work was done by niggers. They couldn't get along without niggers. It was the furriners, not the white folks, that scattered the niggers away."

"Niggers may learn something in schools," she said, returning to that subject, "but they don't learn other things they used to learn from the white folks. They don't learn any manners, and there never used to be any bad niggers that I can remember. I don't believe in all this equality stuff. If the Lord didn't intend we should not be equal and should not be mixed, he would not make the little black babies so black and the white ones so white.

"I never have associated much with my own color," she said, with a touch of hauteur. "I always remember that I used to live among the best. I knew I was a slave, but except for knowin' it, it never bothered me. I was boss in my own kitchen. My white folks was all good livers. We never measured anything. Just reached down into a hogshead of sugar or a hogshead of lard and take what you wanted. And it was nice for the white ladies, too. They never had to do anything except just sit and sew or go a-visitin' or go out drivin'.

"I am sorry for the young ladies now. When I go down to the tall buildings to see Miss Streator, who used to be my master's secretary, and who seems like the only white folks I got left, I see them all working just like the men. It don't seem right."

"Perhaps the young ladies are not sorry for themselves. Perhaps they like the less secluded life," it was suggested.

"Oh, they are so gentle and kind always to an old woman. I do not believe they are any different.

"I had plenty to eat and a good home and the best of everything. Now look at me. I have to live off of my daughter and she has to go out to work every day, and who's goin' to take care of her when she gets old?"

Her daughter, a widow, is the last survivor of 10 children Aunt Susan has borne. All the others succumbed in early maturity to the white plague.

The mother apparently has not influenced the daughter's outlook on life. She told of owning her own home, a tidy five-room house, with its patch of ground, adjoining the Baptist Church in Old Kinloch. Her late husband, I inferred, had been the pastor of the church. She spoke of going out to work every day, but with pride in her independence and being beholden to nobody.

It was Sunday and Aunt Susan was attired in a black silk dress, a good deal the worse for wear, but nevertheless black silk—and a white lace jabot. She had been to church and the street car conductor had told her she ought not go about alone; that she was "too venturesome," at which remark, in repeating it, she sniffed scornfully. Her hearing and eyesight, apparently, are still in good working order. She greeted me in French, a smattering of which she retains from her early association with the French Gregoires, so long ago. She can say her Ave Marias and her Pater Nosters in French and also she can sing, she added, in detailing her accomplishments. By way of demonstration she sang quite lustily:

"On to Richmond! On to Richmond, early in the morning.
On to Richmond, I heard the Yankees say,
Oh, what's the matter, Susy, what's the matter, Lou!
What's the matter, what's the matter,
Whoop do doodle do.
Oh, the Yankees are a chargin'
All through the bush,
And the rebels are in earnest,
Push, boys, push."

About a hundred other verses of this song, besides innumerable other songs, would she sing to me and entertain me with more of her "devilment" as she used to entertain her white folks, if I would come to see her another time.

Gen. Bernhardi Sees Hope for New Germany

until the attack on fortified points in Belgium.

The technical side of the work will doubtless be of real interest to those who follow military pursuits, because of his analysis of the instruments of war used and his opinion as to how they will have to be developed for the next war, of which he is hopeful. Members of the aerial service will be interested in his predictions of what will be needed in that line and cavalrymen will not be surprised to learn that he believes cavalry could have been an important factor in the late war if the nations had properly understood its value. The importance of cavalry was totally misunderstood, he said, and he thinks that the reason the French and British cavalry did not have more effect was because its leaders did not put that branch of the service to its proper use.

Of course, with Hindenburg a popular hero of the war, he has to throw in some eulogy about that officer. But he also seems to take a sly dig at him by saying that, had not Germany been compelled to withdraw troops from the western front to win the battle of the Masurian lakes, it might have won the battle of the Marne. This would have been a turning point in the war, he thinks, and adds that even if the Russians had been allowed to proceed through East Prussia, they could have been driven out after the Marne battle. As the battle of the Masurian lakes was heretofore believed to have been won by Hindenburg's unaided ability, this opinion of Bernhardi seems like a slam at his superior.

He does not wish to give credit to the Americans, although he mentions them as appearing in great numbers. He does not say definitely that they turned the scale of battle, however. In his chapter dealing with the future composition of companies in a regiment, he pays an indirect tribute to the American Marines by specifying, as the ideal composition for a company of the future, practically the same elements of which every company of United States Marines was composed—a certain number of machine gunners, another proportion of bombers, and so on. He believes the individual automatic rifle will be the ideal arm for infantry in the "next war" and this again was anticipated by the Marines, who had an automatic school at Quantico training camp.

Technical descriptions of artillery, transportation; the use of aircraft and of other points connected with the physical side of war take up too much space to be quoted here.

Bernhardi admits that the time is hardly ripe for the formation of a "real army" in his country just at present, but hopefully concludes:

"Germany will rise again. She has a great future before her!"

And all readers of his book will see that the way he thinks she is to attain this future lies through the "next war."

Free Proof that I Can Raise Your Pay

No matter how much you are earning now, I can show you how to increase it. I have even taken failures and shown them how to make $100—$200, and in one case as high as $2000 weekly. I am willing to prove this entirely at my risk and expense.

LET'S have a little chat about getting ahead—you and I. My name is Pelton. Lots of people call me "The Man Who Makes Men Rich." I don't deny it. I've done it for thousands of people—lifted them up from poverty to riches.

I'm no genius—far from it. I'm just a plain, everyday, unassuming sort of a man. I know what poverty is. I've looked black despair in the eye—had failure stalk me around and hoodoo everything I did. I've known the bitterest kind of want.

But today all is different. I have money and all the things that money will buy. I am rich also in the things that money won't buy—health, happiness and friendship. Few people have more of the blessings of the world than I.

IT WAS a simple thing that jumped me up from poverty to riches. As I've said, I am no genius. But I had the good fortune to know a genius. One day this man told me a "secret." It had to do with getting ahead and growing rich. He had used it himself with remarkable results. He said that every wealthy man knew this "secret"—that is why he was rich.

I used the "secret." It surely had a good test. At that time I was flat broke. Worse than that, for I was several thousand dollars in the hole. I had about given up hope when I put the "secret" to work.

At first I couldn't believe my sudden change in fortune. Money actually flowed in on me. I was thrilled with a new sense of power. Things I couldn't do before came as easy for me to do as opening a door. My business boomed and continued to leap ahead at a rate that startled me. Prosperity became my partner. Since that day I've never known what it is to want for money, friendship, happiness, health or any of the good things in life.

That "secret" surely made me rich in every sense of the word.

MY SUDDEN rise to riches naturally surprised others. One by one people came to me and asked me how I did it. I told them. And it worked for them as well as it did for me.

Some of the things this "secret" has done for people are astounding. I would hardly believe them if I hadn't seen them with my own eyes. Adding ten, twenty, thirty or forty dollars a week to a man's income is a mere nothing. That's merely playing at it. In one case I took a rank failure and in a few weeks had him earning as high as $2,000.00 a week. Listen to this:

A Few Examples

Personal Experiences

Among over 400,000 users of "Power of Will" are such men as Judge Ben B. Lindsey; Supreme Court Justice Parker; Wu Ting Fang, ex-U. S. Chinese Ambassador; Assistant Postmaster General Britt; Gov. McKelvie of Nebraska; General Manager Christeson of Wells-Fargo Express Co.; E. St. Elmo Lewis, former Vice Pres. Art Metal Construction Co.; Gov. Ferris of Michigan, and many others of equal prominence.

$300 Profit From One Day's Reading

"The result from one day's study netted me $300 cash. I think it a great book and would not be without it for ten times the cost."—Col. A. W. Wilke, Roscoe, S. Dak.

Worth $15,000 and More

"The book has been worth more than $15,000 to me."—Oscar B. Sheppard.

Would Be Worth $100,000

"If I had only had it when I was 20 years old I would be worth $100,000 today. It is worth a hundred times the price."—S. W. Taylor, The Santa Fe Ry., Milans, Tex.

Salary Jumped From $150 to $800

"Since I read Power of Will my salary has jumped from $150 to $800 a month."—J. F. Gibson, San Diego, Cal.

From $100 to $3000 a Month

"One of our boys who read Power of Will before he came over here jumped from $100 a month to $3000 the first month, and won a $250 prize for the best salesmanship in the State."—Private Leslie A. Still, A. E. F., France.

A young man in the East had an article for which there was a nationwide demand. For twelve years he "puttered around" with it—barely eking out a living. Today this young man is worth $200,000. He built a $25,000 home—and paid cash for it. He has three automobiles. His children go to private schools. He goes hunting, fishing, traveling, whenever the mood strikes him. His income is over a thousand dollars a week.

In a little town in New York lives a man who, a few years ago, was pitied by all who knew him. From the time he was 14 he had worked and slaved—and at 60 he was looked upon as a failure. Without work, in debt to charitable friends, with an invalid son to support, the outlook was pitch-black.

Then he learned the "secret." In two weeks he was in business for himself. In three months his plant was working night and day to fill orders. During 1916 the profits were $20,000. During 1917 the profits were close to $40,000. And this genial 64-year-young man is enjoying pleasures and comforts he little dreamed would ever be his.

I COULD tell you thousands of similar instances. But there's no need to do this, as I'm willing to tell you the "secret" itself. Then you can put it to work and see what it will do for you. I don't claim I can make you rich over night. Maybe I can—maybe I can't. Sometimes I have failures—everyone has. But I do claim that I can help 90 out of every 100 people if they will let me.

The point of it all, my friend, is that you are using only about one-tenth of that wonderful brain of yours. That's why you haven't won greater success. Throw the unused nine-tenths of your brain into action and you'll be amazed at the almost instantaneous results.

The Will is the motive power of the brain. Without a highly trained, inflexible will, a man has about as much chance of attaining success in life as a railway engine has of crossing the continent without steam. The biggest ideas have no value without will power to "put them over." Yet the will, although heretofore entirely neglected, can be trained into wonderful power like the brain or memory and by the very same method—intelligent exercise and use.

If you held your arm in a sling for two years, it would become powerless to lift a feather, from lack of use. The same is true of the Will—it becomes useless from lack of practice. Because we don't use our Will—because we continually bow to circumstances—we become unable to assert ourselves. What our wills need is practice.

Develop your will power and money will flow in on you. Rich opportunities will open up for you. Driving energy you never dreamed you had will manifest itself. You will thrill with a new power—a power that nothing can resist. You'll have an influence over people that you never thought possible. Success—in whatever form you want it—will come as easy as failures came before. And those are only a few of the things the "secret" will do for you. The "secret" is fully explained in the wonderful book "Power of Will."

How You Can Prove This at My Expense

I KNOW you'll think that I've claimed a lot. Perhaps you think there must be a catch somewhere. But here is my offer. You can easily make thousands—you can't lose a penny.

Send no money—no, not a cent. Merely clip the coupon and mail it to me. By return mail you'll receive, not a pamphlet, but the whole "secret" told in this wonderful book, "POWER OF WILL."

Keep it five days. Look it over in your home. Apply some of its simple teachings. If it doesn't show you how you can increase your income many times over—just as it has for thousands of others—mail the book back. You will be out nothing.

But if you do feel that "POWER OF WILL" will do for you what it has done for over four hundred thousand others—if you feel as they do—that it's the next greatest book to the Bible—send me only $4.00 and you and I will be square.

If you pass this offer by, I'll be out only the small profit on a four-dollar sale. But you—you may easily be out the difference between what you're making now and an income several times as great. So you see you've a lot—a whole lot—more to lose than I.

Mail the coupon or write a letter now—you may never read this offer again.

CHENEY SILKS

PRESENTING A NEW IDEA

THERE'S a new idea for Spring—an undeniably smart one, despite the fact that it first appeared on this side of the ocean. As a matter of fact, it, like Topsy, "just grew" as a delightful sequence out of the collection of Cheney designs for Spring. The idea is to design one's frock from the same motif that inspired the design of the silk. And to be convinced of the charming possibilities of the plan, one may take as an example the frock illustrated.

A rose, upturned to the sun so that one glimpses the grace of the slim stem, the curves of the calyx and the curled petals, is printed on Cheney Twill against a trellised background. The frock itself develops the theme with petal-shaped panels of twill over Crêpe Chenette, pointed and picot-edged, suggestive of rose-leaves. Grosgrain ribbon lacing repeats the squares of the trellis, and forms little petal-like tabs at the edge of the waist.

Stores with a reputation for fine merchandise will be quite sure to sell Cheney Silks, either by the yard or in garments ready to wear.

Our food, though plentiful and good, is often robbed of this vital element

Tables loaded with food, yet—

a vital element now known to be lacking in our meals

A simple food that builds health

Fleischmann's Yeast, a simple familiar food, increases appetite, and helps all the processes of digestion. To build up and maintain health, keeping the body resistant to disease, eat 1 to 3 cakes of yeast a day—a part of your regular diet.

Laxatives gradually replaced

It is recognized that laxatives bring only temporary relief—they cannot remove the cause of the trouble. Fleischmann's Yeast by its very nature as a wholesome food is better suited to the system than coarse substances, drugs or oils. It is a conditioner that tends to restore normal functions. And it cannot form a habit.

For constipation, eat from 1 to 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast a day.

THE vital tissues upon which their health and strength depend, starving for lack of one single element in food! That is the situation of thousands of men and women today.

Science has discovered that the mysterious life-giving vitamine is essential to health. Without it our food, no matter how good and plentiful, cannot give us the energy we need.

Yet our modern diet is often robbed of this vital element by manufacture and preparation! "We now know definitely," writes one of our greatest authorities, "that the regular diet of a large portion of the people of the United States is falling short of maintaining satisfactory nutrition."

The mysterious, almost magical "vitamine"— its richest source

Yeast is the richest known source of the vigor-making vitamine which is lacking is so many of our common foods. This is what has caused yeast to assume such a new and startling importance in our food.

Physicians and food specialists have obtained almost magic results by adding it to diets.

Today, thousands of men and women are eating Fleischmann's Yeast to correct the vitamine deficiency in their ordinary meals. As a result, they are finding themselves free of minor ailments. They are building up increased resistance to disease, and are feeling an abounding sense of vigor and energy often unknown for years.

Eat yeast before or between meals. 1 to 3 cakes a day. Spread it on toast or crackers—dissolve it in milk or fruit-juices—or eat it plain. Those who are troubled with gas should first dissolve yeast in boiling water.

Place a standing order with your grocer for Fleischmann's Yeast and get it fresh daily.

To learn more about what this important discovery has done for others and what it can do for you, send for new booklet, "The New Importance of Yeast in Diet." Address THE FLEISCHMANN CO., Dept. 126-C 701 Washington Street, New York, N. Y.

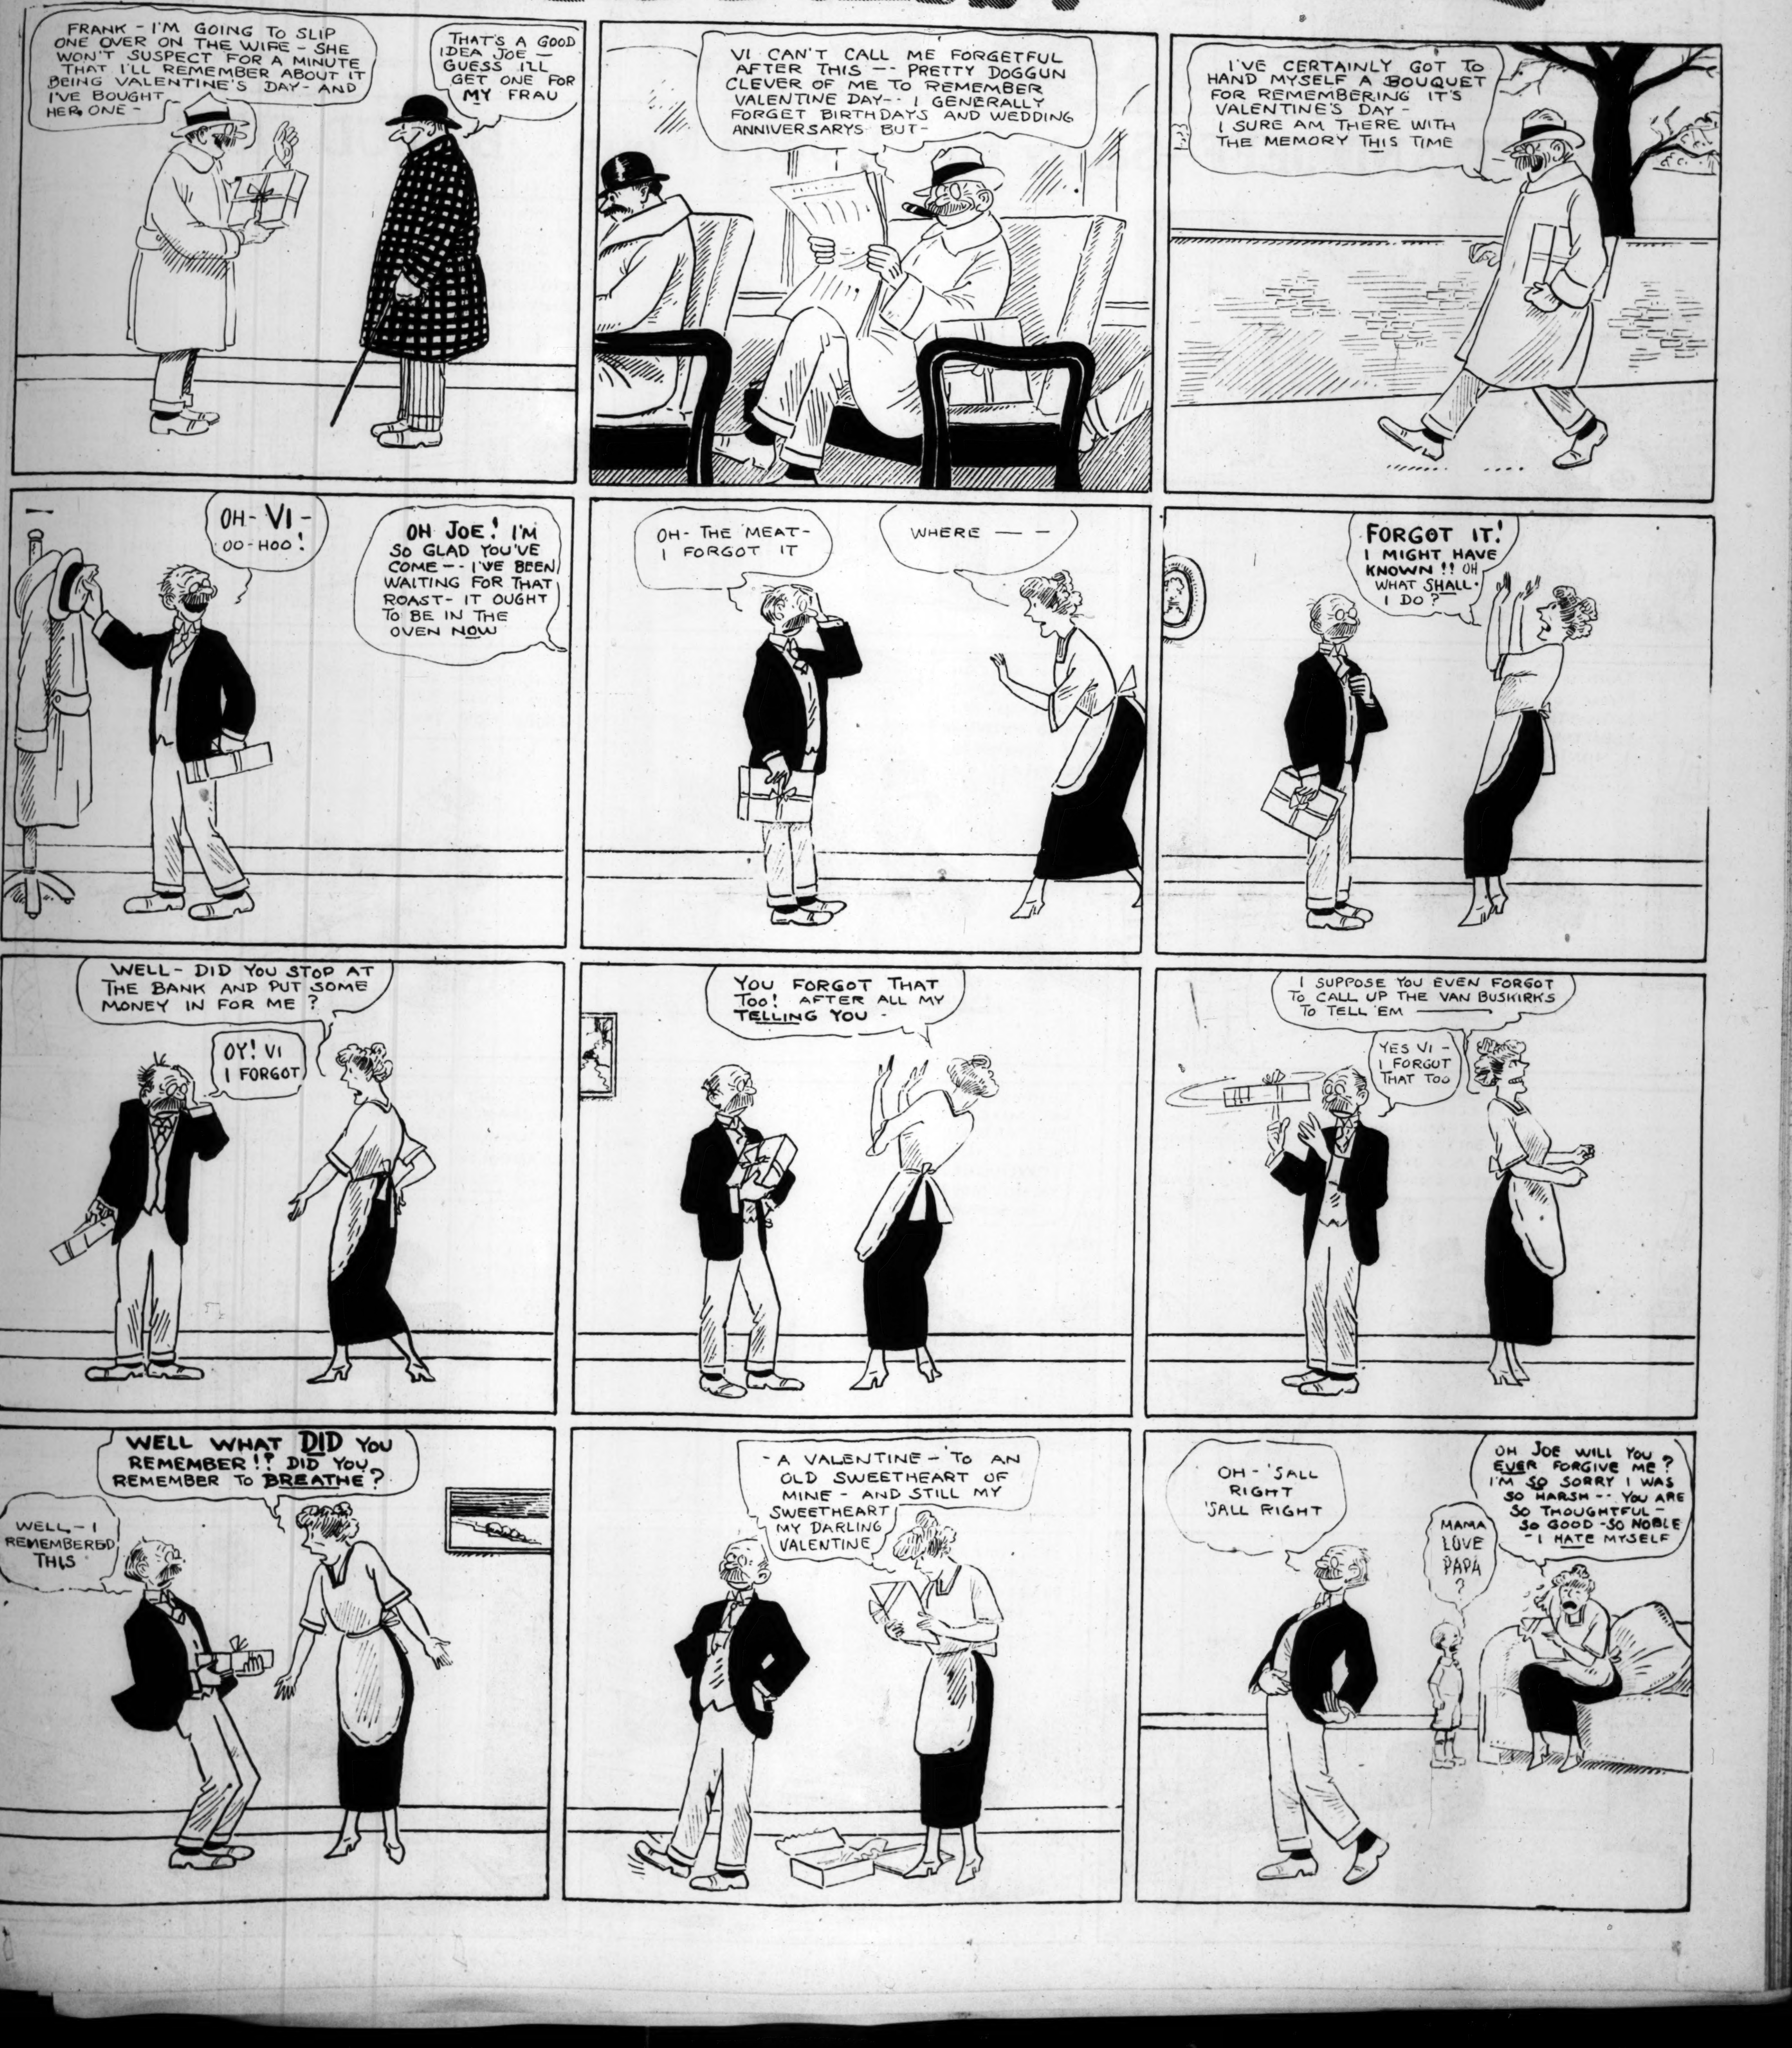
Mr. and Mrs. ——



FRANK - I'M GOING TO SLIP ONE OVER ON THE WIFE - SHE WON'T SUSPECT FOR A MINUTE THAT I'LL REMEMBER ABOUT IT BEING VALENTINE'S DAY - AND I'VE BOUGHT HER ONE -
THAT'S A GOOD IDEA JOE — GUESS I'LL GET ONE FOR MY FRAU
VI CAN'T CALL ME FORGETFUL AFTER THIS -- PRETTY DOGGUN CLEVER OF ME TO REMEMBER VALENTINE DAY -- I GENERALLY FORGET BIRTHDAYS AND WEDDING ANNIVERSARYS BUT -
I'VE CERTAINLY GOT TO HAND MYSELF A BOUQUET FOR REMEMBERING IT'S VALENTINE'S DAY - I SURE AM THERE WITH THE MEMORY THIS TIME
OH - VI - OO-HOO!
OH JOE! I'M SO GLAD YOU'VE COME -- I'VE BEEN WAITING FOR THAT ROAST - IT OUGHT TO BE IN THE OVEN NOW
OH - THE MEAT - I FORGOT IT
WHERE — —
FORGOT IT! I MIGHT HAVE KNOWN!! OH WHAT SHALL I DO?
WELL - DID YOU STOP AT THE BANK AND PUT SOME MONEY IN FOR ME?
OY! VI I FORGOT
YOU FORGOT THAT TOO! AFTER ALL MY TELLING YOU -
I SUPPOSE YOU EVEN FORGOT TO CALL UP THE VAN BUSKIRKS TO TELL 'EM ——
YES VI - I FORGOT THAT TOO
WELL WHAT DID YOU REMEMBER!! DID YOU REMEMBER TO BREATHE?
WELL - I REMEMBERED THIS
- A VALENTINE - 'TO AN OLD SWEETHEART OF MINE - AND STILL MY SWEETHEART MY DARLING VALENTINE'
MAMA LOVE PAPA ?
OH JOE WILL YOU EVER FORGIVE ME? I'M SO SORRY I WAS SO HARSH -- YOU ARE SO THOUGHTFUL - SO GOOD - SO NOBLE - I HATE MYSELF

WHAT'S THE MATTER, JEFF?
I SUPPOSE YOU CAN LAY YOUR HAND RIGHT ON THE CARBOLIC ACID BOTTLE, CAN'T YOU?
YES, JEFF!
AND IF YOU HAD TO YOU COULD FIND THE STRYCHNINE BOTTLE IN A MINUTE OR SO?
WHY, OF COURSE!
AND THE ARSENIC HASN'T GOT LOST OR MISLAID WAY BEYOND FINDING IT? ANSWER ME THAT!
CERTAINLY NOT!! BUT WHY—
AND CHASING THE PARIS GREEN TO ITS LAIR WOULD BE A CINCH FOR YOU??
WHY, JEFF, OF COURSE I'M FAMILIAR WITH ALL THE DRUGS HERE! WHY—
BUT SUPPOSING ONE OF YOUR CLERKS HAD BEEN CHANGING THE BOTTLES ABOUT, JUST AS A JOKE, YOU KNOW?
WHAT DO YOU MEAN?
SUPPOSE THE BOTTLES GOT MIXED? SUPPOSE THE CARBOLIC ACID BOTTLE AND THE STRYCHNINE BOTTLE WERE MOVED ON THE SHELF?
IMPOSSIBLE! EVERYTHING IS PLAINLY LABELED, ANYWAY. BUT WHY—
AND AIN'T THERE NO CHANCE OF YOUR PALMING OFF CARBOLIC ACID FOR PEPPERMINT?
MY WORD! NOT THE SLIGHTEST! BUT LISTEN——
M-M! I'VE GOT HALF A NOTION TO RISK IT—
YES, YOU MAY SLIP ME A QUARTER'S WORTH OF PEPPERMINT!
